You Meet 3 Kidnapers.
Efficient Justice.
And Two Postscripts.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

LOS ANGELES, May 17.

THIS IS written to let some millions of readers know what kidnapers look like, what they say, how they act. The writer spent four and one half hours this morning with the three Los Angeles kidnapers that have been caught, much to the credit of all concerned, including the kidnapers' own stupidity, have confessed, have been tried and sentenced to prison for life, the trial lasting only fourteen minutes.

They will be on their way to San Quentin Prison this evening, unless the federal government delays matters, with a second trial for using the mails to defraud. The Sheriff hopes the federal trial will be rushed through this afternoon, if it is held, that he may get the men started for San Quentin tonight. Holding kidnapers is uncertain work, with the public mood as it is.

ON THE GROUND floor of the Hall of Justice skyscraper, downtown in oldest Los Angeles, in Sheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz' office, you meet those chiefly concerned in the capture of the kidnapers, including Captain William J. Bright, head of the homicide squad. Every department, local police, Sheriff's office, United States District Attorney, have worked together well to bring about capture, conviction and sentence within a week after the crime.

Captain Bright, however, a big man in plain clothes, with keen eye and powerful underjaw, "knocked over" the case. A case is "knocked over" when the guilty are caught and the thing is settled.

This is how the "knocking over" occurred:

Jimmy Kirk, the "brains" of the kidnaping plot, was arrested on suspicion of robbery, no thought of his being a kidnaper. Captain Bright went through his pockets and did not neglect a small card which he proudly shows you. On that card you will see written "Gettle," name of the man kidnaped.

It is a forgery of Gettle's writing, exactly the same as was used on a bogus check for $250 some time ago. And the card is the business card of N. W. Zimmer, real estate agent, 2611 Foothill boulevard. He, quite innocently, rented to the kidnapers the small house used by them as their "hideout" at 4256 Rosemont avenue, ten miles from Mr. Gettle's house, rent $22 a month, to conceal Gettle, the victim.

YOU ASK Captain Bright how it was possible, that the kidnaper, especially "the brains" of the enterprise, should let the card remain in his pocket. Says Captain Bright:

"Oh, they all slip one way or another."

Sheriff Biscailuz and Captain Bright, both born in downtown Los Angeles on opposite sides of the gas house, a mile and a half from the prison, know their work, and would like you to know that there has never been a kidnaping in their part of the world without the kidnapers being caught.

First, Jimmy Kirk, "the brains," 38 years old. He was a pipe welder on Signal Hill, until prohibition came offering better earnings at bootlegging. He first took up bootlegging as a sideline, combined with welding, then to bootlegging only. He made his headquarters in a five-story warehouse, one of the biggest bootleg distilleries in California, turning out thousands of gallons a day, worth at retail a million dollars a week.

Jimmy Kirk, by himself, was not quite as big as that, however. He really worked for others.

KIDNAPER NO. 2 is Larry Kerrigan, whose record, according to the police, includes small scale bootlegging.

No conviction of felony for any of the kidnapers is on record. None of the three is foreign born, except Jimmy Kirk, who came from British Columbia, when he was two weeks old.

Kidnaper No. 3, "booked" as Roy Tate, was the "finger man," the one chosen to point out the victim. He did cement work on the pool on Mr. Gettle's estate, and his job was to "point the finger" at the right man when kidnaping time came.

His real name he assures you later, is not Tate, but Williams, and police believe him.

NOW YOU may see the three kidnapers under sentence of life imprisonment, summoned to the visitors' room in the prison high up in the city skyscraper called "The Hall of Justice."

It would not be easy for any mob to get at them there. The Sheriff has summoned them, and introduces them as they sit side by side.

Kirk, "the brains," sits on the left, Kerrigan next, Williams, the "finger man," next. All are dressed in overalls of blue denim made in the prison. Kirk's, too long, are turned up ten inches, at the bottom. Reading left to right as you face them, they are "the brains," Kirk, and Kerrigan with light blue eyes, and last, Williams, "finger man," a beaming, highly cheerful and childish person, with brown eyes.

Kirk, hair very thin on top, and blonde, a man above average intelligence, talks frankly, showing none of the "toughness" that police attribute to him. But the toughness, police say, is there.

Captain Bright has told you:

"Kirk is tough. He would not come through, or admit anything. The other two confessed in writing. We

FARM YOUTH CLEARED IN SLAYING

Father Slain in Tracks As He Chases Wife With Pitchfork

MIDLAND, Pa., May 17.—A work-worn mother, too unstrung by family tragedy to continue her ploughing in the fields, sat on the porch of her farm, near Midland, today awaiting the return of her son, who yesterday shot and killed his father when the latter attacked her with a pitchfork.

Steve, 15.

Steve Vrvas, her 15-year-old son, had been cleared in the fatal shooting of Lawrence Vrvas, 47, farmer and steel mill worker, a Coroner's jury at Beaver having returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Responding to his mother's cry for help, Steve dropped the elder Vrvas in his tracks as he chased his wife around the barnyard with the pitchfork.

The shooting was said to have climaxed a day of quarreling between Mr. and Mrs. Vrvas.

Vrvas, the wife and son said, had been drinking and was in a quarrelsome mood most of the day.

PLOUGH FIELD

During the afternoon, while Mrs. Vrvas and Steve worked in the fields ploughing and performing other farm chores, Vrvas went into the woods to sleep after arguing with his wife and threatening the son, police were told.

Mrs. Vrvas upbraided him for constantly drinking.

Steve, police said he told them, went into the house, returned with a shotgun and hid it in a chicken coop.

When the elder Vrvas returned later in the day, he complained because the evening meal had not been prepared.

The boy, who had gone into the yard, heard his mother scream. Then he saw her run from the barn, his father, in close pursuit, brandishing the pitchfork.

Vrvas dropped dead.

The mother verified the boy's story. Finishing her statement to State Police, she exclaimed:

"The last five years have been hell."

She told authorities that Vrvas, who drank heavily, forced their son and herself to do practically all of the heavy farm work.

Steve gave himself voluntarily to Beaver Falls officers when they came to the farm to investigate the shooting. He was turned over to State Police and held in the Beaver Falls barracks.

Ford Looks Over Foster's Home, Impresses Nun

Henry Ford, who came to Pittsburgh today to inspect the reputed birthplace of Stephen Collins Foster, which he has just purchased for his museum of early American homes, made a "hit" with Sister Fides, art teacher at the Convent of St. John the Baptist.

After spending about half an hour inspecting the Foster property at 3414 Penn avenue, the auto magnate went to the convent at 3600 Liberty avenue and there met Sister Fides.

He "raved" over the beauty of a shimmering silver and blue silk wedding gown, worn by the nun's grandmother, Unietta Conway, when she married James McDermott in Derry, Pa., in 1830.

OFFERS GOWN AS GIFT

Ford wants to buy the wedding gown and keep it in the Foster house, but Sister Fides wants to give it to him. She said:

"He's such a nice man, I'd like to give it to him.

"No other member of the family will ever use it—we've kept it as an heirloom—and I know Mr. Ford will take good care of it."

Sister Fides said Ford visited with her for about 30 minutes, discussing old houses, old gowns and "things in general." Their visit would have been prolonged, she said, had not reporters and photographers "frightened" him away.

VISITED INSULL

Uncommunicative as ever, Ford arrived in Pittsburgh this morning aboard a private car on the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad.

Alert and spry, with a youthful spring in his step, Ford stepped off his car to meet Pittsburgh officials of his company.

Slipping away from the rest of his party at the ford exhibit at the Century of Progress yesterday in Chicago, Ford paid a 15-minute visit to Samuel Insull fallen utilities king, in his hospital room, according to an International News Service dispatch.

Ford refused to comment on the visit here today, and their topic of conversation remained a secret.

Ford, it was said, had expressed the opinion that Insull was a victim of financial circumstances, in which New York bankers played a leading role.

SMITH, BELL BOTH GET POSTS

Council O. K.'s New Safety Boss; Ex-Head On Traction Board

By unexpected action this afternoon, City Council gave Mayor McNair his way in confirming these important changes in his official cabinet:

1—Council confirmed the appointment of A. Marshall Bell, gentleman farmer and socialite, as Public Safety Director to succeed Ralph E. Smith, ousted last Monday.

2—Council approved the dismissal of W. Edgar Reed as a member of the Traction Conference Board, and then confirmed the appointment of Smith to succeed Reed on the Traction Board.

Bell's confirmation was obtained by a seven to one vote, Councilman John J. Kane casting the only opposing vote.

'DEAL' REPORTED

The vote to oust Reed and name Smith as his successor was unanimous.

Confirmation of Bell and Smith is seen as the result of a deal between the Republican majority of five and the Democratic bloc of four in Council.

The terms are these:

The Republicans accept Bell as safety director, the Democrats accept Smith as a member of the Traction Board, and all agree to support Councilman William A. Magee's plan to take authority for appointments to the Traction Board out of the Mayor's hands.

This was apparent after Councilman Magee introduced an ordinance to take the appointive power to the traction board away from the Mayor, and transfer this authority to Council.

This ordinance was referred to committee.

TIEUP DENIED BY PINCHOT, MARGIOTTI

Republican Chiefs Hail Penna. Senator as 1936 Leader

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—(AP.)—The battle lines are drawn in Pennsylvania for next November's Senatorial election—Joseph F. Guffey, Roosevelt leader from pre-convention days and staunch supporter of the "New Deal," versus Senator David A. Reed, one of the sharpest critics of administration policies in the capital.

Both were victorious in Tuesday's primary elections, Guffey in the Democratic party and Reed in the Republican, where the Senator defeated Gov. Gifford Pinchot, independent Republican, pledged to support the President.

NEW DEAL ISSUE

Denied both of Pennsylvania's seats in the Senate for more than 50 years, Democratic spokesmen said they would make their greatest challenge against the Republican defenders with the administration recovery program as the issue.

Whether Pinchot's defeat was a Republican rebuff for the New Deal was a matter of opinion. Republicans in Pennsylvania and in the national capital said it was; Democrats saw no such significance.

Reed's own interpretation was that "in Pennsylvania we want neither the Old Deal, nor the New Deal, but the Square Deal."

CLEAN-CUT TEST

In Washington, Representative Bertrand N. Snell, of New York, Republican House leader, asserted the vote "shows that the American people are not all crazy and not all influenced by free jobs." He called the election a "clean-cut test" of the New Deal, ad other Republicans expressed similar opinions.

Postmaster General James A. Farley, national Democratic chairman, said he did not regard the fight as one between Roosevelt supporters and critics, while Senator Henry F. Ashurst, Arizona, summed up the Democrats' sentiment with:

"The Republicans have won again in Pennsylvania — there doesn't seem to be much news in that."

PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER

Representative Fred A. Britten, fiery Illinois Republican, charged Democrats used "every artful political device" to help Pinchot and asserted Reed's success "may reasonably entitle him to recognition as the Republican candidate for the Presidency in 1936."

Pinchot blamed his defeat on a recent illness which prevented him from campaigning throughout the state as in past contests.

The Governor last night denied that he had invited Charles J. Margiotti, Pittsburgh and Punxsutawney attorney, to join him in a third party campaign in November. Margiotti was one of the unsuccessful candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor

SEA MAIL QUIZ HEARS ASTOR

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP.)—Vincent Astor told the Senate Air and Ocean Mail Committee today that the affairs of the International Mercantile Marine Corporation had not been mentioned to President Roosevelt while he was Astor's guest this spring aboard the yacht Nourmahal.

Previously, P. A. S. Franklin, president of the corporation, told newsmen that he had not sent any company messages to Kermit Roosevelt while the latter was aboard the vessel.

That was their answer to Senator Robinson (Rep.-Ind.), who some time ago read to the Senate published reports that the investigating committee had in its possesion I. M. M. messages delivered to the Nourmahal while the President was cruising with Astor and Kermit Roosevelt off Florida.

Other testimony today concerned the I. M. M.'s financial set-up some of its financial transactions, and whether any of them adversely affected American shipping.

STEEDLE JURY SHOWN BOXES

The ballot boxes which the United States Government regards as the key to its charge that Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, McKees Rocks Assemblyman, and 11 others conspired to commit vote frauds, were admitted as evidence in Federal Court today.

Five boxes containing ballots which were allegedly changed were produced by Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh and admitted into the record.

These boxes are from the First District, First Ward, Carnegie: Third and Fourth Districts, Stowe Township, and First and Third Districts, Scott Township. All were used in the congressional election of November, 1932.

FOREMAN TESTIFIES

Charles N. Ramsey, foreman of the Federal grand jury which investigated the alleged vote frauds, testified that ballots from the boxes were examined by the jurors and that a government handwriting expert pointed out certain markings on these ballots.

Special Prosecutor Louis E. Graham, associated with Marsh, charged flatly in his opening argument to the jury that these ballots were changed.

Other witnesses today traced the handling of the ballot boxes since the election.

Wales Pays Tribute To Heir to Throne

CARNARVON, Wales, May 17.—(INS.) — The Prince of Wales, touring the North Wales industrial areas and examining the unemployment and welfare situation, was greeted today by great throngs of cheering and singing people.

On his arrival the Prince was greeted by former Premier David Lloyd George on the steps of the castle where his Royal Highness was invested as Prince of Wales in 1911.

Stay Out of League! 1,344,347 Demand

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 17. — A mandate of 1,344,347 American citizens, protesting against American adherence to the League Court, was laid before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee through the Hearst newspapers.

In the form of a petition, covering every state in the Union, Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippines, and nearly a dozen foreign nations the unalterable opposition of the American population was formally presented to Congress yesterday.

The actual petition was carried to the Senate Office Building in a giant truck, on the sides of which were emblazoned:

"1,344,347 signatures, opposing United States' joining League of Nations World Court, presented to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee."

E. D. Coblentz, editor of the New York American and supervising editor of the Hearst morning newspapers, explained to the committee the bulk of the actual petition was so great as to make it impossible actually to bring it to

Man Jailed Secretly In Robles Abduction

Another Being Held For Investigation In Kidnaping

International News Service.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 17.—A suspect in the kidnaping of little June Robles has been held for 24 hours on the third floor of the county jail, it was learned today.

Because of widespread threats to lynch the men who held the girl captive in a "torture coffin" in the desert, officers proceeded cautiously in their investigation.

The suspect, it was learned, has not been able to establish satisfactorily an alibi for his movements during the 19 days of June's absence from home.

Two men were picked up this morning for questioning. One was soon released, but the other, a well-dressed man, was held for further investigation.

A woman who wore shoes with peculiarly shaped heels is also being sought in the kidnaping of June, found chained in a "torture coffin" in the desert after being missing for 19 days.

Authorities in charge of the case admitted finding numerous footprints of a woman at the site of the grave in which June was buried alive. Footprints of similar peculiar design also were found at the nearby site believed to have been used by the abductors as a hideout.

HEARD NO WOMAN'S VOICE

The little 6-year-old victim, however, maintained that she did not hear a woman's voice during the entire time she was held captive.

Throughout the day June, rapidly recovering from her harrowing experiences, was shown pictures of suspects in the case.

Confronting one suspect whose name was not revealed, she was asked by her father, Fernando Robles:

"Is this the man who took you away and put you in the box in the desert?"

June replied:

GUFFEY REPLIES TO REED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Joseph F. Guffey, winner of the Pennsylvania Democratic senatorial nomination, today challenged the assertion of the Republican victor, Senator David A. Reed, that the latter's primary victory over Gov. Gifford Pinchot constituted a victory for the G. O. P. over the Democratic "New Deal."

Guffey, a presidential visitor today, declared on the White House steps that Reed's victory statement was issued from "Andrew W. Mellon's Rolling Rock country club at Ligonier.

He added:

"The President told me that we did a fine job."

Guffey was accompanied by David L. Lawrence, Allegheny County chairman.

Postmaster General Farley, commenting on the Pennsylvania primary election, said:

"We are entirely satisfied with the result of the Pennsylvania primaries and from all reports in our possession we are looking forward to a Democratic victory in that state in November."

Girl Killings Laid To Youthful 'Ogre'

WARSAW, May 17.—(INS.)—Casimir Trscinsky, aged 9, a "pocket sized ogre," was arrested today in a forest near here. He is charged with the murder of 12 girls, ranging in age from 3 to 9 years.

Police believe that the murders were committed by the boy as a part of a juvenile idea of practicing blood rituals in black magic.

'Mellon' for President Needed, Senator Says

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP.)—Senator Schall (Rep.), of Minnesota, said in a statement today that "the United States needs a man like Andrew Mellon for its next President."

For the former Secretary of the Treasury, Schall said, reduced by $11,000,000,000 the "greatest national debt in history" which he said was inherited from the Wilson administration. Mellon, he said, kept the country from going bankrupt while keeping the country on "the high road to prosperity" and constantly reducing taxes." He added:

"When the Roosevelt dynasty passes, which it most certainly will as indicated by the election returns from Pennsylvania, this country will need a man with the financial genius of Mellon to again save it from bankruptcy. Today we are in debt $32,000,000,000 and every line of industry at a standstill due to the New Deal which is the greatest misdeal in history."

PRESIDENT TO DISPATCH SILVER MESSAGE WITHIN 48 HOURS

PRESIDENT AND GLASS CLASH ON STOCK BILL

Fireworks Loom as Virginian Prepares Senate Speech

By EUGENE J. CADOU
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Senator Carter Glass, scrappy Democratic opponent of the New Deal from Virginia, will take the Senate floor and explain his stand in the stock market bill controversy, he announced today.

He has resigned from the Senate Banking Committee because he was not appointed to the conference committee on the measure. Senator Barkley (Dem.), of Kentucky, who, although a junior to Senator Glass, was named as a conferee, has complicated the situation by attempting to resign his membership on the conference committee because he "does not have a free hand."

Glass today disagreed with President Roosevelt's version of a conversation they had at the White House concerning the former's proposal of a presidential commission of five members to regulate the stock exchanges, which was incorporated in the Senate's stock market bill.

CLASH ON CHANGES

The President told newspapermen that he had told Glass to "go ahead" and embody his suggestion in the Senate bill and also that he had asked Representative Rayburn, (Dem.), of Texas, to proceed with the placing of control in the hands of the Federal Trade Commission. The President explained he had not made up his mind between the two suggestions.

Commenting upon the President's statement, Glass said:

"That is not my recollection of our conversation. However, I do not wish to engage in a newspaper controversy with the President. I will make my statement on the floor of the Senate, either when the conference report is considered or sooner.

"I talked with the President before a word of my amendment was drawn. He said for me to go ahead and substitute my proposal for the Rayburn bill."

Glass has told colleagues that the President favored stock market control by the presidential commission. One member of the Senate Banking Committee said:

"Aspersions on the independent commission amendment was the only way the stock market bill could be buried out of sight."

SENATE SPEEDS TO ACTION

Senate and House conferees met today. The Senate members have agreed to refuse to recede from the Senate amendment concerning the separate commission until they have received the sanction of the upper house. Indications however, were that they would consent to the fixed margin provisions of the House bill.

The movement to authorize a separate commission gained strength by a statement issued by Ferdinand Pecora, Senate Banking Committee special counsel who probed the stock market. Pecora said:

"I favor the independent commission. I feel that a commission will have all it can do intelligently to administer this stock exchange law plus the duties conferred on it under the securities act without attempting any other duties. It will have all the responsibilities any group of men can administer intelligently."

BALLOT BOXES EVIDENCE

negie's First Ward were called as government witnesses. They were Mr. and Mrs. John S. Burns.

Both testified they heard nothing of fraud charges in the vote until several days after the election, when they were called by the authorities.

JURY LOCKED UP

A few minutes before court convened the jury was brought from the Pittsburgher Hotel, Judge F. P. Schoonmaker having ordered it sequestered during the trial. Two deputy marshals were assigned as guards.

On trial with Steedle are Attorney B. Robert Averbach, counsel for Republican county organization; Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks; Justice of the Peace Paul N. Franks, of Scott Township; Wallace Ray, clerk in county delinquent tax office; Attorney John J. McGrath, Republican chairman of the Thirty-second Ward; Burton J. McKee, real estate dealer; Robert S. S. Haus, and four members of the Stowe Township police department, Frank Miller, captain; Thomas Saunders, chief; William Schwartz and August Weisser, patrolmen.

The number of defense attorneys is one short of the number of defendants. They are Attorneys O. K. Eaton, A. M. Oliver, Harry A. Estep, Alex P. Lindsay, John A. Metz, William L. Jacobs, D. A. MasQuarrie, James P. McArdle, Mead J. Mulvihill, Leo J. Ritter and Francis A. Wolf. Eaton represents Averbach; Metz represents Steedle, and Estep represents Ray.

OBJECTIONS OVERRULED

The court overruled objections of defense counsel to introduction in evidence of a number of petitions which had been obtained by Averbach from Common Pleas Court for recounts of votes in more than a dozen districts. Three members of the jury have served on other election vote cases this session of court.

The members of the jury in the election vote trial in Federal Court are:

SHIP DISASTER STORY CHANGED

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP.)—After testifying before a special investigating committee that his ship was going 16 knots when it rammed and sunk Nantucket Lightship Tuesday, Capt. J. W. Binks, master of the liner Olympic, said informally during a recess today that when the crash occurred the Olympic was making "two or three knots."

Capt. Binks, in discussing his testimony during the recess, said that when the lightship was sighted he ordered the engines reversed 10 minutes before the collision and one minute after the last wireless signal from the lightship had been received.

Capt. Binks testified that he had taken unusual precaution to give the lightship a wide berth. He declared:

"I thought that I was two miles away from the lightship at the time of the collision. I had ported 10 degrees to bring the Olympic further away from the lightship. Then, to my horror, I saw it dead ahead."

TARIFF DRIVE ON IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP.)—Senator Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, today opened the administration's drive for speedy Senate enactment of its reciprocal tariff bill with an assertion that it would prove a means for the recapture of a six billion dollar loss in foreign trade.

"We can not shut out imports without at the same time shutting in potential exports."

So the Finance Committee chairman asserted in starting an old-fashioned tariff struggle that leaders said would last from three days to a week.

The measure, already passed by the House, would authorize the President to negotiate tariff trading treaties just as other nations have been doing to build up their trade. Senate ratification would not be required.

Harrison defended the constitutionality of the measure and said it contained many safeguards against ill-considered action.

BANK PAYOFF FIGHT NEARS CLIMAX

Congressional Backers Threaten to Balk Adjournment

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The battle of three powerful House groups for the right to bring the McLeod closed bank depositors relief bill, the Connery 30-hour-week measure and the Frazier-Lemke farm morgaige bill to a vote neared a climax today.

Each was fighting separately against the determined effort of House Democratic leaders to prevent action on the measures before adjournment.

In each case a drive was being made to complete petitions of 145 members which, under the "anti-gag" rules, would make possible a vote on May 28.

Unless the petitions are completed tonight any chance for a vote by this method will be postponed until June 11 and Congress is expected to adjourn before then.

As the House convened, backers of the McLeod bill had obtained signatures of 118 members. A petition of 145 members was completed earlier in the session, but a vote on the measure was prevented by a parliamentary maneuver.

A petition for a vote on the Frazier-Lemke bill had 136 signatures and the 30-hour week petition was signed by 50 members.

The leaders were confident of defeating the efforts to bring the measures to a vote, but were confronted with a threatened revolt against adjournment.

Plans to speed legislation to prepare for adjournment were outlined at a conference of leaders called by Speaker Rainey.

President Roosevelt is expected to send Congress a message on the Wagner-Lewis unemployment bill, the old-age pension bill and workmens' compensation legislation. Creation of a joint congressional committee to investigate some of these subjects during the summer and prepare recommendations for the next Congress is expected.

BELL AND SMITH VOTED POSTS

The safety director receives an annual salary of $8,000.

Smith, who stepped from this job into the Traction Conference Board, will receive $5,000 a year in his new post.

McNair originally had named Smith as chairman of the Traction Conference Board, as $12,000 a year job now held by Charles A. Finley, but Council refused to take this appointment seriously.

In casting the only vote against Bell's confirmation, Councilman Kane said:

"I asked for postponement of Bell's confirmation several days ago in order to obtain more information. Today I am in the same position as then.

"From inquiries I have made, I believe he has no experience whatsoever for this job.

"I consider this the most important directorship of the administration.

"It may be that as his friends says, Mr. Bell is a high type man, but I am afraid he may be unable to handle this department."

Kane had been expected to oppose this confirmation, since he had assailed Smith's dismissal as "window-dressing" and had criticized the Mayor's "silk-stocking advisors," who had been working for Bell's appointment.

Councilman John M. Houston was absent from the meeting.

IT HAS been suggested that our government accept a substantial quantity of silver in payment of the June installment of war debts.

Discussion of the June payment by English officials and members of Parliament develops that England's former policy of avoiding default did not originate in a deep-seated regard for national obligation, as has so often been stated, but because England, herself a creditor nation, felt it dangerous to default, as a possible precedent for repudiation by her own debtors.

A sound reason and characteristic of the clear-headed, direct and unsentimental English habit of thought. Business first, last and always.

NOW that there appears to be a fair chance of silver re-monetary legislation, it will be interesting to observe developments by which the opponents of any expansion of money or credit will seek to render the proposed silver measures ineffective.

This writer anticipates that the proposal that we accept silver on war debts accounts will likely be accompanied by the provision that this silver, when received, will be impounded inactively in the Treasury.

Politically, this would appease the silverites, and if no more money is put in circulation, would not interfere with the plans of those who are seeking to prolong this depression.

It would also be a clever device to prove to the uninformed public that the advocates of silver as a means of restoring prosperity are all wet.

VAST numbers of intelligent people have known all along that periods of inflation and periods of depression, are both strictly monetary disturbances, and a great many are beginning to believe that neither are wholly accidental.

As has been pointed out by this writer in this paper, it is constantly becoming clearer that some powerful interest able to influence the administration, is seeking to delay our recovery. It is my guess this group will shortly and unmistakably identify themselves.

WIRE CONTROL BY CODE FOUGHT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Opponents of the proposed telegraph code today charged the National Recovery Administration is being used as a blind to obtain benefits that rightly should be ruled upon by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

C. P. Cooper, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, declared:

"The Interstate Commerce Commission and not the NRA has jurisdiction as to the trade practices complained of by one of the telegraph companies."

He referred to allegations made by the Postal Telegraph Company which declared the Bell Telephone Company was being used by the A. T. & T. to offer electric printer rates and special wire services to clients at which neither the Western Union Company nor the Postal Telegraph Company could compete.

Objections similar to those of Cooper were voiced by Col. Manton Davis, president of RCA Communications, Inc. Davis said his company was willing to accept a code governing hours, wages and other labor provisions, but was opposed to being placed under a broad NRA code as well as under the communications commission as proposed by President Roosevelt.

DARROW BLAST FREE MONDAY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Clarence Darrow's sizzling criticism of the NRA, contained in his report as chairman of the national review board, and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's equally hot rejoinder, will be released for publication in Monday morning's newspapers, it was announced at the White House today.

Along with these reports, will be another, that of John F. Sinclair, who resigned from the Darrow board because of disagreement with its procedure and policies. He sent in a one-man minority report vigorously dissenting from the Darrow majority report.

The White House said the only reason for delaying the publication until Monday was the physical effort of getting it ready. The combined reports will run over 600 pages and contain many thousands of words.

HOUSING PLAN PLEA MADE

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP.)—The administration housing bill was supported before the Senate Banking Committee today by Horace Russell, counsel for the Home Owners Loan Corporation.

Russell said that unless normal mortgage lending were resumed, there would be continued foreclosures, collapse of real estate values and unemployment.

The Home Owners Loan Corporation has applications for more than $4,000,000,000 of loans and a large volume of home mortgages is nearing maturity dates, he said.

SENATE BLOC, ROOSEVELT IN ACCORD

Munition, War Debt Proposals Also to Reach Congress

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt is preparing to conclude his legislative program for this session with five messages, including a proposal for silver.

He will follow the recommendation for bi-metallism with messages on war debts, munitions, cocoanut oil and finally one on social legislation.

It is not expected legislation will be sought on war debts and possibly not on munitions.

Mr. Roosevelt will ask that the levy on cocoanut oil contained in the new revenue bill be repealed on the ground that it is unjust to the Philippines.

STARTS SILVER MESSAGE

In his social legislation message the President is expected to review the problems of unemployment, insurance, old age pensions and other labor bills.

He also very likely will point the way to a quick adjournment by Congress.

The Chief Executive set about writing this new money document today for dispatch possibly within 48 hours. He was reported satisfied with the understanding reached with the Senate silver bloc. It will mean the purchase of a huge store of silver, estimated up to 1,600,000,000 ounces.

OUTLINE OF PROGRAM

The program in rough outline will call for:

1—A mandatory declaration of policy that silver shall be purchased until it constitutes 25 per cent of the nation's monetary backing, as against 75 per cent gold.

2—Discretionary authority as to the time and amount of purchases in world markets to bring about the desired ratio.

3—Permissive authority for the nationalization of domestic stocks of silver—condemning at a price not to exceed 50 cents an ounce a supply in this country estimated at around 250,000,000 ounces.

The agreement on the general principles of such a program was reached at a lengthy White House conference last night after weeks of negotiation.

The present understanding is that silver would be purchased at the market price, but given the required value of $1.29 an ounce for the issuance of dollar certificates. This would mean some inflation.

Smiles by the group of Senate silverites and Secretary Morgenthau hailed the understanding following yesterday's meeting with the President.

Weather Conditions

Centers of low pressure are located in the Northwest, the one over Wisconsin (Green Bay, 29.74), the other over North Dakota (Williston, 29.56). These lows are producing only very light scattered showers. The principal rainfall area for the last 24 hours covers the South Atlantic Coast states. High pressure is located over the far Northeast and extends southwestward over the Middle Atlantic and the Ohio Valley states to the Lower Mississippi Valley. Pressure is high also over the Pacific Coast. The weather is somewhat cooler than yesterday over the South Atlantic Coast states, warmer over the Middle and North Atlantic Coast and westward over the Ohio Valley states and the lower lakes to the southern plains states. Mild temperatures will prevail for the next several days.

HARRIMAN AIDE BARES 'LOANS'

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Neither Peggy Hopkins Joyce nor Constance Talmadge should have ever been embarrassed for cash while in New York.

Their balances at the Harriman National Bank on April 25, 1932, were $85,340 and $96,488, respectively, William A. Bollinger, a bookkeeper, testified today at the trial of the bank's former president, Joseph W. Harriman, charged with falsification of entries in the bank's accounts.

Their balances were so consistently large that on the April 25 date someone (and the federal government charges it was Harriman) thought it safe to borrow huge sums from each one by false entries on the accounts.

The money was used, the government charges, to bolster a market pool Harriman was running in the stock of his own bank.

The pool collapsed, Harriman resigned, and the bank was unable to open after the "holiday" last year. So Miss Joyce and Miss Talmadge had to write their checks on their accounts in other banks.

Judge Soffel Urges War On Social Diseases Here

Failure of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County to meet their responsibility in control of so-called social diseases was denounced by Judge Sara M. Soffel, of County Court today in joining the group of medical and civic leaders who seek official recognition of the diseases as a public menace.

Judge Soffel declared that such recognition is the first step necessary toward eliminating these maladies which threaten to become a "national scourge."

Judge Soffel lauded the stand taken by the Community Fund and its agency, the General Health Council, in opening a campaign to arouse public and official interest in the movement to control the diseases.

She said her experiences in Juvenile Court had revealed to her that present facilities for preventing and treating these diseases was "grossly inedequate."

DILLINGER BELIEVED SIGHTED, ELUDES PURSUERS IN CHICAGO

SLEUTHS OPEN FIRE ON AUTO BEARING 5

Fugitives Outdistance Police After Chase Of Six Miles

CHICAGO, May 17.—(AP.)—A six-mile chase by two motorcycle policemen from the Willow Springs County Highway Station of an automobile containing five men gave rise to reports early today that John Dillinger had been "sighted" again.

The policemen, however, were unable to identify any of the occupants of the car as members of the Dillinger gang. The policemen fired two shots at the fleeing men, but they outdistanced the officers, and escaped.

The policemen said the car bore an Ohio license plate, the first three numbers of which were 566. The last three numbers were not visible, they added, because the plate had been bent backward, possibly in an attempt to conceal the figures.

Dillinger Moll's Career Sketched Before U. S. Jury

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 17.—(AP.)—Evelyn Frechette's brief career as John Dillinger's moll was sketched for a federal jury today in her trial for harboring the notorious outlaw.

The jury already had the account of her association with the long sought fugitive as related by a prosecution witness, H. H. Reinecke, Department of Justice agent. Miss Frechette, together with Dr. Clayton May and Mrs. Augusta Salt, is on trial on charges growing out of Dillinger's machine gun escape from a St. Paul apartment last March.

Reinecke, who questioned the black-haired girl after her arrest, said she told him she met Dillinger in the fall of 1932 and traveled with him to Florida, St. Louis and Tucson, Ariz.

She visited him in the Crown Point, Ind., jail once. The night he made his wooden gun escape, she was in Chicago and met him there the next day. Reinecke said she told him they came to St. Paul and took an apartment where they lived under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Hellman.

When the police came to the apartment on March 31, she refused to let them in, locked the door and wakened Dillinger. Reinecke testified:

"John said, 'keep your shirt on' because she was a little nervous. He dressed, tossed some money into a suitcase, shot through the door once with a burst from his machine gun, and sprayed the hallway with another burst."

SANKEY WIDOW WAITS FATE

PIERRE, S. D., May 17.—(AP.)—A Federal Court jury debated today the fate of Mrs. Fern Sankey and Mrs. Alvina Kohler, accused of conspiracy in the kidnaping more than a year ago of Charles Boettcher II, of Denver.

Given the case at 5:55 p. m. Wednesday, the jury began its deliberations at 7:30 and two and a half hours later was locked up for the night upon instructions of Judge Lee Wyman.

Charged by the government with having aided the late Verne Sankey plan the abduction, the defendants face a penalty up to life imprisonment if convicted.

Counsel for the two women portrayed them in closing arguments to the jury yesterday as stupid but loyal women who stuck with their men "because they loved them," and who knew of, but took no part, in the abduction plot.

Memphis Welcomes King Cotton's Court

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 16.—(AP.)—An imperial barge moved up the Mississippi River today bearing "King Cotton," a stately figure bundled up in majestic robes, and wearing a jeweled crown. With him were his queen, their entire royal court, "Cleopatra," and a crowd of handmaids, dressed in exotic gowns.

Thus Memphis formally opened its 1934 cotton carnival, an annual tribute to the part cotton has played in the upbuilding of the South.

LITTLE JUNE ROBLES' ANKLE . . . SCARRED BY HER FETTERS

Miss June's ankle, marked by the chain that held her prisoner for 19 days in a metal box buried in the hot desert just a few miles from her Tucson (Ariz.) home as thousands sought to find her.

JUNE'S PRISON . . . FOR 19 DAYS SHE WAS IN THIS HOT BOX HIDDEN BY DESERT FOLIAGE

A close-up of the torture chamber that was June's. After her rescue she told of how the sides grew so hot that they burned her hands while nearby her kidnapers, their prisoner safe below the surface of the desert and hidden by foliage, escaped detection and police capture.

June Wants Kidnapers Put in Chains

PET BUNNY ILL, JUNE WORRIED

International News Service.

TUCSON, May 17.—June Robles, who according to her grandmother, Mrs. Bernabe Robles, "doesn't cry like other children," today was worried over the condition of her pet white rabbit.

While her paternal grandmother praised the little kidnap victim for her stoicism, June was happily sprinkling the lawn—happy except when she thought of the ailing rabbit she has named "Whitey."

June apparently is completely recovered from the harrowing 19 days' experience at the hands of kidnapers in the desert wastes of Arizona. The grandmother said:

"When June wants to cry she goes to her room and shuts the door."

June believes she may have hugged the ailing white rabbit "too hard" when she was returned from her captivity.

International News Service.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 17.—"If they catch those bad men, I want them to put chains on their legs like they did me inside that old thing."

So said little June Robles as she pointed at the corrugated iron tomb in which she was imprisoned on the desert by her kidnapers.

"Then I wish they would bring them to jail and put a chain around their necks."

The 6-year-old girl was inspecting for the first time since her rescue from the desert "grave" the contraption in which she had been placed by her kidnapers. It had been brought to the Sheriff's office here.

The little kidnap victim was accompanied by her parents and grandmother. She said:

"I don't like that old thing. They made me get into the box. I didn't want to. I cried a little but they told me they would spank me if I didn't keep quiet. They pushed me into the box. I started to cry again. They told me they would spank me if I didn't shut up. I shut up."

Pointing to the chains on top of the box, she said:

"They're what they had me chained up with.

"I don't like that place, it was awfully hot in there and I couldn't sleep well."

Fernando Robles, her father, cautioned the child not to touch the "coffin" prison, because of the possibility of destroying finger prints.

June replied:

"I know better, and I don't want to touch that old thing ever again."

And then she added brightly:

"But you know there's lots of mine on it already."

in the pictures you and the policeman showed me."

KNEW ROUTE OF CAR

Re-enactment of the actual kidnaping added little to the total knowledge of the case, according to officers who accompanied June from the point from which she was kidnaped April 25 near the school to the "torture coffin" grave in the desert nine miles from here.

The trip was made in an automobile.

She knew, in a general way, the route of the kidnap car, but that was all.

When the car arrived at a desert road leaving the main highway sue said:

"Here is where we turned off."

Veteran cowboy trailers, Yaqui Indians and Under-Sheriff Jake Farrar and Deputy Al Franco, all famed in the desert country for their ability to follow a trail across the sandy, cactus-strewn wastes, thus far have failed to pick up the trail of the kidnapers, either from the grave or the abductors' alleged camp site.

SPANISH PAPER FOUND

June contended that she passed the entire 19 days she was missing in the lonely desert grave. She said she was taken directly from Tucson to the "coffin."

Many believed that such a feat would have been impossible—that a human being could not have lived for 19 days under such conditions, and remain in the robust condition in which June was found.

A Spanish newspaper with an account of the kidnaping was found near the hole and authorities said this might prove valuable in prosecution of the kidnapers if and when caught and brought to trial.

Two glasses of home made preserves and a bottle of home made catsup were also found in the vicinity between the grave and the alleged hiding place of the kidnapers.

DENIES RANSOM PAYMENT

Fernando Robles, June's father, today again denied persistent reports that part of the $15,000 ransom money demanded had been paid.

Belief had been expressed yesterday by one investigator that part of the ransom had been paid last Saturday.

Spiritualist Charges Churches Hush Truth

Neighbor Who Moved And Singing Mother 'Speak' at Meet

Orthodox churches must and will accept the fact that it is possible to communicate with spirits beyond the grave, the Rev. J. P. Whitwell of St. Paul, told the the Pennsylvania State Spiritualist Association.

Speaking at the state Spiritualist convention in the William Penn Hotel last night, Mr. Whitwell, president of the national association, said:

"The largest of the Christian churches already recognizes that there is the possibility of spirit communication, but knowledge is withheld on the ground that it would be harmful to the individual."

A demonstration of the powers claimed for spiritualist mediumship was given by the Rev. George B. Cutter, of Boston, nationally-known lecturer and medium.

MESSAGES FROM DEAD

The neighbor who moved because her house was too close to one next door; a mother singing, or who had sung, "Forgotten;" a man who died of heart trouble, and many others—all named by the medium—conveyed messages to persons in the audience according to Mr. Cutter.

The Rev. Mr. Whitwell said communication with spirits was possible through natural laws, and that spiritualists do not claim it is confined to them alone, but that members of the clergy of orthodox churches who are developed spiritually have the same experiences in the inspiration they receive.

NATURAL LAWS SAME

Asserting that spiritualism opened the way to spiritual betterment of mankind, Mr. Whitwell said experiences set forth in the Bible were not miraculous, but conformed to the experience of spiritualist mediumship. He said there has been no change in natural law, and the truths of 3,000 years ago are true today.

Mr. Whitwell said there could be harm in experimentation with the forces spiritualism claims are existent. He said persons of little spiritual development might attract "vibrations" from similar personalities beyond the grave, and said in explanation that individuals retained their identities after death to continue their spiritual development on another plane.

CHAMPION FROG SET FOR LEAP

SONORA, Cal., May 17.—(AP.)—A mammoth bullfrog, the leaping champion of his green-backed kingdom, eyed his competitors warily today as they were groomed for the sixth annual jumping frog jubilee to be held in the historic gold-mining town of Angels Camp next Saturday and Sunday.

For two years the mammoth frog has leaped greater distances than any other croaker, but he may have to stretch himself to retain his honors. The competition appears strong.

Mark Twain's literary classic, "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras," was the inspiration for the frog jumping events in Angels Camp. The story goes that Twain had a champion jumper named "Daniel Webster," and he made the mistake of matching his frog against an unknown leaper.

Two "slickers" filled Twain's frog full of buckshot. And of course his frog couldn't leap an inch with his heavy ballast, and Twain lost his shirt.

HOLLYWOOD, May 17.—(INS.)—Angela Joyce, golden-haired beauty of the English screen, today was ready to return to her London home and a court battle against Lord Revelstoke for $518,000 heart balm.

Miss Joyce filed suit against the peer shortly after his recent marriage. She will leave here Saturday and sail from New York on the S. S. Paris.

U. S. Labels 'Ulysses' As 'Bible of Outcasts'

Prosecutor 'Spares' Court Reading of Whole Novel

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP.)—James Joyce's "Ulysses" was called "filthy — obscene — subversive of decency" and "a product of the gutter" by Martin Conboy, United States attorney, in Federal Court yesterday.

Conboy was supporting the government's appeal from the decision of Judge John M. Woolsey that the book is not obscene and therefore could not be banned or confiscated by customs authorities. Random House, Inc., publishing company, is opposing the appeal.

Three judges of the Court of Appeals heard Conboy denounce the work of the Irish writer for 40 minutes.

Conboy read definitions of obscenity and said Ulysses fitted every one of them. Judge Learned Hand asked:

"You do not believe that the court should read it?"

The attorney answered:

"I will read a generous sample from this product of the gutter. I do not believe it will be necessary for your honors to read the entire book."

Conboy then read "something from the advertising matter circulated to promote the sale of the book."

This, he said, described it as "the most infamously obscene book in ancient or modern literature," saying:

"The obscenity of Rabelais is innocent compared with its lecherous and scabrous horrors.

"The book is the bible of beings who are outcasts in this and every other civilized country. It is also adopted by the Freudians as the supreme glory of their dirty and degraded cult."

Although admitting that Ulysses was "rather a strong draught," Judge Woolsey described it in his original opinion as "a serious attempt to devise a new literary method for the observation and description of mankind."

'QUEEN,' DANCER MAKE UP

NICE, France, May 17.—(AP.)—Countess Dela Porcerie, formerly Mabel Boll, "Queen of Diamonds," today had visited the bedside of Georges Charlot, 27-year-old professional dancer who shot himself in the side on the grounds of her villa.

Hospital attendants described the visit as a reconciliation, and said that the young man will be taken to a hotel or to the countess' home today unless his condition takes a turn for the worse.

At the time of the shooting, police said that Charlot was trying to kill himself because of a falling out with the former "Queen of Diamonds."

Mrs. Gautier's marriage last year to Etienne Marie Robert Gautier, of Paris, ended recently in divorce. Her first husband was Preston Sturges, the praywright.

Can't Stop Beaten Candidate, He Runs On Rims in Fall

By ARTHUR (Bugs) BAER

Good old Pennsylvania is always going to the bat when there is nobody on base.

The campaign issue was recovery. The way to do that is to drop in an old Army sergeant and recover by the numbers.

Both Govs. Pinchot and Moore want to go to Washington as senators. That's a nice job, but we wouldn't give up a motorcycle escort for it.

These elections were merely primaries A primary is a struggle inside an organization to see who's going to get thrown out.

Bandit Sent to Prison As Bride Looks On

She stood alongside her young husband of a few months, heard him admit a career of crime, and saw him led off to Western Penitentiary.

Isett, 22, and two others confessed to a half-dozen holdups of restaurants. Isett made a clean breast of the gang's plunderings. He admitted he was leader and organizer, also that he had served a term in the reform school at Morganza.

His bride heard Judge W. Heber Dithrich announce that Isett, with six robbery charges against him, could have been sent to jail for the rest of his life. But the court limited the sentence to five to 10 years.

Robert Orga, of Fisk street, was sentenced to two and one-half to five years in the workhouse and William Mahoney, of the Strip, was given the same sentence, to be worked out in the penitentiary.

Bride Sued Who Voiced Regret on Wedding Day

Regret that she married him was expressed by his wife on their wedding day, Arthur Beighley, 7531 Washington street, Swissvale, told Judge Thomas M. Marshall today.

They were en route home from Wellsburg, W. Va., just after they were married, Beighley said, when Mary C. Beighley told him she was sorry they had married.

The husband, who is asking a divorce, said his wife left him when they got back to Pittsburgh, and he could not induce her to live with him. He ascribed her refusal to "temperament," and said she once hit him on the nose when he offered to provide a home for her.

Mrs. Jean Beighley, sister-in-law of the plaintiff, testified she saw the latter's wife with two men in an automobile on one occasion, and said that when she got out of the car she hugged one of the men.

The Beighleys were married January 29, 1933.

The case was one of 14 divorce actions heard by Judge Marshall in the record time of an hour and a half.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 17.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Looking over the beautiful San Francisco Bay here from a hotel window, you can almost see San Quentin Prison and three gentlemen kidnapers checking in for life, on a crime committed not a week ago. That leaves the state with a pretty good record, out of two kidnapings, two down, and three out. That must be heartbreaking to these "shyster" lawyers to not get a chance to defend this class of client. But I suppose these fellows will be up before the parole board at its first meeting.

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

RELIEF NEEDS 110 MILLIONS MONTHLY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The federal government faces a relief bill of $110,000,000 a month from the beginning of the new fiscal year, July 1, until next March, Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins informed congressional leaders today.

The amount of money to be made available for relief purposes depends upon congressional action on the $1,322,000,000 emergency appropriation requested by President Roosevelt and the Chief Executive's division of the fund.

The President, in asking Congress for emergency funds, estimated that $940,000,000 would be available for public works and relief, the division to be made by him.

Hopkins told Congressional leaders that he hopes to get $640,000,000 of this fund, in addition a balance of $250,000,000 he will have on July 1. He estimated this $890,000,000 would meet relief needs until March 1.

He would not forecast the probable relief demand by months or in detail because a change in business conditions would make a vast difference. Nevertheless, he hopes to obtain the fund to supplement state relief grants.

Hopkins reported he now is caring for over 4,000,000 persons. Of this number 750,000 are on work relief jobs, while the remainder receive specific grants of funds.

During the present session Congress appropriated $950,000,000 for relief work and the CWA.

ICKES JIBES PA. ON OLD LAWS

Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, announced here last night that Allegheny County will get no more federal funds for public works until Congress makes another appropriation for such projects. He said:

"All our funds have been allocated and we can't give Pennsylvania more unless we can get another appropriation.

"Pennsylvania is handicapped with an antiquated constitution which forbids the state from borrowing sufficient sums to be of much benefit to recovery.

Asked if he considered the vote received by Senator Reed Tuesday, criticism of the New Deal, he asked:

"You wouldn't call the heavy vote Pinchot and the Democrats got a criticism, would you?"

DOG FILM STARS 'TESTIFY'

LOS ANGELES, May 17.—(AP.)—Two canine film stars appeared in Superior Court here in a mute effort to show a jury the value of a dog actor.

John Stiglitz is suing M. E. Casebier for $5,000, the asserted value of "Queenie," a canine actress which died after allegedly being struck by Casebier's automobile.

Stiglitz brought "Peter the Great II" and "Rin-Tin-Tin, Jr.," trained sons of noted police dog actors, to court. "Peter" was the theatrical partner of "Queenie," a toy fox terrier.

Grill Protects Ace Detective

VANCOUVER, B. C.—(INS.)—After three attempts to bomb Inspector John F. C. B. Vance, Vancouver's ace criminologist, the city council ordered a metal grill built across the entrance to the upper floors of police headquarters where Vance has his laboratories. Vance can now work as late as he wants at his office without danger of being molested by intruders.

Virginia Buyers Ask 'Straight' Rye

RICHMOND, Va., May 17.—(AP.)—With statistics gathered from the operation of four state liquor stores, the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has estimated that 19 out of 20 buyers ignored the wines offered in favor of whisky, and that five buyers demanded a "straight" liquor to every one who asked for "blended."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS -:- By PAUL MALLON

But Those Expected It to Be Signed Are Due for Surprise

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 16.—All you skeptics who berate the intelligence of Congress have not heard about S2817.

It is no wonder that you have not, because that seems to be a little secret among Congressmen themselves. They are shy about it. They have even carried their modesty to the extent of concealing the authorship of the measure.

That may not sound unusual to outsiders, but it is really amazing. Bills are like babies. Their fathers are always proud of them, no matter how puny the offspring may seem to the outside world.

Not so with S2817. It is the first nameless waif to be found in the bill hoppers in Congress.

TILL TAPPING

There is a reason for that. The bill has been all dressed up in legal verbiage so that it looks like a thousand other unintelligible and meaningless laws passed every session.

Its text is brief. It says:

"Be it enacted, etc., that the Act entitled An Act Relating to Contracts and Agreements Under the Agricultural Adjustment Act, approved January 25, 1934, is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof a comma and the following: The Federal Farm Loan Act, as amended, and the Home Owners Loan Act of 1933."

That sounds as if the unproud fathers of the bill were not eager to make their purpose clear to the average congressional observer. At least that has been the effect.

No one has said a word except Senator Fletcher, of Florida. In his customary inaudible voice he explained the measure to Senator Fess when the Senate passed the bill unanimously April 25.

Fletcher's explanation was that it would amend the law so Congressmen could borrow money from the government on their own farms and homes.

EASY MONEY

The bill is now pending in the House. If it can be slipped through there as quietly as it was pushed through the Senate unanimously, some think President Roosevelt might sign it.

He will not. The Congressmen are doomed to disappointment. The President has been forewarned.

It has been pointed out to him that Congressmen who get $9,500 a year salary, plus mileage, from the government are not exactly in dire need of relief loans. But that is not the most important point.

The Farm Credit Administration is lending now about 75 per cent of the appraised value on farm properties. That is all most farm properties are worth. Appraisals are liberal. They have recently been made more liberal because Congressmen raised so much cain about harsh appraisals.

The appraisers are appointed by the AAA and HOLC, many of the recommendation of Congressmen. When so appointed, they serve in the districts from which the Congressmen come. Under such circumstances, appraisers are very apt to have hallucinations about the value they place on the property of Congressmen from whom they get their jobs.

Congressmen could easily unload their private farms and homes on the government through such a system.

At least, that is what earlier lawmakers had in mind when they wrote the Criminal Code.

The truth seems to be that 99 per cent of the Congressmen probably never heard of the bill, which now is on the verge of final passage.

Apparently it was written by three or four who put their heads together and decided they needed AAA or HOLC loans.

Thus far, it has been given only routine consideration, but, when it gets to the White House, it will be given something else.

GLASS

Administration liberals were the backstage workers who kept Senator Glass off the Stock Market Committee.

They did not mean is as a personal affront to him. They decided at the last minute that they wanted the Federal Trade Commission to govern the Stock Exchange instead of the independent commission proposed by Glass. If Glass got on the committee, they knew they could not slice that feature out of the bill.

It made Glass so angry he declined to come to work next day, but remained at home where he could be mad without interruptions.

MARION DAVIES BROADCASTS FILM SCENES

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, May 17.—Millios of Americans, everywhere in the nation, heard something entirely new in radio yesterday when Marion Davies made her debut as a broadcasting star.

Miss Davies appeared in one of the most novel air-programs ever heard, as the guest star of Louella O. Parsons, Universal Service motion picture editor and commenator, over station KHJ and the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The program marked the first time that an entire broadcast had been musically "scored" in exactly the same manner as for motion pictures.

The show also featured another radio innovation—the use of the movie "cut-back"—by re-enacting a scene as if Miss Davies were relating it.

IN THREE ROLES

Miss Davies appeared in three distinct characterizations from her forthcoming Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Operator 13." In one, she portrayed an Octoroon laundress, really a northern spy of the Civil War days in disguise; in another sequence she played the part of a beautiful Virginia girl, again a spy masquerade; and in her final appearance before the microphone she was heard as the famous federal secret service girl, "Operator 13."

The star also introduced, for the first time, two songs from her new picture. She sang one, "Liza Lee," with Ted Healy, the noted stage comic, and the other, "Once in a Lifetime," her theme song in "Operator 13," she offered with the renowned M. G. M. choral group of 24 voices, exactly as it will be heard in the film.

GARY COOPER HEARD

Gary Cooper, popular leading man of pictures, who plays opposite Miss Davies in "Operator 13," also was heard, portraying his Confederate officer role.

The music for the program was played by Raymond Paige and his California Melodeers, working in conjunction with Jack Chertok, head of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer music department, who planned the unusual "scoring" of the program.

According to George McGarrett, nationally known radio expert and western representative of the Columbia Broadcasting System, this broadcast sounded a keynote for the future. McGarrett predicted that programs will be developed more and more along the lines of motion picture musical "scoring"—fitting of original music to dialogue to create a desired mood.

FANS STORM STUDIO

Ernest Underwood, technical director for the program, also was very high in his praise of the forward step that radio had thus taken and declared the Marion Davies-Louella Parsons program: "The best 15-minute show I've ever heard!"

Hundreds of enthusiastic Marion Davies fans stormed the doors of Radio Station KHJ following the program to catch a glimpse of their favorite.

POWER FINANCE DEALS BARED BY TVA MAN

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Characterizing the activities of some of the major electric utilities as having reached the proportions of "a national scandal," David E. Lilienthal, director and general counsel of the Tennessee Valley Authority, told the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks today it was inevitable President Roosevelt and Congress "should squarely face this situation.' He said:

"It was inevitable they should see that regulation alone was inadequate to fully protect either the consumer or the investor.

"Neither the industry nor the investors took effective action to meet this situation. The President and Congress, in setting up the TVA, were merely responding to an overwhelming public sentiment. The public, investors and consumers alike, demanded an experiment on a broad scale, of public electric operation.

"This development was designed to serve as one means of seeking to prevent a continuation of financial and operating practices which had brought discredit on the entire industry, sound and unsound managements alike."

CHARGES VALUES FILCHED

Commenting on the "almost insatiable" need for new capital in the electric business, Lilienthal charged that important stock management groups have been steadily confiscating senior security values.

He cited two outstanding electric operating properties—Commonwealth Edison Company and Public Service Electric Company of Northern Illinois, operating "in one of the richest territories in the country and under most favorable conditions."

SURPLUS REDUCED

Referring to their annual reports for 1932 and 1933, he said:

"Turning first to the consolidated surplus account of the Commonwealth Edison, we find the directors of this company in a single year found it necessary to write off over $45,000,000 against surplus, reducing the surplus from $53,500,000 to $6,900,000.

"We find a so-called investment reserve of $30,000,000 set up. It appeared that the management of this company through a non-utility investment subsidiary, had been making enormous outlays in all manner of enterprises, from truck factories to suburban real estate.

"The reserve was to absorb the losses of those ventures. Even that investment reserve was found inadequate, for in the 1933 report we find an additional charge of $7,000,000 against surplus to care for shrinkage in value of the so-called investments of the subsidiary.

BOUGHT OWN STOCK

"Here is an item of $3,750,000 for losses in connection with transactions in company's reacquired stock. This company, through its subsidiary, was engaged in buying the company's stock in the open market, for purposes which do not stand very close scrutiny.

"Then there is an item of $1,665,000 for advances and loans of stock to officers and employes and to individuals connected with affiliated companies.

"Let us turn to the annual report of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. Here we find that in 1922 and 1933 the management wrote off a total of $18,500,000 to take care of the shrinkage in value of securities in all manner of outside enterprises, similar to those of Commonwealth Edison.

"Charges against the reserve included a half million dollars in advances and loans to officers and employes and to individuals connected with affiliated companies, and $1,750,000 in connection with losses in stock market operations involving the company's own securities.

POLICIES CRITICIZED

"I am not criticizing the write-offs put into effect by new management, but rather the financial policies extending over a period of years which made that action necessary.

"These reports tell a story of confiscation of values of senior securities. Furthermore, the effect of this management policy has been to make rate reductions much more difficult for these companies, and to that extent has made the general public relations of these companies less favorable. All of this reacts adversely to the holders of the bonds."

PUBLIC ENEMIES

This is the ninth of a series of Safety Cartoons drawn by a CWA artist for the Better Traffic Committee as an educational aid in reducing the growing number of traffic accidents in Pittsburgh. The artist, Frank McFeaters, was one of 100 CWA workers assigned to the Better Traffic Committee and his art ability was an accidental discovery.

The use of the horn is one of the chief annoyances of the Motor Age.

According to the State Vehicle Code "it shall be unlawful to use a horn otherwise than as a reasonable warning, or to make any unnecessary or unreasonably harsh sound by means of a horn."

This does not mean that a motorist may "blow" traffic out of the way, cross intersections at reckless speeds, or use the horn in place of doorbells.

Drive with your head, not your horn!

Auto Club Seeks Data on Accidents

James A. Hemstreet, a member of the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh, accompanied by three members of the state highway patrol, today started out on a 24-hour tour of Pittsburgh to make a check to determine whether an unprecedented increase of automobile deaths by accidents is caused by carelessness of defective equipment. The check is being made under the direction of the club.

Records show that thus far in 1934 there have been 70 automobile fatalities and 2,618 accidents in the state, compared with 141 deaths and 2,644 accidents in 1930.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 17.—(AP.)—War debt negotiations had their parallel here as counsel for Mrs. Johanna Reuther informed the court that her divorced spouse, Edward, had offered a $2 "token" payment on his alimony arrearage of $1,384.

PITT'S 'INDEX' DOUBTS VALUE OF SCHOOLING

Pitt students today scanned the second issue of the Campus Index, hot off an anonymous press, for more anonymous undergraduate criticism of courses, faculty, and university organizations.

Hitting teaching methods at Pitt, the Index states:

"If the vast majority of students who now undergo four years at Pitt were denied that opportunity, it is exceedingly doubtful whether the caliber of citizenship or the appreciation of cultural activities or the prevailing level of human decency would materially diminish in Pittsburgh."

'OWLS' ON FACULTY

Chancellor Bowman, the Index claims, could profitably turn his attention to "stuffed owls" on the faculty who think so little of good teaching that, in reply to the Index, they comment:

"I forgive my colleagues what they are praised for."

And then the Index editors list several dozen assorted professors, teaching many kinds of courses, with high praise for almost all. Closing pages are devoted to razzberries for student groups.

Editors of the Pitt News, the Index editors charge, have hit stiff-necked business leaders for fighting the unions while their own student newspaper was printed in a non-union shop.

FRATS GET SLAP

The R. O. T. C. is censured for its failure to sympathize with William Penn Hotel strikers when the military ball was held there by issuing a statement that it would be preferable to hold the dance somewhere else.

Fraternities are told that they "continually operate beneath a desirable academic level, continually work at cross-purposes to the broad ends of college, and have no compensating intellectual or social virtue."

Theft Ends Parole Of Morganza Boy

Paroled six months ago from the Morganza State Training School, Joseph Faulkner, 18, of 4826 Blair street, was sent back there today by Judge W. Heber Dithrich after he had pleaded guilty to a burglary charge.

Faulkner admitted breaking into the jewelry store of Felix Hunter at 4829 Second avenue, Hazelwood, knocking the combination off the safe and stealing $500 worth of jewelry.

Tech Frat Gives 'Initiation Pig' To Poor

Fraternity boys out at Carnegie Tech didn't know what to do with a large, squealing pig after they had finished using it in an initiation stunt, but the problem was easy for officials of the Association for the Improvement of the Poor.

Today roast pork and pork chops were the chief items on the menu at the association's four Pittsburgh restaurants for the poor and unemployed and neighbors of Carnegie Tech's fraternity row will be able to sleep tonight, because the porker's squeals have been silenced.

Woman Burns Town Over 35-Cent Fine

MALAGHOWCE, Poland, May 17.—(Universal.)—Infuriated because a government tax collector attached her fur coat for nonpayment of a 35-cent fine, Marie Jarmolik, a widow, set fire to this village today and then committed suicide by jumping in the river.

Eighteen houses, almost the entire town, were destroyed.

PITT FUND AIDES MEET TONIGHT

Pitt workmen yesterday, aided by Mrs. L. B. Hays, Virginia Evans and Mary Louise Succop, social registerites, finished swinging aside tons of stone, stored in the Commons' room, to make space for a general meeting of 500 volunteer workers in the Complete the Cathedral drive at 8:15 p. m. today.

It is expected that fund reports by committee chairmen will be the chief feature of the meeting, first ever held in the Commons' Room, greatest of all Cathedral halls. It has an area of more than a third of an acre.

Homer D. Williams, general chairman, will introduce Thomas Fitzgerald, citizen's committee chairman, as presiding officer. Chancellor John G. Bowman will speak.

University officials have announced that through the cooperation of the Duquesne Light Company the Cathedral will be floodlighted during "open house" week, which begins Sunday.

MRS. SPROUL'S RITES HERE

The body of Mrs. Frank Penrose Sproul, daughter-in-law of the late governor of Pennsylvania, who died yesterday in Boston, will be brought to Pittsburgh for burial, probably Monday.

The family, prominent in Pittsburgh political, financial and social circles, moved to Boston about 20 years ago so that their two young sons, Frank, Jr., and Howe, might attend school in the East.

Howe was drowned when his canoe overturned in a Connecticut river. Frank was killed in an airplane crash and Sproul, Sr., was killed in a fall down an elevator shaft, bringing three tragic deaths to the family.

Earl Carroll Feted By Variety Club

Earl Carroll, noted theatrical producer, was made a member of the Variety Club at a dinner in his honor at the club last night. Carroll stopped off in Pittsburgh on a flight from California to the East, leaving a few hours after the dinner. Members of the club were given a private showing of Carroll's latest picture, "Murder at the Vanities."

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH WANT-ADS BRING RESULTS

M'NAIR FIRES ASSESSOR AS TEST; YIELDS

Mayor McNair cleared up a mystery today and revealed he almost made a city employe the martyr of a controversy with Councilman William A. Magee.

He said he fired City Assessor O. B. Hannon two weeks ago to "make a test case" of his right to fire city help. He kept Hannon on the payroll, however, after friends interceded. The Mayor said it was this way:

"About the time that William A. Magee was saying that I couldn't dismiss city employes without the consent of Council, I decided that I would have to fire somebody to make a test case.

"I ran down the list and decided on Hannon. I remembered Davy Lawrence got him on anyway. I called him in and told him:

"I'm sorry, but I'll have to dismiss you.

"Well, that started up an awful excitement. Assessor James P. Bailey came in and Councilman Huston, so I finally agreed not to do it."

Bailey subsequently was fired himself after a noisy argument in the Mayor's office. He charged Mayor McNair and his secretary, Theodore L. Moritz, with attempting intimidation and threatened to "wipe up the office" with Moritz.

MRS. ROOSEVELT HAILS ART AID

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP.)—The twenty-fifth annual convention of the American Federation of Arts closed yesterday with an appeal by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt for continued interest in art by the government.

Mrs. Roosevelt quoted a visiting foreigner as saying the exhibition of public works of art now on at the Corcoran gallery was "the most significant thing in Washington." She went on:

"If we gain nothing else from the years of hard times than the acceptance that the government has an interest in artistic expression—if we have widened the interest of the people of the whole in art—we have gained a really golden harvest."

Speaker to Urge New Juvenile Home

Dr. Hugh Greer Carruthers, nationally-known radio psychologist, will speak at Memorial Hall at 7:30 o'clock, May 24, in the interest of a movement to open a Juvenile Home and Day Nursery. The home would care for poor and neglected children and children whose both parents are forced to work.

Ex-Congressman Killed in Plunge

EMMETT, Idaho, May 17.—(AP.)—Robert M. McCracken, 60, Congressman at Large from Idaho in 1915-17, was carried to his death last night as his automobile plunged over Freezeout hill near here. McCracken failed to make a sharp turn and the motor car tore through a guard fence to roll 350 feet down hill.

M'NAIR PAYS TOLL CHARGE

Mayor McNair has paid cash for the $2.55 telephone call to Mrs. Pinchot from North Side Police Station.

To a written request for an explanation by Controller James P. Kerr the Mayor sent back money to pay the bill and an apology for not having caught the charge in his own office.

The call went to Mrs. Pinchot after the Mayor attempted to get the Governor to inform him of the bad effects of state liquor on the regular customers in Pittsburgh police stations.

The Mayor also says he will pay for another call; that made to the White House to ask the President's secretary whether the President favored Pinchot or Guffey for United States Senate.

Logger Strangles Wounded Cougar

PORTLAND, Ore., — (INS.)—Youthful David of Bible fame who defended his flocks from marauding animals by the strength of his bare hands has a second in Clyde A. Corman, logging superintendent for a Longview, Wash, lumber company.

Corman grappled with a wounded cougar and strangled the big cat to death. About two years ago Corman gained public attention by bulldogging a wounded buck dere. So powerful was the lumberman's bulldogging twist, the animal's neck was snapped.

COLLINS LAUDS PROGRESS IN ADVERTISING

Individuality in advertising is of paramount importance, Kenneth Collins, of New York, told the Retail Forum in an address in Kaufmann's dining room last night.

Collins, assistant to Bernard Gimbel, president of Gimbels, said that through the depression, advertising held its own against the odds of decreased business. He said:

"Advertising didn't fail in this country during the depression. It brought people into the stores, which is its function, and couldn't help that they had only so much in their pockets."

Along with individuality in advertising, a balanced stock and displays of sales value also are important, he said. He urged specialization in merchandise and prices.

In addition to Collins, the following spoke briefly at the banquet: Walter Rosenbaum, president of Rosenbaum's; W. H. Burchfield, vice president of Horne's; Jacques Blum, president of Gimbels, Pittsburgh; Joseph Meyers, manager, Kaufmann's; I. S. Harris, president, Harris Stores; Harry C. Milholland, of the Pittsburgh Press, Dr. James H. Greene, Retail Merchants' Association; Bishop Brown, Research Bureau of Retail Training, and Simon Kay, past president of the Forum. A. Weisman, president, presided.

WAIFS TO LOSE CASH IN BANK

WAYNESBURG, Pa., May 17.—(AP.)—Small fortunes are held in a Waynesburg bank for two young men, but they'll probably never know.

Frank Anderson, 25, and his brother, Edward, 24, were taken from the Greene County Children's Home in 1911 and 1912 for adoption. No record was kept of their new homes other than the fact that the foster parents lived in Western Pennsylvania.

Officers at the home say the identity of the brothers was lost in the proceedings; that the foster parents probably never knew the real names of the brothers; that the boys probably don't know their original name themselves.

The case came to light recently when a sister, Geraldine Wilson, petitioned the County Court to declare the boys legally dead that their estates might be settled. There is about $1,000 in trust for each youth, together with an interest in Morris Township property and buildings.

Woman, 79, Sues Husband, 81, For Divorce

RIVERHEAD, L. I., May 17.—(INS.)—Anna B. Danilson, 79, charged her husband, Alonzo F. Danilson, 81, with infidelity and sought to divorce him in Supreme Court here, but Justice Hallinan refused to believe the complaint.

Mrs. Danilson charged her husband with being overfriendly with a former secretary.

The couple were making an effort to settle their differences out of court today.

MATE TO FIGHT GLORIA FOR GIRL

PARIS, May 17. — (AP.) — Michael Farmer will contest the divorce action of Gloria Swanson only if she presses for custody of their daughter.

"If she really wants a divorce," the handsome Irishman said, he has no intention of stopping her. He added:

"But if it is true that she is asking custody of our daughter—well, that's another story!"

In the Irish Free States, of which Farmer is a citizen, divorces are not recognized. He said:

"I was advised by my attorney that if I did not accept a divorce, Gloria would remain my wife in the eyes of the law—in every country and state except California.

"I'm not paying any attention to this talk until I have some word from Gloria, herself."

BONANZA KING'S RELICS SOLD

MENLO PARK, Cal., May 17.—(AP.)—Guests munched 15-cent sandwiches here today in the $3,000,000 palace built by the late James C. Flood in the '70's with the bonanza wealth he wrested from Nevada's Comstock lode.

The "guests" were invited to bid at the auctioning of furnishings of old Linden Towers, as the estate is known, which the bonanza king gathered from the marts of the world for the 42 rooms. The auction began yesterday.

Instead of the many servants who once attended to the wants of brilliant assemblages, today's guests at Linden Towers were served the sandwiches by an old woman.

The articles for sale included big, soft carpets; runs from Persia; carved furniture from Europe and the Orient; paintings and statuary of the Victorian era and inlaid marble wash basins and silver faucets.

FREEZONE

They hit it with everything but a BUZZ SAW!

See "G-3"—the tire that gives 43% longer non-skid mileage!

HOW they mauled this newest Goodyear on the test fleet! Brakes "went out" in 8 hours—had to be relined every 72. Day and night, they scuffed, dragged and mauled these tires—but the "G-3" All-Weather kept right on rolling!

That's the tire we're offering you today—at no price increase! A tire built to stand up on the new, modern, high-speed, quick-starting, quick-stopping cars—and keep its grip 43% longer!

A tire that gives more safety—more miles of traction—on any car!

It keeps the famous All-Weather Tread—but makes it wider—puts more tread blocks in the center of the tread—more rubber—an average of 2 pounds more—in the tread! And it can do all this because it has the extra resilience, extra endurance of Supertwist—a patented Goodyear ply material in the body of the tire.

Come in and see it! It's the greatest buy in years. It costs more to build—but here's no extra cost to you!

WARNING!

Watch the rest of the industry try to copy this amazing tire. Watch them try to duplicate Goodyear's claims. But, remember, you have to have "non-skid" before you can have "non-skid mileage." And to have "non-skid," you have to have GRIP where you see it here—GRIP in the center of the tread—the place where it counts, because it's the spot where the tire contacts the road. Look at the grip on this Goodyear Tire and ask yourself why buy any tire that lacks this safety?

FRENCH CONSUL SNUBS 10 U. S. COLLEGE GIRLS

MADRID, May 17.—(AP.)—A group of 10 Smith College students and several other Americans intending to visit France were refused visas by the French consul today unless they cabled at their own expense for certificates of good conduct from the French consuls in the districts of their American residence.

The young women college students have been visiting in Madrid and the other members of the group are temporary residents here. They all planned the trip to France en route back to America.

An appeal was taken by the college girls to Curtis Jordan, United States consul, who is investigating the case.

COLLEGE FEES PAID

Some of the girls planned to squeeze in a brief course at French universities before embarking for home. They had already paid their entrance fee for the studies.

Jordan said he could not understand the French consul's procedure. The consul, Manuel Neville, declared he was merely applying regulations "existing for some time, but not always in force." He said:

"The Americans should have obtained visas from the consuls in their home districts when beginning the journey, since they have not done that they must communicate with the consuls as their own expense to obtain the required character vouchers."

CONSUL'S "FAVOR"

Members of the Smith group said the consul told them tersely:

"I am doing you a favor by even seeing you personally. This matter of visas is impossible without certificates."

They declared that his manner "irritated" them.

One of the party held up by the consul's insistence will be unable now to arrive in France in time to catch the boat on which he had booked return passage.

Jordan stated that so far he has received 12 complaints about the French consul's attitude.

Ambassador Claude Bowers said he had not yet been officially informed of the matter. He promised to call on the French ambassador when and if he received the complaint.

LIGHT EXPERT WARNS NUDISTS

CINCINNATI, May 17.—(AP.)—There is no conclusive evidence, Dr. Edgar Mayer, of New York, told the National Tuberculosis Association, that there is benefit to the average person in sun bathing, either natural or artificial.

In fact, he said of the cults of nudism and sun bathing:

"Harm may be done in the treatment of both the sick and the well by the injudicious and uninformed use of light."

An authority on the use of light rays in the treatment of disease, he agreed that ultra-violet irradiation has been shown to be of value in treatment of certain diseases or injuries, among them certain forms of tuberculosis. But, he added:

"Gross excessive exposure of the entire body may in certain cases cause serious illness, and excessive exposure of a local area may in some cases lead to permanent deleterious changes in the skin."

Woman Hurt in Fall Boarding Street Car

Falling as she attempted to board a street car at Birmingham avenue and Brownsville road, Martha Duff, 67, of 88 Beltzhoover avenue, sustained a possible fracture of the nose and lacerations. She was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

MISSION BOARDS GET BEQUESTS

Ella M. Patterson, 341 South Highland avenue, by her will probated yesterday, made bequests to numerous charitable institutions in disposing of an estate valued at $25,000.

The Y. M. C. A. is to receive $1,000 and the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church $500 each. After making bequests of $2,000 each to a brother, John I. Murphy, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Bella D. Murphy, and $500 to $1,000 each to five nieces and nephews, the will leaves the remainder of the estate to the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church, the Board of Foreign Missions of that denomination, and the Philadelphia Training School for Christian Workers. Her brother is named executor of the estate.

Arthur Todd, of Swissvale, by his will probated yesterday, left a $10,000 estate to his widow, Emily Todd, and two daughters, Marie O'Neil and Elizabeth McGowan. He named the Bessemer Trust Company executor.

CAR UNLIGHTED, CRASH HURTS 2

Daisy Watson, 31, of 810 Penn avenue, and Lawrence Havenak, 23, of 321 Trenton avenue, both of Wilkinsburg, were treated in Pittsburgh Hospital today for injuries received when their automobile collided with a parked machine in Lehigh street. The parked automobile, owned by Peter J. Hinck, of 364 Lehigh street, had no lights, according to police.

D. B. Jones, of the Kirkwood Hotel, and Harry Kriger, of 235 Atwood street, suffered slight injuries as their machines sideswiped in Shady avenue. Both were treated at Pittsburgh Hospital.

Five File Pleas For Divorce Here

Divorce suits were filed yesterday by Agnes R. Grathwohl against August J. Grathwohl, Anthony Tremont against Katherine J. Tremont, Victor E. Hauser against Anna Hauser and by Helen Hatagan against James Hatagan.

'Worm' of Subway Turns, and How? With Gun

NEW YORK, May 17.—(Universal Service.)—The subway worm has turned.

Accused of shooting a fellow passenger who jostled him in the East Side subway, Arcadio Del Corro, 102-pound cigarmaker, pleaded not guilty to felonious assault, and dubbed himself the "martyr of subway sardines."

Granted an adjournment until his 220-pound, 6 foot 3 victim, Leo Fador, gets out of the hospital, the small but fiery Del Corro said:

"I've set an example and I'm not the least bit sorry. I haven't the money to get a lawyer, but I think other victims of the subway hustle and bustle would come to my support."

MILLEN TRIAL DELAYED DAY

International News Service.

DEDHAM, Mass., May 17.—Murton and Irving ond Abe—who are brandishing a mass insanity plea in their battle ogainst the electric chair—had a day off today from the iron prisoners' cage at their murder trial.

No court was being held because of the obsence of George tSanley Harvey, counsel for the Millen brothers, at the funeral of his mother.

The brothers and Faber are morons, according to defense testimony, and should not be held legally repsonsible for the holdup of the Needham Trust Company in which two policemen were slain.

Girl friends, relatives, doctors, neighbors and employers have trooped to the witness stand to trace peculiar mannerisms ond actoins since childhood of the defendants.

Even Family Wash Isn't Safe From Erie Thieves

ERIE, Pa., May 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. Frank Gehrlein hung out her wash, proudly observed to a neighbor, "the clothes are nice and white today," and returned to the house to prepare dinner.

Glancing into the back yard a short time later she discovered the wet clothes had vanished. All that remained was the wash line.

$7,000 Weekly Waste Laid to State Relief

A needless expense of $7,000 weekly against the local Relief Works Division has been added by the negligence of the State Relief Works Division in reapproving more than 100 projects for completion here, Philip Lantz, deputy administrator, charged today.

He said that more than 250 men are employed as watchmen on the incompleted jobs to guard tools and materials. This property is owned by the city of Pittsburgh, Allegheny County and other municipalities co-operating with the RWD program. Funds to pay the watchmen come from the RWD allocation for May.

MT. RUSHMORE COMPETITION NEARS END

Each day increases in importance as the closing date of May 30 draws closer for the thousands in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia preparing texts to submit in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition.

While those men, women and youths who are beginning the study and preparation of their 600-word inscription of America's epic must make each day count, all participants should bear in mind at all times the rules of the competition and what is wanted.

The rules are printed on this page today for the benefit of those who have just decided to participate in this great nation-wide quest being conducted by the Sun-Telegraph and associate Hearst newspapers for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission. Today is one of the few remaining times the rules will be repeated.

Many of the hundreds of entries already received have been checked merely to determine what mistakes are being made. Scores of these entries will never be considered by the judges since more than 600 words are submitted or the nine specific episodes of history have been overlooked.

All participants must bear in mind that no text can exceed 600 words and that dates and subtitles are counted as part of the text. Each of the nine points of history stipulated in the rules must be contained in the text. The mere mention that an episode occurred is not sufficient. The entrants should tell what effect the episode had on the progress of the nation.

Participants who know they ended with too many words or failed to set forth all episodes have the advantage of submitting another text. In fact, there is no rule against submitting as many entries as a participant desires. If you have two versions and cannot decide which is the better, send both entries.

RULES FOR MT. RUSHMORE COMPETITION

Herewith is a complete set of rules for governing the Mt. Rushmore national memorial inscription competition.

1—The competition is open to every man, woman and child in the United States or its possessions.

2—No entry fee, subscription or other consideration is necessary to submit texts in this competition.

3—All grammar school students must submit their entries to the teacher or the school committee appointed for the school which they attend.

4—All high school students must submit their entries to the teacher or committee at the high school which they attend.

5—All college students must deliver their entries to the college committee appointed to take charge.

6—In the event that there is no committee in charge of the competition at the school or college of any entrant, such entrant may mail his entry to the publication office of this newspaper, at the same time certifying the classification in which he is competing and the school from which he is entering.

7—Any man or woman, not an enrolled student, may send in his or her entry direct to the publication office of this newspaper. All entries must be addressed to the Pittsburgh Rushmore Memorial Committee, care of the Sun-Telegraph.

8—No text will be considered which exceeds 600 words in length.

9—All entries must be received by the school or college committee of each school for enrolled students, or at the office of this newspaper for adults, unenrolled competitors and enrolled competitors where there is no school or college committee in charge, not later than midnight, Memorial Day, May 30, 1934.

10—All school committees must complete the judging of the entries in their schools and certify the winning entries to the local Rushmore Memorial Committee, in care of this newspaper, not later than 12 o'clock noon, June 16, 1934.

11—The winners in each class must be delivered by each local committee to the national committee not later than Saturday, June 23, 1934.

12—The national committee will endeavor to publish awards and findings on July 4 if the work can be completed at that time, or as soon thereafter as possible.

13—Every entrant in this competition agrees, as a condition of his entry, to accept the judgment of any school or local or intermediate board of judges, as well as the judges of the territorial board and of the national board, as final and without recourse.

14—All cash prizes, scholarships and medals will be awarded on the basis of the final judgment of the national committee.

15—The certificates of merit will be awarded on the basis of the judgment of the school committee in each case.

16—In the event of ties for any of the prizes, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

17—The winners of the first prize in each case will receive their awards at the hands of the national committee in the city of Washington. The expenses of the winner of the first prize in each class, for railroad transportation to Washington, two days' stay in Washington and return to his home, will be paid by this newspaper.

18—Entries will not be returned to any contestant, and this newspaper will not undertake to answer inquiries concerning any awards in this contest. This newspaper does not accept any responsibility for entries lost or miscarried. Proof of mailing cannot be accepted as proof of receipt.

19—Texts submitted in this competition must deal with all of the following nine episodes in American history:

3—The Louisiana Purchase.

5—The ceding of the Floridas to the United States.

9—The cutting of the Panama Canal.

20—Certificates of merit will also be awarded for the best text written in each group of Boy Scouts and other organizations when such group submits 25 or more entries.

NEW MAIL SHIP LANDS HERE

Shortly before dawn this morning, the first plane of the Central Air Lines to fly the new air mail schedule thundered into the city from Detroit.

The Pittsburgh-Greensburg owned company was recently awarded a contract by the Post-office Department.

It will fly five Stinson planes over the Detroit-Pittsburgh-Washington route.

John Coulter, secretary-treasurer of the Central Air Lines, said today:

"For approximately 10 days we will carry no passengers in order that the pilots may familiarize themselves with the route. All planes are equipped with the best aids for flight in all kinds of weather."

UNIONTOWN BOY HERO OF FIRE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 17.—A high school boy's heroism today helped to save the lives of 14 women and children.

All were trapped in their apartments when a blazing fire broke out in the Haut Brothers garage on the first floor.

Johnny Brown dropped 20 feet from a second-story window, sprained his ankle, obtained a ladder and aided the 14 to escape. Then Johnny was carried to a physician's.

Mrs. Dale Rockwell and several other occupants were treated for burns.

Congressman, Aide Hurt in Auto Crash

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

LAWRENCE SHAW, National Director — J. JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander

By J. JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander.

Hello, young American air aces! From Boston to Los Angeles and from Chicago to San Antonio, thousands of boys and girls every day are joining the Junior Birdmen of America in order to take part in the organization's forthcoming activities.

In just one month it has become one of the largest youth movements in this country with a membership of over 50,000. It is a club which every boy and girl in the Pittsburgh district will be proud to be a member of and wear its official wing emblem.

Get your propeller twirling and slip down the runway today for a "take-off" to join the thousands of other Junior Birdmen. Read the coupon at the end of this column. It will tell you how to become a member of this airminded group.

GOOD TIMES AHEAD

We have "plane-loads" of good times and activities ahead of us. Tomorrow I will tell you all about the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Model Plane Derby, Saturday Mr. Lawrence Shaw, national director of the Junior Birdmen, will give you the second lesson in the model plane building course.

Sunday Mr. Shaw will tell you the very latest news about the National Motto Contest, which he will flash to you from national headquarters in New York. He will list for you the 68 winning mottoes picked throughout the country.

I will have ready for you Monday the program of the local Field Day to be held at the City-County Airport, Saturday afternoon, June 9. Also I will publish some Flight Squadron news and some answers to interesting questions that have been mailed me.

Today we give you air dictionaries 11 and 12. Clip them out and put them in your scrap book.

Air Dictionary List Number 11

TODAY, in our air dictionary, we continue to list the various types of balloons.

BALLOON (OBSERVATION)—A captive balloon used as an aerial observation post.

BALLOON (PILOT)—A small balloon sent up to show the direction and speed of the wind.

BALLOON (SOUNDING)—A small balloon sent up with recording instruments for the study of the upper strata of air. This is usually ascended to a height where human beings could not live.

BALLOON BED—A mooring place on the ground for a captive balloon.

BALLOON FABRIC—The finished material, usually rubberized, of which balloon or airship envelopes are made.

BALLOON HANGAR—A special hangar constructed for the housing of balloons.

BAND (MOORING)—A band of tape or webbing, over the top of a kite balloon, to which the mooring ropes are attached. It forms part of the mooring harness.

BAND (SUSPENSION)—A horizontal fabric band, securely fastened to the envelope of a balloon or airship, to which are attached the main suspension lines of the basket or car, or the captive cable of a kite balloon.

BAND (TRAJECTORY) — A band of webbing carried in a special curve over the surface of the envelope of an airship to distribute the stresses due to the suspension of the car.

Air Dictionary Number 12

BANK (OR BANKING) INDICATOR—An instrument which indicates the degree of a bank, showing just how far off balance an airplane is during the maneuver.

BASIC LOAD—The load which a structural member can take in any condition of equilibrium of a plane in flight.

BASIN (TOWING)—A long tank filled with water through which small models of seaplane floats, boat hulls, hydroplanes, etc., are towed so that forces and movements may be measured.

BASKET—The car suspended beneath a balloon for carrying passengers, cargo and ballast.

BASKET SUSPENSION — The suspension by means of which the basket of a kite balloon is supported beneath the body proper of the balloon.

BAY—The part of the face of a truss or a fuselage between adjacent struts or frame positions.

BEACHING GEAR—An arrangement of wheels which can be attached to the hull of a seaplane for transporting and handling it on shore.

BEACON (GENERAL)—A light, signal tower or any other signaling device indicating a location or a direction.

In our thirteenth air dictionary list, which will be published early next week, I will give you the definitions of the various types of beacons.

Happy landings!

HUSBAND SLAIN BY AX-WOMAN

MILWAUKEE, May 17.—(AP.)—After guarding the body of her slain husband for a month, Mrs. Albertina Krueger, 68, former patient at the County Hospital for Mental Diseases, was held today by authorities for observation.

She was taken into custody by detectives who found the husband, Albert, a well-to-do retired real estate operator, hacked to death with an ax in a bedroom of their suburban home.

Neighbors who noticed that Krueger had been missing asked police to investigate. They broke into the home early today.

Frank Prohaska, captain of detectives, said discovery of the ax in the home definitely established that the woman murdered her husband.

Fosdick Reporting On German Exodus

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP.)—Raymond Fosdick, United States delegate to the meeting of the high commission for relief of German refugees, returned today on the liner Manhattan.

LAMSON BATTLE FOR LIFE OPENS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—(AP.)—Counsel for David A. Lamson, under sentence of death for wife slaying, argued before the California Supreme Court for a new trial yesterday on the ground the trial court and the District Attorney at San Jose had misconducted themselves.

The young former press executive at Stanford University was convicted of beating his wife to death in their campus bungalow. The evidence was circumstantial.

The oral argument opened before a crowded courtroom, the audience including Mrs. Willis Thoits and Dr. Margaret Lamson, sisters of the convicted man.

EX-STAR SURPRISED AT WILL SNUB? NO!

Didn't Even Expect Him to Mention Her, She Says

International News Service.

PARIS, May 16.—Surprise that her name had even been mentioned in the will of her former husband, William Ellis Corey, American steel magnate, was expressed here today by Mabelle Gilman Corey, stage star of other years who was divorced by Corey in 1923.

At the same time she announced she would not contest the will, which cut her off without a cent. She said:

"I have lost my best friend and at present am rather dazed. There was no reason why Mr. Corey should mention my name in his will.

"He made a settlement with me in 1928, yet during all our separation he had looked out for my business affairs."

Mrs. Corey said she might go to New York soon, but "only to settle up personal matters."

MABELLE GILMAN COREY

In the early years of the present century, Mrs. Corey, as Mabelle Gilman, was well known on the New York stage. She appeared in "The Casino Girl," "The Rounders" and other musical comedies. Her marriage to Corey in 1907 soon after he divorced his first wife was an international sensation.

After the marriage Mrs. Corey lived much of the time in Paris. Corey's business required him to live in New York. His visits to Paris became less and less frequent and in 1923 he sued for divorce and won a decree from the Seine Tribunal.

Mrs. Corey has a chateau near Versailles. In 1929 she was in the spotlight as the result of a romance with Prince Luis de Bourbon, cousin of the former King Alfonso of Spain. Their engagement was announced by the Infanta Eulalia, mother of the Prince, but was subsequently broken and the Prince married the 73-year-old Princess Marie Charlotte Constance de Broglie, of France.

Won't Roll 'Seven,' Gambler Jailed

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 17.—(AP.)—A Negro, accused of gambling, brought his own dice into court yesterday, but wouldn't risk his case on them.

Told by the municipal judge he would be freed if he could "roll a seven" with the dice, the Negro refused. The dice were "loaded." He was sentenced to 30 days in jail for gambling.

FLIERS TO ROME CONFIDENT OF SAFE RETURN

ENNIS, Irish Free State, May 17.—(AP.)—Firm conviction that they can conquer the Atlantic on the return trip to New York was expressed by Capt. George Pond and Lieut. Cesare Sabelli as they set out by automobile this morning for a visit to Dublin.

Capt. Bond declared when reminded that the westward crossing is more hazardous than the east-bound trip:

"The same power that helped us get this far can help us get back to America again.

"I have no doubt we can make the return journey safely.

"The experience gained on our trip out will be of much assistance to us."

Portmarnock, near Dublin on the Irish Sea, has been chosen as the taking off point for the return flight.

The airmen hope to be able to continue their flight to Rome Saturday morning, intending to remain there only a short time, then fly back to Dublin and have their plane completely overhauled.

While mechanics from the Baldonnel Army Airdrome at Dublin worked on the crippled plane in relays in a field near Lahinch, the fliers strolled about this quaint village where they were feted last night by the Chamber of Commerce. Ennis is County Clare's biggest town.

Sabelli, former Italian war ace, was greatly elated this morning at receipt of a message from Premier Mussolini congratulating the aviators on their Atlantic crossing.

Tentatively, they plan to fly from Lahinch to Croydon Airfield, near London, and then on to Rome, where an oqicial greeting awaits them.

MRS. PICCARD MOURNS CAKE

THAMESVILLE, Ont., May 17—(AP.)—Enthusiastic over a "very lovely" trip, marred only by the loss of an angel food cake and a slight accident on landing, Mrs. Jeannette Piccard completed her first balloon flight here yesterday.

The 8 hours and 20 minutes she spent in the air with her husband, Prof. Jean Piccard, noted stratosphere student, and E. J. Hill, gave her the first leg on her qualifications as the first licensed woman balloonist.

She said, in relating her experience:

"We had fine weather and the view was lovely."

The injury to her arm when the balloon bumped down in a field near here, she passed off lightly. She explained:

"I've had worse trouble at home. I was at the front of the basket, and I should have been at the back. Both Mr. Hill and the professor fell on top of me."

More disturbing was the loss of an angel-food cake, which Mrs. Piccard stowed carefully in the basket before the takeoff at Detroit.

Elsie Janis Home Razed by Wreckers

COLUMBUS, O., May 17.—(AP.)—They began tearing down "El-Jan" yesterday, and with it went a thousand memories of Elsie Janis long before she became the toast of the A. E. F.

It has been nearly two decades since the famous actress lived in the old home. She abandoned it shortly after the war.

'GAG' IMPOSED IN GIRL KILLING

International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—Strict silence was imposed today by defense attorneys on Millard R. Hickman, 45, wealthy San Francisco shipping official, accused of attacking and strangling pretty Louise Jeppesen, 23, of Ogden, Utah, in a lonely tunnel of Golden Gate Park here.

Visibly tired and nervous, Hickman greeted newspaper reporters in his cell at the city prison early today. He said:

"I told the truth yesterday when I volunteered information to Capt. of Detectives Charles Dullea."

A shorthand reporter recorded Hickman's voluntary statement to Dullea. Hickman related the gay party in his apartment of a downtorn hotel preceding the discovery of the girl's battered body, the scarf of her dress wound tightly around the neck, in Golden Gate Park at 4:40 a. m. Sunday.

JOBLESS WANT SURPLUS FOOD

Officers of the Unemployed Citizens' League of Allegheny County presented a resolution to City Council today, urging Council to call on the State Emergency Relief Board to send federal surplus food into Pittsburgh.

Council was asked to request George P. Mills, relief director here, to communicate with Harrisburg relief authorities for the purpose of obtaining surplus food stuffs if possible.

The Unemployed group argued that thousands of dollars for the purchase of commodities was raised in Pittsburgh in taxes.

The League also sent leters to members of the State Emergency Relief board, charging that the board had deliberately deprived persons of relief with food made available by the Federal Surplus Relief corporation.

TEACHERS' OATH BILL VETOED

Universal Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 17.—The Ives bill, requiring teachers, professors and instructors in public and in private schools and colleges to subscribe to an oath of loyalty to the nation and the state, was vetoed yesterday by Gov. Lehman.

This measure has been the subject of wide discussion by educators and the public. In a veto memorandum the Governor pointed out that there has been "considerable misunderstanding as to what the bill provides."

He said it is similar to the oath or affirmation now required of most of the civil employes, including teachers, instructors and professors when they enter the public service.

Cow to Be Queen! Co-Eds, Mamas Object

SALT LAKE CITY, May 17.—(AP.)—Wood Worsley, editor of the Humbug, humorous campus publication of the University of Utah, recently announced a beauty contest.

But one of the contestants learned the contest was fixed and the winner was not to be one of the campus queens, but a Holstein cow.

COYNE'S FRIEND INDICTED

Tobin is accused of trying to help Tom Coyne, one of the Three Toms who were defendants in the raid on the Monaca Club, win an acquittal.

The state charges Tobin asked D. W. Adams, a state highway patrolman, to approach Robert Hershman, then a state trooper, with a request to testify that he had not seen Coyne in the Oakland club.

Since then, Coyne, convicted and sentenced to six months, has appealed. Co-defendants, Tom Dolan and Tom (Goose) Goslin, are serving six-month terms.

Laundering The Lyrics Of Love

By AIRCASTER

At intervals during the year the censors of the networks feel it incumbent on them to go on a spree of song-laundering.

Every so often these gentlemen scent subtle and surreptitious smut in the lyrical crop and forthwith the words are purified or replaced, the composition tried on the piano, and ultimately released in pristinately released in pristine state to a public which, we hope, hasn't even a mild suspicion of the moral catastrophes so narrowly averted.

More often than not, however, the censors become fevered in their zeal and achieve deeds that are not easy to explain.

Recently, for instance, Julius Seebach, who holds the listeners' morals in his grasp, changed the song, "Love Thy Neighbor" to "Love Your Neighbor," on the grounds that use of the archaic scriptural mandate, was profaning a divine commandment by framing it in a tin pan alley setting.

The song relates to a romantic couple living in the same locality, and not to neighbors in the universal or testamental sense.

Since then, however, both Bing Crosby and Morton Downey have managed to break the rule, and "your" or "thy" is now optional with all CBS singers.

It would be a defiance of tradition of an amusing instance like this were allowed to pass without an echo from the rival chains.

The echo came yesterday from WEAF and WJZ, with the disclosure that the song, "You Nasty Man," has been barred.

SKY-ROCKET

That beautiful red-and-silver plane you saw skylarking over the skyscrapers yesterday afternoon is the 750-horse Curtis-Hawk that Al Williams has been asked to fetch to France this summer, to represent America in the International Air Meet.

When you go "Flying with Al Williams" over KDKA every Saturday night at 6:45, that's the plane.

Al gave New Englanders the thrill of a lifetime last week-end, at Boston's annual air show, then brought his sky-rocket home to Pittsburgh for the first time, to park it at municipal airport.

And so Pittsburgh becomes the home port of a plane that thrills a nation and, if Al chooses, will inspire the whole world at the International Meet the coming summer.

At 9:00 a. m. the premier of "Lessons in Loveliness," a new Friday feature, is scheduled.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Yesterday we initiated Mrs. Almeda Babcock, the famous parachute jumper, into the Globe Trotter family. She admitted that before she went on the radio she was trembling like a leaf. During the broadcast her hands were quivering.

Mrs. Babcock would rather bail out of a fast plane at 3,000 feet than face a couple of inanimate microphones.

She needn't have worried, though, because after the radio interview the calls came in telling how enjoyable her natural appearance was.

Mrs. K., Crafton Heights, called to say that the talk was the most intriguing that she had heard on the air. She liked the extemporary character of the speech. She says it didn't sound as if some one had written it up and she had merely read it.

On the other hand, a lady called to tell me that she thought it was terrible to embarass people over the air, and that all the questions should be asked before the broadcast so that the speaker could have a ready answer.

There are arguments on both sides. In those interviews where it isn't the person but the subject that is of vital importance, I always have the questions I want to ask almost all formed before the broadcast, because appearances of this kind are for the purpose of delivering some particular message, explanation, or description to the Globe Trotters.

When the person himself or herself is the attraction, I like to go on without a rehearsal as if the conversation were taking place in somebody's parlor, or in a club. Then we all can get acquainted at the same time.

Your opinions will be welcome and your wishes carried out.

All about the girl who took a chance on a fur coat . . . .

THERE was once a Girl who bought a Fur Coat that was not all it should be. And when she went anywhere with her Boy Friend, he practically would have MORE of the coat on than she—(the fur was that shedding). So the girl went to the store that sold her the fur and said, "Look, Mr., here is the handful of coat you sold me." And the man said, "Yes, but look at the lining and buttons," and he would not budge from that. The moral of it is (quoting Ed Wynn): Pick your store as you pick your friends. Right now we are making hundreds, yes thousands, of friends in

Cooling, vanishing foot unguent brings instant results—or no cost

DO you suffer with sore, burning, aching feet—with corns, bunions, blisters or callouses? Here's quick, lasting relief—a cooling, pain-easing, stainless vanishing cream that is bringing glorious, all-day foot comfort to thousands.

Dainty! Greaseless!

The origin of this amazing formula dates back centuries to when the people of antiquity sought relief from feet tortured by the hot desert sands. It contains, in dainty, greaseless form the same world-old unguents—frankincense and myrrh—combined with rare, healing, penetrating oils.

Ordinary powders and plasters do not reach the real cause of sore, burning feet. But this marvelous cream, called Coolene, quickly penetrates to the affected parts—soothes the irritated nerves—relieves the congestion—and at once your tired, aching, burning feet feel cool, easy and comfortable.

Coolene is fragrant, greaseless, vanishes instantly and cannot stain. Get a jar today at any good drug store—satisfaction guaranteed, or money back. Sold and recommended by good stores everywhere, such as:

LEAGUE COURT PROTEST GIVEN TO SENATE

the committee room, but he placed in the record an affidavit, attesting the number of signatures. The petition read:

"We protest against the United States participating in the League of Nations or in the World Court of the League of Nations, with or without 'reservations.'

"We petition our federal government to keep our United States 'free from foreign entanglements' as the father of our coutnry wisely enjoined.

"We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

"As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country."

Distinguished American leaders warned that the country's security and independence would be imperiled by adherence to the League of Nations court.

To the ringing applause of a capacity audience, former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, told the Senate committee that internationalist propagandists, financed by Carnegie and Bok millions, are seeking "to pull down the American flag and substitute for it an international rag."

The silver-haired Reed was one of a score of witnesses who declared that by entering the court —"the League's backdoor"—the United States would sacrifice its interests to the whims of European and Asiatic nations.

BACK REED PLEA

Stoutly backing Reed's appeal were ex-Senators George Wharton Pepper, of Pennsylvania, and Otis F. Glenn, of Illinois; J. Reuben Clark, ex-ambassador to Mexico; Edward A. Hayes, national commander of the American Legion; Mrs. Lowel Fletcher Hobart, past national president of the D. A. R., and Daniel F. Cohalan, former justice of New York State Supreme Court, and other witnesses.

Because of the lack of time, 28 others asked to testify were authorized to file statements for the record. As it was, Chairman Pittman allowed the court opponents an extra hour.

FRANCE TO SEEK SEA PARITY

By ARNO-DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

PARIS, May 17.—France, in default and claiming inability to pay her debts to the United States, is planning to embark upon a naval building program that would give her sea-power parity with other European powers, International News Service learned today.

Naval authorities have opened a campaign for the building of battleships and powerful, fast cruisers that would make France master of all her coastlines, whether in the Mediterranean or along the English Channel, and assure uninterrupted communication with her important possessions in Africa.

Plans of the naval authorities for expansion of the nation's sea power were learned as the government took steps to rush through the present session of the Chamber of Deputies a special appropriation of approximately $198,000,000 for national defense.

JAPAN TO AIR ARMS DEMAND

YOKOHAMA, Japan, May 17.—(AP.)—Prince Fumimaro Konoye sailed for the United States today, primed to inform American leaders that Japan at the 1935 naval conference will demand "equal rights in national defense" and abandonment of the present ratio method of naval limitation.

The Prince was given last minute instructions, a high authority revealed, at a breakfast with Japan's naval war lords in Tokio shortly before his departure by train for Yokohama.

The youthful political leader, only recently installed as president of the House of Peers, sailed on the liner Asama Maru bound for San Francisco.

U.S. INCREASING ARMS, PARLEY HOPES WANE

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—With diplomatic dispatches reporting unrest in many sections of the world, this government today moved swiftly forward with plans to strengthen its defense forces.

The Navy Department pushed plans for the immediate construction of 20 new warships in addition to the 34 vessels for which construction plans already are in effect.

The Army awaited bids on 110 new fighting airplanes and worked on specifications for an additional 300 to 400 machines for which bids will be asked soon.

Meanwhile, Ambassador Norman H. Davis departed for Geneva to attend what many fear may be the funeral services of the present disarmament conference. President Roosevelt said Davis would make a new statement of American disarmament policy at the conference, but both the President and Davis let it be known this statement is not likely to contain anything startling.

As to any new moves for disarmament, this government believes Europe should make them.

Germany refuses to rejoin the League of Nations unless granted the right to some re-armament, including establishment of a defensive air force.

France has refused to engage in any more disarmament discussions with Germany outside the league and declares it will not disarm one soldier if Germany is permitted one degree of re-armament.

Italy doesn't believe it possible to get any disarmament, thinks a certain amount of German re-armament should be legalized, and the armaments of other nations maintained at present levels.

Great Britain wants almost any kind of an agreement that doesn't involve more British security pledges to France, and will halt the present trend towards an armament race.

U. S. Set to Join Chaco Peace Drive

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—America's willingness to co-operate in an international movement designed to end the war that is raging between the two little South American republics of Paraguay and Bolivia was announced by Undersecretary of State Phillips today.

Phillips said this government was prepared to do its full share in any movement that is undertaken to bring peace in the Gran Chaco, the jungle territory over the ownership of which Paraguay and Bolivia have been fighting for more than a year.

However, it was explained the government's power to co-operate is limited by Congress, and that the United States could not agree to join in the imposition of an international arms embargo against the belligerents unless the legislative body authorized such action.

Capt. Anthony Eden, British representative, proposed to the League of Nations that it send telegrams to the principal arms exporting nations of the world to cease permitting any more munitions reaching the belligerents.

CURB ON RADIO ADVERTISING LOOMS

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP.)—The government moved further toward regulation of advertising on two fronts today as the Senate took up the Copeland bill and the Federal Trade Commission undertook to scrutinize radio in addition to newspaper advertising.

The Trade Commission, for many years a supervisor of advertising in newspapers, said it had addressed letters to broadcasting corporations asking them to send copies of all advertising broadcasts.

The commission letters said:

"It is anticipated that the radio industry will display the same co-operative spirit as the publishing industry has, to the end that unfair, false and misleading advertising shall be eliminated from interstate commerce."

Passage of the Copeland bill, an outgrowth of the recommendations of the Undersecretary of Agriculture, Rexford G. Tugwell, for regulation of sale and advertising of food and drug products, appeared problematical. Although taken up in the Senate, the House has not begun consideration of the measure.

Under the Trade Commission's proposal, broadcasting stations would henceforth send copies of broadcast once a week. If the commission found objectionable matter it would seek to get an agreement between the broadcaster and the advertiser to desist from the complained-of practice. The commission's letter said:

"The commission has directed that hereafter more attention shall be given to the subject of commercial representations by radio broadcast. This is in response to a general demand that the same rule for advertising be observed in radio broadcasts as those enforced by the commission with respect to periodical advertising."

OPERATE ON BOY SENT BY PLANE

BALTIMORE, May 17.—(AP.)—James Monroe Troutt, III, Virginia Military Institute senior rushed by plane from Roanoke, Va., to Baltimore yesterday underwent an operation today at the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

The operation was performed by Dr. Walter E. Dandy, noted brain specialist. A blood clot, caused by a concussion following an automobile accident May 6, was removed.

The youth, son of Maj. J. M. Troutt, Jr., an Army medical officer, was brought here in an Army transport plane when physicians in Lexington, Va., decided an emergency operation might save his life.

The plane, piloted by Lieut. H. A. Z. McClellan, was sent from Bolling Field in Washington to Roanoke. Accompanying the youth on the trip was his father and Maj. E. F. Harrison, another medical officer.

U. S. INDICTS GETTLE KIDNAPERS TO BLOCK PAROLES

POLITICS

Democratic Leadership Now Dominant

By MARK SHIELDS

Tuesday's primary election inevitably will have its effect upon future contests for party supremacy in Allegheny County among both Democrats and Republicans.

The decisive victory won by the Democratic faction headed by Joseph F. Guffey and County Chairman David L. Lawrence makes that leadership completely dominant, not only in the county, but in the state. Guffey as a candidate for the senatorial nomination, and George H. Earle, his personally - selected candidate for Governor, won by such tremendous margins against opposition factions as to end for some time any debate as to who is the Democratic leader.

Mr. Shields

Lawrence, in Allegheny County, fought by two candidates, one supported by Mayor William N. McNair and the other by the group headed by Maj. E. Lowry Humes and C. G. Llewellyn, was re-elected as county chairman by a vote which made the opposition seem almost ridiculous.

That much for the Democratic party in its internal affairs—though its leaders should recognize that if they are not to suffer the fate of some high-handed and ruthless Republican chiefs they must in some degree remodel their tactics, and recognize for preferment men and women outside the little circle of old-timers, many of whom have been Democratic only as to label.

But within the Republican ranks there is a pot already brewing which bids fair to explode. When the Republican County Committee reorganizes within 30 days, as it must under the party rules, a determined effort will be made to prevent the re-election of William H. Coleman, of McKeesport. While Mr. Coleman was prominent in the campaign here of Attorney General William A. Schnader, the Republican nominee, there are Schnader followers who believe him too close to Senator James J. Coyne, responsible for his selection as successor to County Commissioner William D. Mansfield.

Behind Scenes Battle Impending

There will be no simple solution to this problem, though the whole controversy may be fought out behind the scenes and harmony may reign when the Republicans eventually gather in North Side Carnegie Hall for their traditional organization. If there is no harmony prior to that, do not be surprised if William B. McFall, who was campaign manager for Schnader here, and Joseph H. Bialas, who had the much more onerous job of treasurer, rise in their forensic fastidiousness and assert that Mr. Coleman should not continue, nor should any man previously closely affiliated with him.

Former Mayor John S. Herron and the ward chairmen following him, who engaged in the Schnader campaign, already are intimating that they should have something to say about the chairmanship. Mr. Herron and his aides in the campaign sought to spread the impression that they were no longer on the same team with Coyne, and for that reason think they should receive full consideration in the naming of a chairman.

It is assumed that the eventual arbitration of this controversy will be laid before Mr. Schnader, now the party candidate for the most important public office, and that State Chairman Edward Martin also may be called in to discuss the situation, it never being so important to the Republican party as now that there be harmony when time comes to face a common foe next November.

The real friends of Mr. Schnader here recognize that necessity. For that reason it is presumed that they will sit down with the various factions in the county in an endeavor to work out some cohesive program. This would mean that there would be consultation with Attorney Charles J. Margiotti, who as a gubernatorial candidate carried Allegheny County in the face of the city Republican machine and the county officeholders. They also would talk with Senator Frank J. Harris, who was no last-minute friend to Mr. Margiotti, and was a factor in his success.

Presumably there would be conferences with Judge Ralph H. Smith, leader of the forces in Allegheny County for Gov. Pinchot, who carried the county over Senator David A. Reed for the senatorial nomination.

Margiotti Ranks as Potential Candidate

There might even be a few pleasant words with County Controller Robert G. Woodside, County Treasurer Robert S. Cain and Recorder of Deeds Samuel D. Foster, who as leader of the Shannon campaign were enthusiastic but did not qualify as able campaign managers.

If Mr. Coleman is to be shunted aside, there is within the Margiotti ranks a potential candidate, who has been spoken of before, though whether he has been considered by the Schnader management is unknown. He would receive the support of many leaders who were for Shannon, has roots within the organization, but always has managed to keep himself in a position where he was highly regarded by the independents, including many in the Pinchot camp.

That candidate is James H. Duff, of Carnegie, a delegate to the last Republican national convention. He was western campaign manager for Margiotti, and can get Mr. Schnader support in districts in which he will need it badly, and in which he did not get it in the Tuesday primary.

TODAY: You Meet Three Kidnapers -:- By ARTHUR BRISBANE

showed him their confessions and asked, 'What have you to say now?"

He replied:

"What CAN I say? Yes, I was in it, I did it. But take these handcuffs off, and I'll dash those two guys' heads together and bash their brains out."

THEY ALL answer questions readily.

Kirk says:

"How did I get into this? Through prohibition and bootlegging. As a welder in good times I made $35 a day on piecework. Times got worse and I could only make four or five dollars, if I could get a job.

"It was easy to slip into bootlegging. I wasn't as big as they say, but I was in the big money. I made up to a thousand dollars a day, and when prohibition stopped, I had the habit of making big money. You don't go back to four or five dollars a day and perhaps no job, if you can help it after $1,000 a day. Kidnaping seemed easy enough, especially as I didn't mean to hurt anybody, and I didn't hurt anybody."

Police verify Kirk's story thus far, saying:

"Yes, when prohibition died on him, he went quite naturally from bootlegging to 'snatching.'"

"Snatching" is the technical word for kidnaping. While Kirk talks, the other two sit with hands folded. You ask to see the palms of their hands. Kirk's and Kerrigan's palms are soft and smooth. Brown-eyed Williams, "the finger," has heavy callouses on his hands. He never got "in the big money."

The police believe he was "planted" to work on the pool job at Mr. Gettle's estate, expressly to act as "finger man."

You ask Williams how he happened to become a tool and "finger man" and whether he was ever a bootlegger.

He replies:

"No, I have been running a little chicken farm at Riverside for the last seven years. I've got the farm rented now. Once in a while I would go down and get some whisky from Kirk for a little party, that's how I got in with them."

The police believe that.

KERRIGAN, SITTING between Kirk and Williams, has extremely thick dark hair, and is of dark complexion, although his eyes are light blue. More downcast than the other two, he was not actually present at the kidnaping, although equally guilty as an accessory, before and after Mr. Gettle was captured.

None of the three men were in the Army. Kirk, 38, says:

The "finger man" smiles and points to his left brown eye, with a heavy cataract:

"Look at that. I can hardly see out of it. They turned me down, but four days before the Armistice they called me up again thinking they could use me somehow."

The "finger man" Williams, who got dragged in "because I thought I might as well make a little easy money, too," is absolutely bald, a rim of brown hair running along each side of his head. The uncertainties and perplexities of this life are too much for him, but he smiles when you speak to him.

NEVER AGAIN put faith in physiognomy, or try to read character in the human face. If you saw Kirk with his big blue eyes and blooming blonde complexion, in a railroad station, you would say to him without a moment's hesitation:

"Hold my baby (or valise) while I get my ticket."

And of Kerrigan with the thick, waving locks combed straight back from his forehead, you would say that if he had had a chance and a better shaped head, he might have been a poet.

As for Williams, with the defective brown eye, and the sad fate of the "finger man" who gets caught, with a little training his chubby personality might have made him rich as a clown in the circus. Here you see nothing of the "Bill Sykes" type, or Captain Kidd ferocity. Kerrigan, tall and thin, and Williams, short and stout, seemed like a sort of futile Don Quixote and Sancho Panza of crime.

AFTER THE CASE had been "knocked over" by that card in Kirk's pocket, and police approached the "hideout" on Rosemont avenue, Kerrigan made his "getaway," squeezing through a hedge at the side of the house.

Sancho Panza, "Finger Man" Williams says dolefully tried, but was too fat to squeeze through the hedge. There was nothing but to go back, sit in the house and wait to be caught." That he did.

Kerrigan said:

"I took it on the run, without any coat. I knew they had Gettle. I went to a drug store, ordered a cup of coffee, and sat down, listening to people talk about us and a description of myself coming in over the radio. Then I knew we were cooked. So I called up a lawyer named Lucas, and told him to come out and get me and deliver me."

The police confirm this. Lawyer Lucas did so, and with all three kidnapers jailed, the entire case was "knocked over." Gettle back with his family without paying any ransom. Police are not quite sure there was no fourth man in the plot, but have no reason for thinking there was a fourth.

If there was a fourth man, it will be impossible for little Sancho Panza "finger man" not to tell about it sooner or later.

THE POLICE say that the men are connected with no other gang. Their armament of death-dealing weapons was not formidable. Asked: "What guns did you have?" Kirk replies, truthfully, according to police:

"Nothing much. We had one 32.20 six shooter and one 0.38 automatic. Machine gun? No, none of that, and I wouldn't know how to use one."

Kirk is married, his wife in California, and he has one child three years old, as you learn later. When you start to ask him about children, his face suddenly changes, his head drops, his lip trembles, he says: "Do me a favor." You do not press that point.

Captain Bright says:

"Queer, but that's how they are. When it is their own child, that gets them."

SHERIFF BISCAILUZ appearing at the door says: "Kirk, stand up." Kirk remarking aside, "They keep me busy all the time," stands up obediently. And through the door you see staring at him, hard, half a dozen "young rising American business men."

They are officers from two branches of the Bank of America at Pasadena, come over to identify Kirk, if they can, as the gentleman that held up the two banks, one last September, the other last June, getting twenty-two hundred dollars from one and a little more from the other.

"FINGER MAN" WILLIAMS, not married, is "free as the air" except for San Quentin Prison, just ahead.

Kerrigan says:

"Yes, I am married, common-law, if there is any such thing in California."

Walter Naughton of the Los Angeles Examiner, son of the late W. W. Naughton that everybody knew as sporting editor of the San Francisco Examiner, accompanying the expedition as a sort of "Virgil" says there is no "common-law marriage in California."

Part of the four-hour conversation is devoted to what the three men think of "life imprisonment," ahead of them. All dread imprisonment, and agree with Kerrigan's:

"I suppose we will all be dopes, by the time we get out. We won't know anything."

Kirk says:

"If they will let me work outdoors, in the open air, I don't care what else they do."

Lynn Slaten, another young "Virgil," from the Los Angeles Examiner, tells the kidnapers that they work only four hours a day in San Quentin, some times six hours when things are very busy, never more.

They have motion pictures and other things, and there are no punishments if they behave.

THEY ARE reminded by the writer that they are fortunate to be where they are, under "life sentence" that will mean fifteen to eighteen years, unless an additional conviction by United States authorities should stretch it out.

If they were still at large, they would be hunted as long as they lived, and undoubtedly shot or captured one at a time. A young reporter tells them that there is nothing to prevent their coming out of prison much better men, fifteen or twenty years hence, if they choose, they will have a good prison library with no rule against thinking or planning.

Also he bids them remember that John Bunyan would never have written "Pilgrim's Progress" if he hadn't been put in jail, that Homer and Milton were blind, which is worse than being in prison, when one wrote the Illiad, and the other Paradise Lost.

Williams the "finger man," seems impressed. Homer, Milton and Bunyan are evidently new to him.

Kirk, whose mind is evidently working while the other two minds are at rest, philosophies:

"You go easily from one thing to another. When my welding job was all shot, with prohibition there it seemed natural enough to go into bootlegging. Nobody criticized you for that. Everybody was either bootlegging or buying from bootleggers.

'Then prohibition went and bootlegging stopped suddenly. I had been in the big money, one thousand dollars a day in good times."

That was how he happened to go from bootlegging to kidnaping. He believes that he never would have gone directly into kidnaping from welding pipe.

How many others that were "in the big money" of the prohibition bootleg crime wave will now "take up" "snatching," or kidnaping, remains to be seen. The fate of Kirk, Kerrigan and "Finger Man" Williams, should warn them.

THE POLICE say that newspapers were most helpful in the kidnaping case. Kirk remarked to one young Examiner man, "you boys printed some awful fakes," which is true. For instance, they printed a letter sent to the Gettle family, offering to return Gettle for $40,000. This letter, written by the police, was sent to newspapers with the understanding that it was "made up" with a hope that it would worry the kidnapers. It did worry them. They called up at once, saying:

"Don't pay any attention to that $40,000 man. He is a fake."

Captain Bright says:

"They were afraid some one else would get in on the money."

The three kidnapers are not drinking men, and unlike many criminals, not one, according to police doctors, is a drug addict.

NOW COMES the last chapter dealing with two "molls," two miserable young women brought into the case as companions and tools of the kidnapers. Such unhappy victims of men and their crimes are always called "molls" to police and real newspapermen, no matter what their real names.

"We have their two girls upstairs, do you want to see them?"

It is unpleasant, but you do see them.

First, all in white, tall and commanding with a face as regular, beautiful and severe as that of Minerva or Juno, you meet Mrs. Vada C. Sullivan, chief matron of the women's prison.

One glance and you know that if she gave an order any normal being would say "Yes, ma'm," and do it. Asked if she carries a gun:

"No, no weapons of any kind back of the bars in here. No officer, man or women, in the prison has a gun. They might take it away from you and use it."

You surprise her, asking:

"Are you ever afraid?"

"No, I never saw anything yet that I am afraid of."

"Send me Lauretta Woody and Joan Ward."

Under those names the two "molls" are booked and while they are coming Mrs. Sullivan says:

"You couldn't help feeling kind of sorry for Woody, from what she told me this morning. She couldn't get along with her stepmother, left home at seventeen, has been making her way ever since, and found it pretty tough. She is 23 now."

Mrs. Sullivan continues:

"Woody said to me 'Kerrigan was kind to me, can you wonder that I fell in love with him? No man had ever treated me kindly before. I was married once and that was worst of all.'"

The two girls come in, dressed in prison-made denim, patched, here and there, with black sweaters supplied by the prison, bought outside.

She tells you:

"My real name is Mona Gallighen."

They are held on suspicion of knowing about the kidnaping, which would make them accessories, subject to long terms in prison. They deny that their men ever told them anything about the kidnaping.

Mrs. Sullivan asked:

"Where did you think they were, out all night?"

One replies:

"Bootlegging, of course, that's respectable enough, isn't it?"

If they stick to their story if no proof is found, and their men do not tell, the young women will go free.

They are asked:

"Have you any money?"

And Mona Gallighen, thin, worried, pathetic, says:

"Yes, I have fifteen dollars, and I will divide it with her," (pointing to Lauretta Woody) "while it lasts, and until she gets some."

Lauretta Woody says:

"I think I'll get some, that is if I am not ostracized now by all the few people I know."

Mona suggests:

And Lauretta agrees.

Lauretta is the common-law wife to whom Kerrigan referred:

"If there is any such thing in California."

Mrs. Sullivan says:

"Mona Gallighen feels so badly, because she has only just found out that Kirk is married and has one three-year-old child, a girl, in San Francisco."

And, Mrs. Sullivan adds:

Mona Gallighen met Kirk, she says, two years ago at a club, when she was nineteen.

Now that she knows that Kirk is married, Mona Gallighen seems altogether discouraged, but there is plenty of animation and spirit left in Lauretta Woody.

MRS. SULLIVAN announces:

"If you are through, I am going to take the girls down to see their boy friends. Do you want to go?"

You think not, and that ends the four and a half hour interview with the three kidnapers and their two "molls," and like other things in life, the five prove to be not very strange or unusual, when you come close to them.

P. S.—SINCE the interview the kidnapers and the two young women have been arraigned in a United States court, charged with sending letters of extortion through the mails. All have pleaded not guilty, all indicted, and will be brought to trial, May 29. If convicted they may be sentenced to forty-two years in prison and twenty thousand dollars fine each under the federal law, which knows no parole. That would mean REAL LIFE IMPRISONMENT.

P. P. S.—IF YOU had been a newspaper man for fifty years, and had observed what "civilization," and some men in it, do to girls thrown out into the gutters of a big city; if you knew how little chance they have, how entirely they are at the mercy of the criminals that own them, you would divide any prison term for those girls among the men and seek some way to atone, to those unhappy young women, for the horrible life forced upon them.

WILLIAM F. GETTLE REUNITED WITH HIS INVALID WIFE

FOURTH HELD IN OIL MAN'S ABDUCTION

Federal Prosecutor Asks Fast Trial as Warning on Crime

International News Service.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., May 17.—Prison doors closed with a definite finality today on the trio of kidnapers who, a week ago, "snatched" William F. Gettle, millionaire oil man, and held him for $60,000 ransom.

Brought here during the night from Los Angeles, James Kirk, Larry Kerrigan and Roy Williams arrived soon after prison officials began the routine business of officially receiving new inmates.

The three had confessed to the kidnaping of Gettle, pleaded guilty, and received life sentences all within the space of 24 hours as the State of California moved speedily to deal the 'snatch racket" a telling blow.

Kirk is well known in Richmond, near here, and many of his former friends were at the station when he arrived. Some of them greeted him with "Hello, Jimmy."

Asked about the June Robles kidnaping case, Kirk smiled wryly and refused to comment.

FORGERY CHARGED

Blayney Matthews, Los Angeles deputy attorney, said the kidnapers decided to snatch Gettle because they figured he was "an easy mark." He said that Kirk, in 1931, forged Gettle's name to a $250 check but that Gettle did not prosecute him.

Within a few minutes after Los Angeles deputy sheriffs removed tight leg irons and handcuffs Larry Kerrigan was convict No. 56038; Jimmy Kirk, No. 56039 and Ray Williams, No. 56040.

As the kidnapers entered San Quentin Prison, the federal government moved to make sure of their incarceration for the rest of their natural lives by indicting them under United States postal laws.

Shortly after the trio boarded the train under heavy guard for prison, police arrested a fourth suspect in the case, Clyde Stoddard, an alleged former booze runner.

Stoddard was arrested as a result of the discovery of an automobile in the garage of the La Crescenta bungalow where Gettle was held captive after being abducted from his $250,000 Arcadia estate.

WOMEN IN JAIL

The automobile was registered to another man, but Stoddard admitted owning it, according to Police Capt. William Bright, who said, however, that Stoddard had denied all knowledge of the kidnaping.

Gettle had told detectives he had heard four men talking in the house where he was held prisoner five days.

Meanwhile the two women arrested in the sensational roundup of the snatch gang were back in jail in lieu of $50,000 each following their pleas of not guilty to charges of sending extortionary letters through the mail.

The pair, Mona Gallighen, alias Joan Burke, and Loretta Woody, were indicted with Kirk, Kerrigan and Williams by a federal grand jury.

TRIAL MAY 29 SEEN

The men probably will be returned here from San Quentin May 29 to stand trial in Federal Court.

The federal government moved for an immediate trial "in view of the importance of this case as a warning to criminals," according to United States Attorney Peirson Hall.

Stoddard, the fourth suspect, said that he had received a telephone call from Larry Kerrigan, alias Loren Feltus, early Sunday night requesting that he drive the car to a Los Angeles apartment, where Kirk, "boss man" of the kidnaping, was arrested Monday.

Kerrigan was not present when he drove up, Stoddard told officers, but Kirk took the wheel, driving Stoddard to his home, and then departing. Stoddard said he then took a woman friend to a theater.

Kirk, Williams and Kerrigan were hustled aboard the train for prison last night an hour before the train was scheduled to depart —and exactly one week after Kirk and Williams, masked and armed, had abducted Gettle from his country estate.

WIFE FIGHTING MAIL DIVORCE

Elizabeth M. Leiding, of 818 Walnut street, Edgewood, whose husband, Elmer C. Leiding, has been seeking a mail-order Mexican divorce from her, has filed a cross suit in Common Pleas Court here against her husband.

Arthur I. Zeiger, counsel for the woman, also presented a petition attacking the legality of divorces obtained in Mexico, Reno or Paris but Judge Thomas M. Marshall refused to act on the petition, on grounds that Mexican divorces are not recognized in Pennsylvania.

It was also explained that Reno and Paris divorces are not legal in this state unless proper notice is given.

Man Robbed, Slugged In Baum Boulevard

PUPILS FIGHT SEX TALKS

MONTICELLO, Ark., May 17.—(AP.)—Frank Horsfall, president of Monticello A. and M. State College, who quit dancing when he was young because he found it a possible occasion of sin, said yesterday when the head of a college loses control or influence over the students he "ought to be ousted."

Taking the stand for the second time in a hearing ordered by Gov. Futrell, after 227 of the some 300 students of the college, had charged the president was "dictatorial" and crudely referred to sex problems in chapel talks, President Horsfall told Robert Wilson, students' attorney, a man who loses control should be put out, but at the same time termed the present student dissension "a rebellion against organized authority."

The demand for the resignation of Horsfall, who has headed the institution since its establishment in 1911, except for two years, came as a climax to a day and a night of testimony by students, members of the faculty and President Horsfall himself.

Dorothy Tells New Story Of Gun

Synopsis

Nick Charles, noted detective, who tells the story of "The Thin Man," and Nick's wife, Nora, meet Dorothy Wynant, daughter of a former client, in a speakeasy. Dorothy asks where her father is and Nick refers her to Herbert Macaulay, Wynant's attorney. Macaulay calls on Nick and tells him Mimi, Wynant's divorced wife, is hunting him.

Next day Nick reads of the murder of Julia Wolf, Wynant's secretary. Mimi found the body when she went to get Wynant's address.

While a Mr. Norman is telephoning to Nick a loud report as of a shot is heard and his words end abruptly.

It is learned Julia was a former sweetheart of a racketeer.

Dorothy appears at Nick's apartment and flashes a gun which she says she got in a speakeasy. She is drunk and Nora puts her to bed. Morelli, a gangster, is suspected in Julia's murder.

Now go on with Charles' narrative.

By DASHIELL HAMMETT

(Soon to appear on the screen at Loew's Penn Theater as a thrilling motion picture made by Cosmopolitan Production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.)

Then Dorothy spoke rapidly: "But mamma doesn't expect you. I don't even know whether she'll be there. The papers said you were dying. She doesn't think you're coming.

"So much the better," I said. "We'll surprise them."

She put her face, white now, close to mine, spilling some of her drink on my sleeve in her excitement. "Don't go. You can't go there now. Listen to me. Listen to Nora. You can't go." She turned her white face around to look up at Nora. "Can he? Tell him he can't."

Nora, not shifting the focus of her dark eyes from my face, said: "Wait, Dorothy. He ought to know what's best. What is it, Nick?"

I made a face at her. "I'm just fumbling around. If you say Dorothy stays here, she stays. I guess she can sleep with Asta. But you've got to leave me alone on the rest of it. I don't know what I'm going to do because I don't know what's being done to me. I've got to find out. I've got to find out in my own way."

"We won't interfere," Dorothy said. "Will we, Nora?"

I asked Dorothy: "Where'd you get that gun? And nothing out of books this time."

"Careful," I said. "If it's another piece of chewing gum, I'll phone Mimi to come get you."

With Quinn

"Give her a chance," Nora said.

Dorothy cleared her throat again. "Can—can I tell you something that happened to me when I was a little child?"

"Has it got anything to do with the gun?"

"Not exactly, but it'll help you understand why I—"

"Not now. Some other time. Where'd you get the gun?"

"I wish you'd let me." She hung her head.

"Where'd you get the gun?"

I said: "I knew we'd get the truth at last." Nora frowned and shook her head at me. "All right, say you did. What speakeasy?"

Dorthy raised her head. "I don't know. It was on Tenth avenue, I think. Your friend Mr. Quinn would know. He took me there."

"Yes."

"By accident, I suppose."

She looked reproachfully at me. "I'm trying to tell you the truth, Nick. I'd promised to meet him at a place called the Palma Club. He wrote the address down for me. So after I said good-night to you and Nora, I met him there and we went to a lot of places, winding up in this place where I got the gun. It was an awful tough place. You can ask him if I'm not telling the truth."

"Quinn get the gun for you?"

"No. He'd passed out then. He was sleeping with his head on the table. I left him there. They said they'd get him home all right."

"And the gun?"

In Gunman's Hangout

"I'm coming to it." She began to blush. "He told me it was a gunman's hangout. That's why I'd said let's go there. And after he went to sleep I got to talking to a man there, an awful tough-looking man. I was fascinated. And all the time I didn't want to go home. I wanted to come back here, but I didn't know if you'd let me." Her face was quite red now and in her embarrassment she blurred her words.

"So I thought perhaps if I—if you thought I was in a terrible fix—and, besides, this way I wouldn't feel so silly. Anyhow, I asked this awful tough-looking gangster, or whatever he was, if he would sell me a pistol or tell me where I could buy one. He thought I was kidding and laughed at first, but I told him I wasn't, and then he kept on grinning, but said he'd see, and when he came back he said yes, he could get me one and asked how much I would pay for it. I didn't have much money, but I offered him my bracelet, but I guess he didn't think it was any good, because he said no, he'd have to have cash, so finally I gave him twelve dollars—all I had but a dollar for the taxi—and he gave me the pistol and I came over here and made up that about being afraid to go home because of Chris."

She finished so rapidly her words ran together, and she sighed as if very glad to have finished.

"Then Chris hasn't been making passes at you?"

She bit her lip. "Yes, but not—not that bad."

Both Visit Julia

She put both hands on my arm, and her face almost touched mine. "You've got to believe me. I couldn't tell you all that, couldn't make myself out such a cheap little lying fool, if it wasn't the truth."

"It makes more sense if I don't believe you," I said. "Twelve bucks isn't enough money. We'll let that rest for a minute, though. Did you know Mimi was going to see Julia Wolf that afternoon?"

"No. I didn't even know she was trying to find my father then. They didn't say where they were going that afternoon.

"They?"

"What time was that?"

She wrinkled her forehead. "It must've been pretty close to 3 o'clock—after 2:30, anyway—because I remember I was late for a date to go shopping with Elsie Hamilton and was hurrying into my clothes."

"They come back together?"

"I don't know. They were both home before I came."

"What time was that?"

"Some time after 6. Nick, you don't think they— Oh, I remember something she said while she was dressing. I don't know what Chris said, but she said: 'When I ask her she'll tell me,' in that Queen-of-France way she talks sometimes. You know. I didn't hear anything else. Does that mean anything?"

"What'd she tell you about the murder when you came home?"

"Oh, just about finding her and how upset she was and about the police and everything."

"She seem very shocked?"

Family 'Broke'

Dorothy shook her head. "No, just excited. You know Mamma." She stared at me for a moment, asked slowly: "You don't think she had anything to do with it?"

"What do you think?"

"I hadn't thought. I just thought about my father." A little later she said gravely: "If he did it, it's because he's crazy, but she'd kill somebody if she wanted to."

"It doesn't have to be either of them." I reminded her. "The police seem to have picked Morelli. What'd she want to find your father for?"

"For money. We're broke: Christ spent it all." She pulled down the corners of her mouth. "I suppose we all helped, but he spent most of it. Mamma's afraid he'll leave her if she hasn't any money."

"How do you know that?"

"I've heard them talk."

"Do you think he will?"

She nodded with certainty. "Unless she has money."

I looked at my watch and said: "The rest of it'll have to wait till we get back. You can stay here tonight, anyhow. Make yourself comfortable and have the restaurant send up your dinner. It's probably better if you don't go out."

She stared miserably at me and said nothing.

Nora patted her shoulder. "I don't know what he's doing, Dorothy, but if he says we ought to go there for dinner he probably knows what he's talking about. He wouldn't—"

Dorothy smiled and jumped up from the floor. "I believe you. I won't be silly any more."

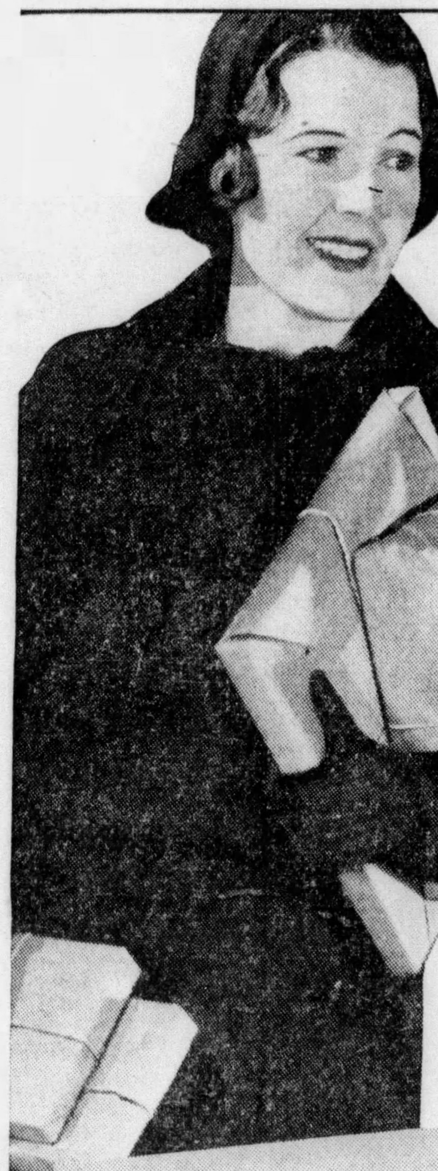
"SHOPPING...THERE'S A REAL TEST OF NERVES, TOO, MR. BUCK!"

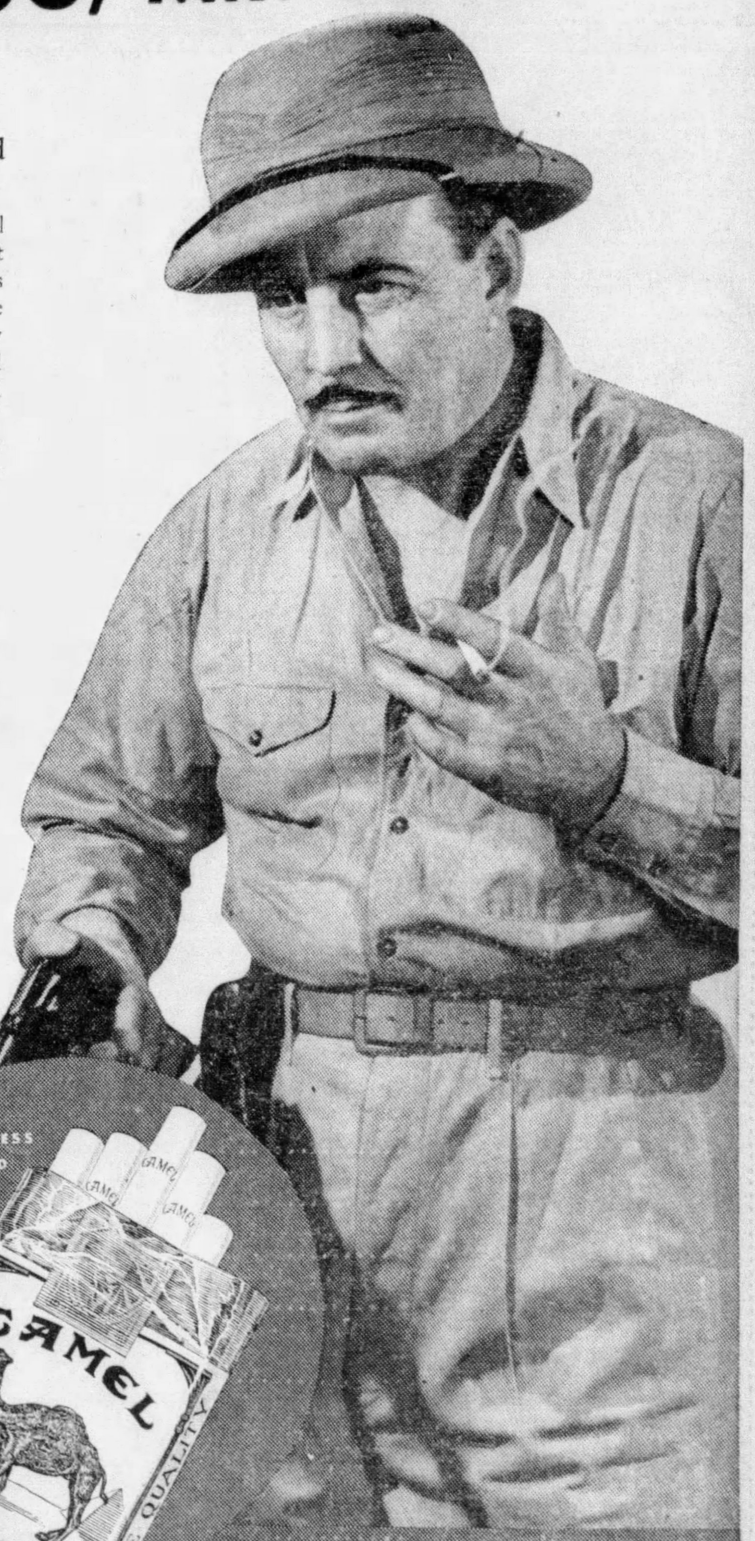


Listen to what Mrs. Abbot J. Copeland has to say on shopping—and nerves:

"There's no doubt in the world that healthy nerves are vital to a man who goes out and catches wild animals alive. But take it from a busy wife and mother who spends many hours each week searching through the stores—anxious to make the family budget reach as far as possible—you need healthy nerves to be a shopper, too! Tramping through miles and miles of aisles...pricing, comparing, judging quality and values...well, that's a test of anyone's nerves. 'Nerves' don't ever bother me, though. As for cigarettes, I smoke Camels. They don't upset my nerves. And I have never tasted such flavor and mildness."

Frank Buck, who has brought back many tons of wild cargo from the jungles of Asia, says:

"It takes healthy nerves to bring 'em back alive. It's a job packed with thrills, excitement, and real danger. I never would have been able to populate half the zoos in this country, cross the Pacific 20 times with tons of savage live cargo, and save my own life a half dozen times by quick action if I didn't have healthy nerves. I am a heavy smoker. I prefer Camels, knowing that I can safely smoke all I want without upsetting my nerves."



How Are YOUR Nerves?

Jangled nerves are apt to visit us all. You know the signs—telephone slamming, frowning, hot words that wound others, worrying and fuming over trifles.

If you are inclined toward jumpy nerves check up now—on your eating and sleeping, your habits of work and play. Make Camels your cigarette. They never get on your nerves.

If you have experienced the aftertaste often associated with flat-tasting cigarettes, or the "sweet" type, you will appreciate the mildness and rich flavor of Camels. And you can smoke them all you want. For Camel's costlier tobaccos never jangle your nerves.

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand.

G. O. P. PRIMARY WINNERS FACE HARD BATTLE IN FALL

UPSETS MARK RETURNS IN COUNTY

With Allegheny County's primaries unofficially cleared and doubt as to the winners settled in all but a few cases, political eyes today turned towards the fall election when, for the first time in generations, a strong Democrat party faces the traditionally strong Republican party.

Candidates crossed the lines in some instances, but in most cases all but complete returns indicate the regular organization candidates put the independents or insurgents to flight. The official count will begin tomorrow at noon, when the return board is slated to organize.

The vote to be tabulated represents the expression of only about half of the registered voters of the county. Less than 50 per cent of the registered Republicans voted and slightly more than 50 per cent of the registered Democrats, it was estimated at the Elections Bureau this morning.

In some districts the vote was believed to have fallen as low as 10 per cent.

PINCHOT WINS IN COUNTY

While United States Senator David Aiken Reed won the nomination over Gov. Gifford Pinchot, the latter carried Allegheny County.

The vote complete in 944 districts was:

Pinchot	82,819
Reed	76,438

Charles J. Margiotti, running third in the state to William A. Schnader, first, and Gen. Edward C. Shannon, second, led both in Allegheny County. Thomas A. Phillips, Jr., ran fourth.

Complete records gave the governorship candidates:

Margiotti	49,106
Schnader	42,906
Shannon	41,367
Phillips	22,009
McSparran	3,691

Joseph F. Guffey and George Earle won by sweeping margins the Democrat nominations for United States Senate and Governor, respectively.

With five districts missing, the United States Senate poll in the county was:

Guffey	77,256
Morris	42,866

20,000 FOR M'NAIR

Mayor William N. McNair, who was a Democrat candidate for Governor, polled a little over 20,000 votes in Allegheny County.

His secretary, Theodore L. Moritz, won the Democrat nomination to Congress in the Thirty-second District, and will oppose Michael J. Muldowney, Republican, in the fall.

Staging a comeback in the Republican ranks by winning a legislative nomination in the Eighth District was William H. Robertson. A former city councilman for many years, he is paired with Edward Hough in an attempt to wrest back to the Republicans a seat taken in the Democratic landslide last year.

UPSETS RECORDED

Other upsets were the defeats of Jacob Shenkel, who was elected a Democratic Assemblyman last year in the Sixth District, then threw his lot with the Republicans, and Joseph A. Rectenwald, a Representative from the Twelfth District.

The loss of the Democratic nomination by Congressman Clyde Kelly to James L. Quinn, State Representative, breaks a custom of many years during which Kelly won both party nominations. Kelly, however, was the Republican choice by a large margin.

Late totals made no changes in the major office winners, but George Rankin, Jr., of Wilkinsburg, former banker, nosed ahead to win the Democratic nomination for State Senator, after early returns indicated Alexander Cooper would win it.

LAST-MINUTE GAIN

A last-minute gain failed to put Joseph Lynch and John Scorza, incumbent First District State Representatives, ahead on either Republican or Democratic tickets, newcomers to political ranks winning the places.

William J. Gallagher gained rapidly enough to move Dr. George S. Sarraf out of a place on the Republican slate of the Second Legislative District, Gallagher and P. J. Maloney, incumbents, taking the Republican nominatoins. Sarraf won a Democratic place, however.

Jacob Yeager, former legislator, won on both tickets in the Sixth District. He was out of the Legislature for two terms. With him, on both slates, came a newcomer, James T. Philpott, protege of former Congressman Harry Estep.

CLOSE FIGHT IN 34TH

Congressman Matthew A. Dunn was credited with the Republican and Democratic nominations in the Thirty-Fourth District after a close race with Guy E. Campbell for the Republican nomination for Congress. Complete unofficial returns are:

Dunn, 10,237; Campbell, 9,518.

Thirtieth District.

REPUBLICAN

Erk	18,893
Gibbs	4,935
Freese	4,000

DEMOCRATIC

DENIAL JOINED BY MARGIOTTI

International News Service.

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., May 17.—Charles J. Margiotti, defeated candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, denied rumors here today that he had been approached by Gov. Gifford Pinchot on the matter of "teaming up" on an independent ticket in the November general election.

The Governor, who lost the Republican gubernatorial nomination to United States Senator David A. Reed, previously stated he has not invited the noted Punxsutawney attorney to join him in a third party campaign.

"I have not been approached by Gov. Pinchot or anybody else concerning a third party ticket in the fall. That rumor arose when a newspaperman in Philadelphia asked Gov. Pinchot whether or not he intended coupling up with me for a third party campaign.

"The Governor stated he has not talked with me on the subject and the statement reputed to have been made by my Pittsburgh headquarters that I would make a statement today about the third party is without foundation.

"I have nothing to say at this time beyond expressing my thanks to those who so loyally supported me."

in a field of 16. The Governor, at his home in Milford, said:

"I have no comment to make on anything political at the present time, but I certainly have not invited Margiotti to join me in a third party movement."

Margiotti's headquarters said he would issue a statement outlining his position today.

ORGANIZATIONS CONTROL

Both Reed and Guffey were carried to victory on the crest of a tide of ballots which restored organization control where it had been undermined a year ago.

Attorney General William A. Schnader won the gubernatorial nomination among the Republicans with a 3 to 2 advantage over his nearest opponent, Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon. Margiotti ran third.

In the Democratic party, George H. Earle, former Minister to Austria, was designated for the governorship in a 5 to 2 landslide which buried Judge Charles D. Copeland. Guffey defeated Roland S. Morris, former Ambassador to Japan and standard-bearer of the opposition, by more than 3 to 1.

REPUBLICAN

Governor—7,658 districts: Margiotti, 187,845; Schnader, 547,685; Shannon, 216,316; *Phillips, 109,780; *McSparran, 41,711. Schnader's plurality, 331,369. *Less than 7,658 districts heard from.

DEMOCRATIC

Governor—7018 districts: (X) Bonniwell, 54,630; (X)-McSparran, 23,534; Copeland, 88,348; Earle, 312,782. Earle's plurality, 224,434. (X)-Less than 7013 districts heard from.

Reed's home county, Allegheny, which includes Pittsburgh, turned him down.

Philadelphia, however, gave Reed a 91,000-vote preference, 163,060 to 71,885. This city, seat of the Republican organization headed by William S. Vare, long has been a thorn in Pinchot's political side.

In the ranks of the state's congressional delegation of 34, of which only two did not seek another term, Alfred M. Waldron, of Philadelphia, apparently was the lone loser among the incumbents. He was defeated for the Republican nomination in the Third District by Clare G. Fenerton, Assistant District Attorney.

The outcome of the Chauncey W. Parkinson-D. Glenn Moore battle for the Forty-sixth District's nomination was the only uncertainty among incumbents' fates in the senatorial contests.

James S. Boyd, who had been trailing in a field of four in the Twelfth District, came from behind with belated returns to win the nomination.

PINCHOT AIDE CHOOSES JAIL

James Muldowney, 65, of 315 Eighth avenue, Homestead, a Pinchot supporter, has the courage of his convictions and insisted upon going to jail today to prove it.

Fined $10 for an asserted disturbance at the First District polling place in the Municipal Building, where he was a watcher, Muldowney declined to pay.

He chose, instead the alternative sentence of 10 days in the county jail, imposed by Burgess J. J. Cavanaugh, of Homestead. He likewise refused to let friends pay his fine.

Muldowney is said to have tacked a Pinchot-for-Senate poster near the polling place. Another voter attempted to tear it down. Muldowney sought to prevent him. In the argument that followed, Muldowney was arrested.

Vote Worker Found Dead, Missing Day

Mrs. Sarah Farrell, 55, of 2836 Banker street, McKeesport, was found dead in Snake Hollow, Versailles Township, last night, the victim of a heart attack. Mrs. Farrell had been missing since Tuesday night when she left a McKeesport polling place where she had been a watcher for John B. Sweeney, candidate for Democratic county chairman.

Socialists Win 1 Vote in Ambridge

AMBRIDGE, Pa., May 17.—(AP.)—There's a Socialist in Ambridge. Only one vote was cast for that party in the primary election and that was a "split" ticket.

After voting for Franz E. Daniel, Socialist candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs, the voter crossed out the names of other party candidates, writing in the names of Republicans.

PLEDGE MADE BY ELLENBOGEN

Gratitude was expressed by Congressman Henry Ellenbogen to the voters of the Thirty-third Congressional District today following his nomination by an overwhelming vote on both Republican and Democratic tickets. He said:

"The tremendous vote given me shows that the people of my district approve of my record in Congress and of the work which I have been doing. It will spur me to greater efforts."

Attorney Frank J. Zappala, Democratic nominee for Legislature in the Fifth District, issued a statement in appreciation of his support, and promising to intensify his campaign in November.

Blessings on the BLOUSE

NOT FOR YEARS have American women worn such adorably fragile and feminine blouses as the new suits demand. Frothy shirred chiffon, filmy organdy, rich with handwork, natural linen, painstakingly embroidered, handkerchief linen with tiny Valenciennes ruffles—here are blouses such as our mothers and grandmothers knew.

A joy to see, a joy to wear, and a joy to wash—if you trust them only to Silver Dust—the new, quickly dissolving soap for the laundry.

Silver Dust cleans without rubbing or scrubbing. It's safe for any fabric water alone won't harm. And it actually brightens colors.

P. S. SILK STOCKINGS FREE! Send 10 Silver Dust box tops and your stocking size to Silver Dust, 883 Lexington Ave., N.Y. City. A pair of full fashioned sheer silk hose will be mailed to you free. But if you prefer the big dish towel, send only 2 box tops.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Wants to Land Boy, But Uses Wrong Tactics

CAN'T GO OVER! That's her trouble. She wants to LAND SOMEONE. And that someone must be a man—or at least be as Shakespeare said: "God made him, let him pass as a man."

She signs herself WILLING TO TRY. And if that isn't an invitation, boys, I miss my guess.

She gets her beaux all bawled up, until I scarcely can make out which one is uppermost in her heart. And after working ever so long on what appears to be a gigsaw puzzle, I arrive at the conclusion it isn't anyone special she is after. It's just SOMEONE.

Miss Brunot

And can anyone call that LOVE! And don't you, sisters, sort of pitty the poor man?

There is something TOO METALIC in the ring of this girls's emotions.

Dear Miss Brunot:

Perhaps I have less cause than some others to write to you, but here goes my grievance: I am 17, attractive and well dressed. Yet I can't go over! Oh, yes, I have a boy friend. I get all the places. But there is something lacking.

WANTS TO BE POPULAR

I want to be popular. I do think most everybody likes me, yet I want to go out with ever so many boys. There are two or three in particular who would be wonderful to date. They seem to think something of me, friendly, etc. Yet no date. How can I get them?

All three, although they do not have set girls, may soon make selections. I know they would like me. Only there is my boy friend. And that upsets them. Also there is that something about me that doesn't go over! One of these boys is being chased plenty by a popular girl. I am afraid he is swallowing her line. I wouldn't throw myself at any boy. Yet I am losing them all as it stands.

I want to go with a lot of boys, not one, before I settle down. Won't you tell me what to do?

KEPT FROM GOOD TIMES

Maybe you'll think from what I say that I am double-crossing the one I have. But I am not. I like, admire and respect him, and I wouldn't hurt him for the world, but I fear he kee s me from a good time. Please help me land this guy who is being chased by the other girl. I have proof from little things she says and does, she is all for herself. She is a sneak. So why should she always win?

Please help me win.

Lately I've had that dreadful left-out feeling. So I am getting desperate.

WILLING TO TRY.

There are some girls who always do seem to win, where love is. They just get there, by hook or crook, or by casual actions. One of the three ways every time. So if you can't win when with this girl you know, why run around with her! Kipling tells us we go faster when traveling alone.

USES WRONG TACTICS

I fear you are your own trouble where beaux are concerned. You go about getting the boys' attentions as if it were a business instead of a friendly emotion that lead to the church aisle and the altar.

No man likes the girl who brings calculation into her social activities. That seems to be what you are doing. You want to be popular, and you go about it as if you were driving a rivet into a steel framework. That will never put you over, sister.

Popularity with the opposite sex is something everyone cannot have. For they have not the radiation of amiability, good will, companionship essential for such a condition. They are not natural magnets. Yet just because a girl is not the center of everything is no reason why she cannot have many friends and a very good time.

But if you are continually thinking of the theory of things, and the formula for getting your way, the chances are there will be no real love in your heart. And even creatures so unseeing as the boys, may catch on sooner than you imagine.

WHY NOT LET HIM GO?

I quite agree that liking, admiring and respecting a fellow can't make the world go round for you. For LOVE is left out. You'll hurt this boy friend by and by anyway, so why not let him go while the going is good? You may attribute to this other girl qualities she does not possess. Sometimes we only see through our own mirrors, you know.

The idea in my Speak Up, Sister column is to help. If I am a little severe with you, remember it is only so that you wake up, and learn HOW where the very things you want are concerned.

Wm. J. B.—

The writer you mention is not on the staff of the Sun-Telegraph. So I cannot say why she did not answer your letter. Maybe if you would write me, and state what you want, I could help you.

Miss S. R.—

The only suggestion I can make to you is that you exert your will power and overcome your temper. You can do this, for others have done it. Many of us can think back to the time when we lost much through lack of self control. If your love for this young man is as great as you say it is, surely you will master yourself rather than lose him. Here's hoping you succeed!

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

A Sympathetic Word Often Instills Love, Says Fay King

It is so often some small likeable trait that inspires love. Also it is so often some small dislikable fault that kills love.

That is why one can seldom say just when one falls in love, or out of love.

Silly it seems, but no less true.

One would insist that trifles should not count so much in either direction. Yet they do.

On such little things do delight or despair depend. One builds and the other blights.

Too often, when it is too late, one realizes how unimportant were the motives for quarrels and misunderstanding.

Have a care!

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Help Cry Ends Embarrassing Scene

There was such intensity in Hugh Grantland's voice as he spoke his thanks for my escape unharmed from Lee Chow, that I think Lillian and my father were as embarrassed as I at hearing it. But Hugh was oblivious of anything else save his desire for assurance that I was all right.

"You are sure that you have suffered no ill effects from this awful experience?" he demanded, still holding my hands tightly in his.

It took a decisive, almost violent, movemen. on my part to release my hands, but I made it and stepped back a pace as I answered him.

"I am perfectly all right," I told him, smiling in an attempt to soften the rebuff I just had administered. But even in a moment of emotional stress such as this, I could not permit him to stand holding my hands as if we were a love-stricken school boy and his sweetheart.

"You are sure?" he asked again, and I think that an instinctive defense mechanism was as much responsible for my next speech as was my desire for news from the hospital.

MANNER CHANGES

"Perfectly sure," I said, adding quickly, "There is nothing at all which I need except news of my husband. How was he when you left?"

The question brought him back to himself as, I think, nothing else could have done. I saw him stiffen ever so slightly, and then he answered in a voice that had lost its tragic intensity and became merely friendly even commonplace, though a distinct note of sympathy rang through it.

"He was perfectly all right physically, but it is useless to pretend to you that he wasn't worrying. However, Katherine's sedative was beginning to have effect by the time I left, and I am sure that by now he is asleep, and will know nothing more until morning."

'What do you think," I asked, "about—his arm?"

My father interposed quickly—too quickly, or so I imagined.

"What can Hugh possibly know about that?" he asked. "It isn't quite fair to him to ask him such a question."

"Don't say that." Hugh protested "on the contrary, I have a very definate opinion about that arm. I am sure Dick will suffer only temporary inconvenience from it. It will take only a comparatively short time for that superficial wound to heal, and when it does he will be in as good a shape as ever, I am sure."

I found myself wanting to say, in the language of Tom Sawyer's immortal Aunt Polly, "Bless you for that good lie, if it is a lie." But I contented myself with a simple but heartfelt "Thank you," and my father put a question.

ASKS FOR STORY

"Will you go to Lee Chow now?" he asked.

Hugh hesitated.

"If you don't mind," he said, "I'd like to hear the whole thing again from your lips. Both Harry and I felt that it was so imperative that I make haste over here, that he gave me only the sketchiest outline of what had occurred. I'd like to have it a little more complete before I see him."

"You are right in that," my father said approvingly. "Just give me a second, though. I hardly know how to begin. Did Harry tell you when Lee Chow came back to the farm house?"

"No, he didn't," Hugh answered. And then Katie's voice sounded shrilly down the corridor.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Tendency to Gout May Be Hereditary

Dr. Copeland

From a medical point of view, it is interesting to note his frequent references to an affliction called gout. This disease was common in England in the days of Samuel Pepys.

Today, the number of victims of this disease in England, as well as in other countries, is greatly reduced. It is probable this decrease is due to our advanced knowledge of food and nutrition.

Of course, gout is still encountered and we often hear of persons who are called "gouty." This expression is applied to those who are susceptible to gouty infections and pain in the joints. After eating foods rich in certain substances called "purines" the victim complains of pain in the joints, particularly in the joint of the big toe. This is due to excessive deposits of uric acid.

The gouty individual is a sufferer from constipation, indigestion, headache, restlessness and irritability. He is usually striken in the middle of the night with the acute symptoms of gout. The involved joint becomes red, swollen, hot and extremely painful. The pain comes on suddenly, but may subside within a few hours, only to recur. With the attack, there may be fever, thirst and digestive disturbances, such as sickness at the stomach and vomiting.

Many such attacks are confused with rheumatism, neuralgia or neuritis. But the pain of gout is severe in nature, coming in periodic attacks and usually involving the small joints of the body. In rheumatism, the pain is more chronic in its nature.

As told by Samuel Pepys, in his time gout was believed to be an incurable disease. Fortunately, times have changed; the disease can now be cured by careful regulation of the diet. This must contain foods which carry a minimum amount of uric acid. Those which form uric acid and which contain purines are prohibited. Meats, meat extratives, bouilon, sweet breads, kidneys and brains, are types of foods which the victim of gout must avoid. In addition, starchy desserts, fried and greasy foods, alcohol, coffee and tea must be avoided.

Every effort should be made to overcome the constipation and to correct all digestive disorders. Avoid overeating. Moderate eating at regular hours, with regular hours of sleep, exercise, daily bathing, an abundance of fresh air and sunshine, are a few suggestions to sufferers from gout.

Bear in mind that the disease is believed to be hereditary. Even though you are careful about your food, you may show some tendency towards this affliction. If you are the victim of repeated pains and aches in your joints, you must suspect gout. If in doubt, consult with your physician.

Answers to Health Queries

D. S. Q.—I am always tired, even after sleeping eight or nine hours every night. I try to eat of a simple diet, get plenty of fresh air and keep regular hours, but never feel really rested. What would you advise?

A.—This may be due to autointoxication. Make sure that your system is clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mrs. E. C. Q.—What can be done for a red nose and pimples?

A.—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. Watch your diet and elimination.

Milk stains on doorsteps will disappear if a paste made of fuller's earth and water is applied and allowed to remain for a day and night. Wash off with warm water.

Every kind of food and all kinds of vegetables need a little salt when cooking. Salt the water the vegetables are to be boiled in and salt the meat after it has been seared.

Stains on satin can be removed by treating with a mixture of eucalyptus oil and milk in equal proportions. Apply with a cloth that has been rinsed in warm water.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Doubling a Low Contract

When one side has a part-score the strategy of bidding assumes a different form than when there is no score on either side. The side which has a part-score should use every means to capitalize the very considerable advantage they have over their opponents, and when a side not only has a part-score but game as well on the rubber, their bidding should take into account these important factors.

An interesting example of capitalizing to the utmost the value of a part-score occurred in a recent rubber game at Crockford's Club, New York, in which Albert H. Morehead, Technical Editor of The Bridge World, seated North, had as his partner, Walter Malowan.

South, Dealer.

	♠ K Q 7 ♡ K Q J 7 ◇ J 9 5 3 ♣ K 6
♠ A 8 6 3 ♡ 10 6 4 ◇ 8 2 ♣ Q 10 7 5	West North East South	♠ J 9 4 2 ♡ A 8 ◇ K Q 10 6 ♣ J 8 3
	♠ 10 5 ♡ 9 5 3 2 ◇ A 7 4 ♣ A 9 4 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 N T (1)	Pass
2 ♣ (2)	Pass	Pass	2 ◇ (3)
Double (4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Mr. Morehead has one strong personal idiosyncrasy in the bidding. When he has a part-score his Opening bid is always one notrump, regardless of any distribution of his hand. He states that the only exception to this rule is when he is sure that he can set his opponents a minimum of three tricks, and these hands, of course, are extremely rare.

2—With a part-score, of course an Opening bid is practically Forcing. Mr. Malowan responds with a non-biddable club suit rather than bid two notrump.

3—East feels that he must defend. After all, his hand contains 2½ honor-tricks with some plus values. The danger of a big set does not appear great.

Mr. Malowan's Opening lead was the Ten of spades. A low spade was played from Dummy, and Mr. Morehead won with the Queen. He then returned the heart King, which East won with the Ace. East returned his last heart, and Mr. Morehead was in the lead with the Knave. A diamond was returned, which Mr. Malowan won with the Ace, East playing the King. Another spade was led, and the Ace in Dummy won the trick. The Declarer now led his last diamond from Dummy, and successfully finessed the Ten. The Queen of diamonds was laid down, and another spade led, Mr. Morehead winning with the King. At this point Mr. Morehead laid down the Knave of diamonds, and he and Mr. Malowan cashed the remainder of the tricks. East's apparently safe Overcall of a game bid was defeated 700 points.

Tomorrow's Hand

North, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

	♠ A 8 7 5 ♡ 9 2 ◇ A Q J 9 7 2 ♣ A
♠ K Q J 10 4 3 ♡ K J 10 7 3 ◇ — ♣ 10 3	West North East South	♠ 9 6 2 ♡ Q 8 6 ◇ K 8 4 ♣ Q 8 5 2
	♠ — ♡ A 5 4 ◇ 10 6 5 3 ♣ K J 9 7 6 4

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Write Him Your Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently I was visiting relatives in a distant state and while there I met a young man who took me out several times. I am now back home, and I would like to write him and thank him. Would that be correct? READER.

Not only would it be correct for you to write this young man to thank him, but it would be a gracious and thoughtful thing for you to do. He will, of course, appreciate your expression of appreciation of his kindness.

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

Last night was an evening of scintillation for all those who went to hear glamorous Rosa Ponselle and the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra at Syria Mosque.

Rosa Ponselle scintillated, her lustrous gown scintillated, the orchestra scintillated, and the audience joined in. And when the irresistible Ponselle started auctioning off her encores all for the benefit of the Pittsburgh Symphony campaign for $100,000, the stoniest heart succumbed to the excitement of the evening.

Music Lovers Well Represented

As far the audience, all Pittsburgh's socialites and music lovers were represented. As a contrast to black gowns—many of net and of lace—were the spring prints and pastel frocks always popular at this time of the year.

Deb-of-the-fall Constance Drake chose a soft, pastel blue gown. She arrived with her mother, Mrs. J. Frank Drake, in an unusual blue and coral printed chiffon gown. Mrs. Gordon King, who arrived with Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, was another favoring spring prints. Mrs. Jacoby's graceful gown was of primrose yellow crepe.

Others I noticed in the large audience were Mrs. William Reed Thompson, Mrs. Thomas Eddy, Mrs. H. H. McClintic, the John Lawrences, Louise Reed, Betty Nicholson and Mrs. William Maclay Hall, of course. Mrs. Hall chose a striking dark red-purple lace gown.

Members of Smart Set In Audience

Mrs. John M. Freeman, Mrs. John A. Murtland, Elizabeth Jenkins, Mrs. John E. Nelson, Mrs. A. S. F. Keister, Mrs. Harvey Childs III, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, Genevieve Bell, the David I. McCahills, with their twin daughters, Marie and Marguerite, were there.

And I remember seeing Mrs. Edwin Ruud, Mrs. E. W. Mudge, Mrs. J. Hanson Rose, the Edwin Rheas, Mrs. J. Merrill Wright, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., Bettie Guiler, Mrs. David Witherow, Georgia Orwig, Mrs. Tracy Guthrie, Mrs. L. B. Hays, and the Samuel Harden Churches.

Women Active In Orchestra Campaign

When it comes to getting some work done, it's up to the women!

Add to proof of this statement: Nineteen out of the 22 teams of workers in the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra Society campaign for $100,000 are all women.

Among the team captains are Mrs. D. G. Clark, Mrs. John P. Hoelzel, Mrs. A. L. Weil, Jr., Mrs. A. S. Keister, Elizabeth Jenkins, Mrs. Arthur B. Siviter, Louise Reed, Mrs. Samuel Weinhaus, Mrs. J. B. Kelly, Mrs. J. Fred Lissfelt, Mrs. C. F. C. Arensberg, Mrs. G. P. Bassett, Jr., Mrs. Hampton Newman, Mrs. Oscar W. Oppenheimer, Mrs. Richard V. Nuttall, Mrs. William E. Benswanger, Mrs. J. L. D. Painter, Mrs. D. V. Murdoch and Mrs. Donald Brien.

Overshadowing all events tonight will be the final production of our group of social registerite actors—the Stage and Play Society.

Stage and Play will give Milne's "Mr. Pim Passes By" tonight at the Twentieth Century Club.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

W'e're picking tissue paper out of our hair . . . we're rubbing dust out of our eyes . . . we're all agog over the sights that we saw in the stockroom of one of the stores t'other day when Mr. K. himself took us along on a tour of inspection!

For here is news for you with a nose for news! News about the brand new line of toiletries that has smart New York laid by the heels . . . that smartsters here in town are proclaiming the nicest thing of its kind! Made by Jane Cl——d . . . to be exact, whose ideas about the skin are anything but "cloud-like" in their practicability and sound sense!

The outstanding point about them being (to our way of thinking) . . . the foot cream that as one woman expressed it "unwinds" the tightness and tiredness from your pedal extremities. Sort of like semi-liquid art gum in looks and consistency . . . smelling like all the aromatic spirits that our personal sniffer ever sniffed! Grand! And for but $1.00!

* * *

One never knows! You kain't never tell what will happen when someone in the dress business goes rampant and flings him or herself upon the tablecloth, scissors in hand!

Chances are that something like this will occur . . . broad plaids of color, obviously filched from the family tablecloth, will be whacked and chopped into bits . . . and put together into the swankest, smartest swagger coat to a suit that ever we saw!

The nice part of it being . . . that it is reversible! Tablecloth plaids shouting their way along the street when you're out spectator-sporting . . . the linen "lining" being worn outside when you're bound for a little more conservative event! And the whole thing with white linen skirt (all this linen is Belgian, incidentally, and very good). One look and you'll realize it's wise to guard your plaid linen tablecloths these days . . . they're so irresistible as coats . . . and particularly so when the tax comes to only $8.95 for the suit complete!

* * *

The "night has a thousand" eyes so they say . . . and even if this were not the case, we'd be all for wearing a pretty cutey nightie when stepping bed-wards.

So that this news about the new pure silk handmade ones with lace or in tailored styles is not amiss . . . especially when priced at $2.95. (The shop is just that sure of itself that it invites you to see these and then compare them elsewhere for quality and price.)

And there are others with that new Dresden embroidery (in pale pastels) to sell for the same sum. Peach and pale blue . . . and how we love this blue. It's a bedtime story all by itself! Sizes 14 to 17.

* * *

A corduroy coat! The very one that this month's fashion magazine V-yelped about as being the thing to wear all day long with complete comfort of body and soul (knowing that you're "dressed" in it for almost anything).

It's black, blue or brown . . . very, very wide ribbed corduroy . . . with saddle shoulder . . . pockets . . . and a nice don't care swing that seems to be essential to the better things in life this year. Sizes 14 to 20 . . . and priced nominally at $17.50.

GAY TINTS ENTER DOMESTIC SERVICE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE KNOWING saleswoman who barters domestic uniforms will tell you that women who go in for pleasant home interiors take a lot of personal interest in their maid outfits. Whether the staff means one all-around helper or a flock of them in the pre-depression manner, it is usually the mistress herself who chooses their service clothes—and her decorative whims have inspired a uniform revolution.

* * *

THIS SPRING it is flower shades that are in demand, and the apron accessories for them are usually a faint beige tone instead of white. Moreover, these accessories tend to net and batiste softness instead of crisp, snowy whiteness, and there is many a set of Swiss embroidery, lace-edged, whose collar and cuffs would grace even a very good social frock as its lingerie touch. There are still plenty of die-hards who like black uniforms only after morning cottons are through with the private duties of a household, but even these women like to titivate the effect with apron sets of the new, fragile sort.

* * *

FOR A LITTLE while, until summer is closer, the moire uniforms in beet root, dark copper, dark green and dark grey which were so smart this winter will be used. With the first real warmth, however, it will be crepe de chine models in pale blue that the majority of hostesses will produce after 4 in the afternoon, judging by sales going on now, with pale green the runner-up.

A leafy shade of dark green crepe de chine will bring in many a dinner during the hot weather, with black the next in popularity. For morning and early afternoon the well-dressed maid will wear striped madras models, probably in the same tone as her dress-up uniforms—blue or green as the case may be.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Pale blue crepe de chine worn with a sheer apron of Swiss embroidery makes the tea-time uniform, left. Though tailored and prim, the effect is soft and dressmakerish.

Center, forest green silk crepe with lacy organza apron and accessories for dinner service. Beside it, blue and white shadow striped madras and a lawn and rick-rack apron set for morning wear.

Newspaperman Stuff

One of the peasants walked into a prominent newspaper office the other day and asked to see the city editor.

"He is in conference," was the courteous reply.

"What is a conference?" asked the stranger.

"Conference," he said, "is a daily meeting of the editors to decide what will go into the paper."

"Do you honestly mean to tell me," was the retort, "that this sheet is premeditated?"

No Wonder

They say that the radio companies in Los Angeles play so many recordings that when the announcers go home to dine—they start spinning the dinner plates.

Stop Thief!

Miriam March, who stopped shows a few seasons ago at Joe Moss' Beaux Arts Club in Atlantic City, recently returned to show business at the Roxy. During the engagement she stopped the show with an original creation, "The Rhumba Tap" done to "Carioca." Within one week she saw her creation almost identically carbon-copied at a nearby theater.

P. S.—Miss March hasn't had a job since then (at the Roxy) while all her idea-pirates have been booked steadily.

Observation

Really!

Izzy Elinson wonders if you've heard about the midget who is renting himself out as a book mark for "Anthony Adverse."

Personally, we use a phone directory.

Neat Trick

One of the better known actors, weary of "touches"—has hit on this scheme to keep from being bothered. He carries several phoney checks—all made out to cash—and signed with fictitious names.

Thus, when the borrower (who never intended paying him back, anyway) returns and says: "Why, you big stiff—that check was no good!"—the "amazed" actor replies: "Can you imagine that bum sticking ME with it? Why, I can't believe it!" And so on, far into the night.

Flash

David Goldberg reports that the real reason for the hunt for Dillinger is that he's wanted back in Crown Point, Ind., for a few retakes.

It seems that the picture he posed for with that prosecutor didn't turn out so hot.

Merciless Truth

"I've never heard a speech," groans F. P. A., "that was short enough."

The Retort Proper

Ralph Spence, one of the wits of Hollywood, was also expert at "cutting" a picture. The Stern Brothers, pioneers in the movie business, once hired Spence to cut a flicker. When it was done—he charged them $1,200.

"My dear Spence," they wrote, "we never in our life paid more than $300 for cutting a picture."

"My dear Stern," he replied, "pardon me. Here is a revised itemized bill: For cutting the picture $300 . . . For knowing what to cut: $900—total: $1,200—kick in!"

Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra and Rosa Ponselle

Syria Mosque

PROGRAM

Symphony No. 7 in A Major, Op. 92 ..... Beethoven
"Bel Raggio" from "Semiramide" ..... Rossini
Rosa Ponselle
Allegretto from Symphony in D Minor ..... Zitterbart
"Addio del Passato" from "La Traviata" ..... Verdi
Gypsy Song from "Carmen" ..... Bizet

Symphonic Poem, "The Pines of Rome" ..... Respighi

The Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra with Antonio Modarelli conducting gave its closing concert in Syria Mosque last night. It was one of the best audiences of the season; may those present and all Pittsburgh respond generously now to the wonderful appeal made during the intermission by Mrs. William Maclay Hall and John W. Lawrence, so that the orchestra may live on.

Mr. Lissfelt

There was bound to be grand disturbance during the program with so luxuriant a personality as Rosa Ponselle as soloist and becoming one of the most enthusiastic boosters for the life of our orchestra. And so the music took second place.

The orchestra has shown a consistent improvement during the year in its response to Modarelli's baton. I found the earlier parts of Beethoven Symphony somewhat ragged in rhythm and fragmentary. The third movement improved considerably in ensemble and the last brought the symphony to a fine climax.

The allegretto from a Zitterbart Symphony again showed this Pittsburgh composer as an inventor of charming melody and skillful in the play of his counterpoint, with no less a fine feeling for his instrumentation. The orchestra here and in the final Respighi "Pines of Rome" caught its best stride. In its accompaniments for the singer the players were sharp-witted, for there were many nice turns to trick them.

Rosa Ponselle is doubtless the peerless soprano of our day. Last night she brought along all her operatic and some of her old-time vaudeville gestures and gave her voice free play. Glorious top range, full and round lower tones, parlando, trills, all the magnificence of bel canto was there to overflowing.

In her three scheduled airs she found expression for widely diverse moods. It is not a question here of how they all found place on the same symphony program, for Pittsburgh can only remain eternally grateful to her for catching the spirit of the occasion, offering encore after encore of all kinds, and eventually selling them for what was given, in two cases $500 for the fund. Then, after she had sung almost to the fatigue point, for those who will contribute she still added the "Habanera" from "Carmen."

Cuckoo and Wind-songs, love songs, French, English and German songs (with the capable Stuart Ross at the piano) in quick succession and all obviously donated to the cause of the Pittsburgh Orchestra. Indeed we should be thankful to Rosa Ponselle for more than her incomparable ve[illegible]

Pious Drama Now Has Inning

By GEORGE SEIBEL

On Sunday the Passion Play at Oberammergau will begin a special summer season to mark the three hundredth anniversary of its first presentation. Four years ago I was one of 300,000 people who saw this great religious spectacle. The Bavarian village has only 2,600 inhabitants and 1,200 of them are actors. Alois Lang will again play the Christus, and Anni Rutz will be the Mary.

Mr. Seibel

Since Anni's ancestors migrated from Spain four centuries ago, in the time the Jews were driven out, let's hope she's now a good Aryan!

While Oberammergau is enacting its Passion Play, a trip to Morgantown last Saturday made me think Oberammergau was coming to West Virginia. On signboards and in show-windows were large posters announcing the Passion Play "as presented at Oberammergau and Freiburg, but translated into English."

These rural religious dramas seem to have usurped the popularity of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—the favorite tent attraction of a generation ago. Now "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is seen so rarely that its revival by the Irene Kaufmann Settlement players next Tuesday takes on the aspect of a startling novelty.

Of course it is impossible to give the Passion Play anywhere else as it is given in Oberrammergau. I expected to witness a crude and amateurish spectacle done by pious but ignorant peasants. I witnessed one of the most inspiring and best-managed pageants you could see anywhere on earth. When you consider that they have been rehearsing the thing about 300 years, this is not to be wondered at.

DRAMA OF ST. FRANCIS

And now we're also having a religious drama in Pittsburgh this week, based on the life of St. Francis, and played by the students of St. Fidelis Seminary, near Butler. The seminary has been forced several times to suspend its work for lack of funds, and the students are taking this method of helping the work. A boy from Beaver Falls takes the role of the Saint—and tonight is the closing performance at St. Augustine's Church, in Butler street.

Laurence Housman, one of England's poetic dramatists, has written seven or eight little plays about St. Francis, and one of them is used in the present drama, in which 42 students appear. Housman's "Little Plays of St. Francis" led him later to write another group, "Followers of St. Francis," in the last of which Brother Leo, the last disciple, comes to the end of his pilgrimage.

To any one who has ever visited Assisi, the figure of St. Francis must appeal as one of the most lovable in the whole catalogue of saints.

Tradition tells that St. Francis preached to the birds and the fishes, and they came gladly to hear him. Perhaps he had a soft and musical voice, attuned to the peace and calm of Assisi, which is the most peaceful spot in all Italy, perhaps in all the world. It's easy to understand Longfellow's poem about St. Francis after visiting Assisi.

OTHER DRAMAS COMING

Like Longfellow, I like that saint. And now he pursues me to Pittsburgh, coming by way of Beaver Falls to Butler street. If I do not get to the Carnegie Little Theater Monday to see "The Skin Game" by John Galsworthy; if I do not get to the Irene Kaufmann Theater to see the revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," it's because I've gone along with these Capuchin disciples of Thespis as one of the lay brethren.

That group of Negro players who presented the Passion Play here last February, with a colored cast under direction of Dr. Ralph Mark Gilbert, are also returning to Pittsburgh to present another Negro religious drama at Schenley High School on May 24. This play is called "Which Man Was Rich?" and the leading role is in the hands of John Tidrington Frazer, who acted the role of Messiah.

Really it looks as if a renaissance of religious drama had struck the rural regions of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, with Legends of St. Francis and Passion Plays at every crossroads. We need not go to Oberammergau or Freiburg or Assisi—they're all coming to us.

Comedy

Diana Wynyard will be seen in "Where Sinners Meet," part of double bill in Regent Friday, the other film to be Ralph Bellamy in "One Is Guilty."

Cantor Is In Love With Secretary

Eddie Cantor is in love with his private secretary, and he doesn't care who knows it! She's his eldest daughter, Marjorie, aged 19, whom he engaged to handle his mail while he is making his next musical comedy for Samuel Goldwyn, tentatively entitled "The Treasure Hunt." Marjorie convinced her father she would rather work than continue at finishing school.

Lecture on Living Friday Night

Mrs. Charlotte Davenport, who is 109 years young, will give a lecture in the Hotel Roosevelt at 8 o'clock Friday night. The subject of her talk will be "How to Live and Enjoy Life," a subject of which she, herself, is a shining example.

Movie Elite Seem Cool To Star

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, May 17.—Hello! Breaking into the royal circles of Europe or crashing into New York's fabled "400" is child's play compared to vaulting the smug barriers of Hollywood's film beau monde!

Hollywood is a nice place to be happy in—if they would only let you. Hollywood people are afraid to be real—and are so self-centered that it makes it impossible to live a normal existence in the film capital!

These are a few startling revelations made by Steffi Duna, fiery European star, just signed under a long term contract at RKO.

They are findings made by this vivacious little actress, who, although famous in Europe, finds that she knows nothing about Hollywood after being here more than a year.

They are some rather poignant remarks made by a woman whose fame is recorded in the electric lights of Europe, but a celebrity who finds herself the loneliest girl in Hollywood, despite her fame.

They are wistful, tolerant, philosophical admissions made by a famous film and stage actress, who declares she has never been at a single Hollywood party since she has been here—because she "hasn't been invited"—a girl who has been lauded by the "400," but who finds the barriers of Hollywood's social system the hardest to vault.

There was no bitterness about the admission, only a yearning to change the situation and a poignant desire to be friendly with the town which wasn't friendly to her.

"I hope I am wrong about Holywood—I so want to believe—so want to be friendly—Hollywood is such a nice place to be happy in—if they will only let you!" she said, rather sadly.

A funny town—this Hollywood.

* * *

Overheard while studio visiting—

"Aw, you make me tired!" cracked Jack. "Always looking at yourself in the glass."

"What do you mean?" asked the actress. "I don't think I'm half as pretty as I really am!"

* * *

Wanderings around Hollywood—Marriage took it on the chin in favor of a screen career—and that's why Gloria Stuart is calling it a day with her marital affairs . . . After many, many weeks of grind over a scenario, Director Frank Capra, Columbia's ace, tossed his racetrack yarn on the shelf because he couldn't get the proper actor for the stellar role . . . "The Glorious Hussy," the Samuel Hopkins Adams novel, was hardly on the bookstands before M-G-M. put out an option on the thing—and they're thinking of Jean Harlow as the star.

* * *

Snooping . . . Eddie Foy, Jr. failed to wow 'em as a Hal Roach comic and is a-headin' back to the footlights . . . Bryan Foy's flicker, "Tomorrow's Children," has been attracting polenty of the celeb . . . Bart Wheeler and Bob Woolsey are going to get into a real fued for their next movie—it's to be a Kentucky mountaineer shootin' yarn . . . Rin-Tin-Tin, Jr. (The great movie pooch's pup) will be starred by Mascot Pictures. Now, that is something to bark about . . . Alice Faye had a birthday the other day. She is now old enough to vote, if you're interested . . .

The ultra-ultra of the movie village (Oh, yes—we have a few, you know) were considerably surprised the other evening when Elissa Landi, film star and novelist, gave a reading of Vadim Uraneff's "Solomon's Song of Songs," assisted by John Smallmann's oratorio ensemble, two pianists and Sergei Oukransky's ballet.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Les Boulinard," one of the successes of forty years ago in Paris, will be presented in French under the direction of Vincent G. Parisi in the Union of the Administration Building, Carnegie Tech, at 3:30 and 8:15 o'clock, next Tuesday. No tickets are required and those familiar with French are invited. The cast is mainly composed of students in the drama department at Tech. "Les Boulinard" is a comedy about a retired mustard manufacturer who has political aspirations.

* * *

The cast of "The Skin Game," to be given next week, opening Tuesday, by Tech drama students, will include John Dawson, DeLisle Crawford, Walter Derdeyn, Joseph Batcheller, David Preston, Franklin Webb, George Kittredge, Regis Joyce, Barry Mulligan, William Bales, Edward Palkot, John Kennedy, Roy Minet, Kenneth Yates, Ruth Hornbeck, Dorothy Neuman, Janet Feather, Audrey Kelley, Patti Littell, Sarabel Browarsky, Jean Speller, Emma Lou Suess and Eugenia Kehr.

The final production of the Y Playhouse, Bellefield avenue, will be "Don't Go Forth Naked," a modern comedy by David Corman, author of last year's successful revue, "The Right Bank." It will be the first time the piece has been presented. "Don't Go Forth Naked" has nothing to do with nudism, but is a satiric comment on modern Bohemian life. It will be given in place of a musical revue.

"The Green Pastures" threatens to run on forever. Another country-wide tour is contemplated for next season, to open in September and continue until a year from this time, when it will go into New York again. On its first appearance on Broadway the play ran for 640 performances, having the longest New York engagement of any play ever awarded the Pulitzer prize. Except for "Street Scene," an Elmer Rice success of several seasons ago, no other award winner has even crosed the 500-times mark. The return engagement of "The Green Pastures" in New York, it is thought, will last for a full year, at the end of which time a world tour is contemplated for the hardy production.

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

Odds and Ends

I WASN'T going to print this story, and I have held it for several weeks. But I unfolded it to a group of show people the other night and they urged me to run the tale as a warning to other professionals in the big money class.

Some six weeks ago, Jack Benny had just completed a Sunday night broadcast. An attendant handed him a number of phone calls, and among them was a message that had supposedly come from me. While he was reading the various notes, the phone rang again—and once more I was supposed to be phoning.

I must explain at this point that I had called Jack neither on the first occasion nor the second. I knew nothing about the disturbing chain of events until Benny, himself, told me the story.

At any rate, the comedian answered the call.

"Hello, Jack," said the voice, "this is Mark Hellinger again. I called you before to tell you what a swell program you were giving us tonight."

Jack, of course, thought he was talking to me. He says that the caller's voice and mine were almost identical.

"Thanks, Mark," was Benny's reply. "Nice of you to think of calling me."

"Not at all, Jack," the voice went on. "As a matter of fact, we're having a little party up here tonight—and we were all listening to your program. If you'd like to join us in a sandwich and a drink, we'd be very happy."

Now it so happens that Jack and I have a number of mutual friends, and we have all been together several times. His reaction, therefore, was quite natural.

"Fine," he said. "I was just going over to Reuben's for a sandwich anyhow, and I'll be glad to have it with you folks instead. What's the address?"

The voice gave Jack an address on the Grand Concourse, in the Bronx. The comedian wrote it down, said he'd be up within half an hour and hung up. A few minutes later, he was on his way in a taxi.

It was a long ride to the address he had been given and, toward the latter stage of the journey, Jack began to grow suspicious. He was almost certain that I didn't live so far uptown, and the thought began to annoy him.

The cab came to a stop before an old apartment house that was none too inviting. It was a dark and gloomy building, and Jack gazed out with a puzzled look.

He leaned forward and opened the door a trifle. In the entrance of the building, he suddenly saw a man leaning against a pillar with his right hand in his coat pocket. Some 50 feet away, near an alley, he saw another man in exactly the same attitude.

That was enough for Jack—and it would have been enough for me, too. He closed the door hastily.

"Turn around right away," he told the driver, "and go back to Reuben's. I've got the wrong address."

The cab raced away. And that ended the incident . . .

As I said before, the strange story is printed here as a warning to others. If the thing was a gag, which I would rather believe, it was by no means funny. And if it wasn't a gag—well, I just don't like to think about it.

Things are plenty tough these days, and big money calls for envy as never before. Salaries in show business and on the air are matters of public knowledge. And the kidnaping gentry seems to be growing bolder with each passing week.

Be careful, my monied friends of the theater. I don't like the way things look. . . .

* * *

ONE OF Sam H. Harris' favorite stories has to do with an old Chicago attorney, whose name was "Chew-of-tobacco" Wallace. He was given the nickname because, if a client didn't have a $100 fee, Wallace would take $50. If he didn't have fifty, Wallace would take twenty-five, or ten, or five. And if the client didn't have $5, the attorney would take a chew of tobacco, instead.

Wallace—a trifle hard of hearing—stood before a magistrate one morning pleading a case. His client was a youth who was guilty of a minor offense. The lawyer kept talking, and the judge grew tired.

The attorney, very busy talking away at a rapid pace, failed to hear the sentence.

"And so, Your Honor," he wound up with a flourish, "I think that six months in the House of Correction would be fair enough."

His client groaned slightly and stepped forward.

"I'll take the three months you gave me, Your Honor," he cried. "And you can give the other three months to my lawyer!" . . .

JUNIOR PATROL MAIL BOX

Clean up your ball field, fellows!

Have you noticed that Junior and his gang have started to pick up the tin cans and bottles and other junk that clutters up their field?

That's what you have to do if you want to play on a vacant lot or field where people have been dumping rubbish. Broken bottles and glass, you know, will cut if you fall down on them. And tin cans are almost as bad.

So be sure that you get all the old broken glass and junk off your play field and out of your back yard if you play there. And if by some chance you do get cut or scratched, don't neglect it. Go to your mother and have her wash the wound and put antiseptic on it and then bind it up for you.

There are terrible germs everywhere and if you get cut or scratched they are almost sure to get into the wound. If they aren't killed, they may make you very ill.

We heard a beautiful concert the other night. We wonder how many Junior Patrol members enjoy music? We hope every member does.

Already, several Junior Patrol clubs have sung over the radio on a Junior Patrol program. We are always glad to hear that a patrol can sing well in chorus.

If you can, you should have some other person teach your patrol to sing. You can all gather around a piano after your meeting is over and sing some swell songs while your teacher plays the piano and tells you how to do it.

It isn't hard but it takes lots of practice. Of course we know that some of our Junior Patrol members are taking music lessons and learning to play musical instruments such as the piano, violin and trumpet as well as learning to sing.

Please write and tell us how you are getting along with your music and what is your favorite song.

We know that there are many patrols started that don't have 10 members yet. Keep working, captains, and when you get 10 members we can send you the black and orange armband.

WHAT'S THE REAL TRUTH ABOUT GASOLINES?

STONE MT., GA.—largest block of solid granite in the world. Here 12 gasolines were tested on a gruelling grade. Results of all tests certified by notary public.

Is it true, as some people believe, that there is no difference between leading brands of gasolines? For the first time, this question is definitely answered by tests of 33 gasolines on 12 celebrated American hills . . .

ON this page is definite, undeniable proof that there is a big difference in the power of various gasolines.

To prove this, Gulf made power tests on 12 famous mountain grades—from Massachusetts to Georgia. The NEW good Gulf gas was tested against every well-known brand of gasoline sold within the area visited. In all, 33 gasolines competed to see which could pull a car and load farthest up hill in high gear before the motor stalled.

The NEW GULF wins more power tests than 32 other gasolines combined!

EACH OF THE BRANDS of gasoline tested is indicated on the chart by a letter, A to Z6. Note that Gulf gas was uniformly best! Other high-ranking gasolines varied widely in different tests.

SUN-TELEGRAPH ENLARGES SPORTS BOOSTING PLAN

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Eastern Trip Hard Test.
Brace By French Needed.
Lee Not Sudden Flash.
Dykes Halts Haas Trade.
Pitt's Records Tumbling.
Best Work Done Abroad.

There could be no better evidence of the Pittsburgh club's general strength than the occupancy of first place by the Pirates as late as May 17 in spite of their ace pitcher's having been so unserviceable since the start of the season that he was used in a mere exhibition game the day before the beginning of the important first eastern trip. To appreciate the remarkable fight the Bucs have made without any help from Larry French, who had been counted on to be the main prop in the pitching department, you need only conjecture what sort of showing would have been made by the Cubs without Lonnie Warneke or Guy Bush, by the Giants without Carl Hubbell, by the Cardinals without Dizzy Dean, or by the Yankees without Lefty Gomez.

Larry French

However, that success can't be expected to continue indefinitely under the same conditions, and an early recovery of form by French will be essential to the welfare of the Rovers on the first long trip of the year. Even at their best, the Gibsons might expect plenty of trouble in the East, in view of their unpleasant experiences in that sector last season, when they dropped 23 games along the seaboard while winning only 20. They grabbed off seven out of 11 games in Philadelphia, and gained a scant six-to-five edge in Brooklyn, but in New York they were beaten seven times in 10 engagements, and in Boston they won only four out of 11. Stronger day-by-day pitching than they have been getting so far, and a big brace by French in particular, will be necessary on the current jaunt if the Corsairs are to escape losing considerable valuable ground.

LEE STANDOUT BEFORE JOINING BRUINS

The remarkable major league start made with the Cubs by Pitcher Bill Lee, who won his first two games by the shutout route and allowed a total of only six hits in 18 innings, was not the first evidence of uncommon slab ability given by him. The youngster was a standout in the minors, too, showing to such advantage for Columbus in the American Association that the willingness of the St. Louis Cardinal chiefs, owners of that club, to sell him to the Bruins caused no little surprise. The popular guess was that Lee could not be as good as he looked or the Cards would have kept him for their own use instead of letting him go to a pennant rival.

Lee won 21 games for Columbus last year, and, what is more to the point, he started and finished every one of the 21. At one stretch, he won six games in 19 days. Only nine defeats were charged against him. Nor was that his first good season, as he pitched 24 victories in 1931 and 20 in 1932, a total of 65 wins in the last three years. Lee is also quite a hitter for a pitcher, his averages for the last three seasons having been .312, .287 and .283. The National League's newest pitching sensation is a right-hander, 24 years old, 6 feet 3 inches in height and weighs 195 pounds. He is a native of Plaquemine, La., and attended Louisiana State University.

BOOSTING OF PRICE BLOCKS HAAS DEAL

The calling off of the proposed trade whereby Outfielder George Haas was to have been turned over to the Tigers in exchange for Outfielder Frank Doljack was one of the early results of the shift in the White Sox managership. Prior to the appointment of Jimmy Dykes to supplant Lew Fonseca, the Sox had agreed to a flat trade, but when Dykes took charge he boosted the price on Haas and insisted that Detroit give up Elon Hogsett, left-hand pitcher, in addition to Doljack. Mickey Cochrane refused to include Hogsett and the deal fell through. Cochrane has made a cash offer for another Sox outfielder not mentioned in the original negotiations.

Jimmy Dykes

Meanwhile, Mickey has a new deal pending in a different direction for a fly chaser. Cleveland has offered Outfielder Dick Porter in a trade for Doljack and Harry Davis, the first baseman farmed to Toledo by the Tigers. Cochrane thinks well of the proposal and hopes soon to close the dicker. The Detroit pilot was completely disgusted with the work of his outfield on the eastern trip, and says that in the Boston series in particular it was the worst he has ever seen in the American League. If the Tigers get Porter he will play right field, with Joyner White or Gerald Walker in center and Goose Goslin in left.

ASSAULT ON RECORDS BY PITT TRACKERS

The assault of the present crop of Pitt track and field athletes on the existing university records may have been a bit tardy, but once it was under way there was no lagging. After little Arvel Fleming, crack Negro hurdler, pulled a surprise by lowering the mark for the 220-yard low timber event at State College, Capt. Bill Keller, Ken Wagenhouser and Charley Gongloff fell right in line.

On West Virginia's five-lap track in Morgantown, Wagenhouser, the Leetonia (O.) junior, ran the mile in 4:23.7, breaking the 13-year Panther mark of 4:25, set by Esler Hayes in 1921. A few minutes later, running around 10 turns, Keller set a new mark for the half-mile by doing the distance in 1:57.7. The former record was 1:58.4, established by Gerald Allen in 1923. In the field, Gongloff got hold of a good one in the javelin throw and tossed the iron-tipped spear 188 feet and 1-10 of an inch, to beat Gibby Welch's mark of 181 feet 3 inches, set in 1928.

ONLY THREE PANTHER MARKS SET AT HOME

Incidentally, it cannot be said that Pitt records were favored by home conditions, timing or measurements. Of the 16 university marks, only three were made in Pittsburgh. Those three were Welch's discus record, Bill Corbett's two-mile time and Pete Bowen's figures for the 100-yard dash. Bill Robusch set the high-jump mark and Frank Shea established the 440-yard record in Philadelphia. Woody Harris sprinted the best 220 and Fleming ran the best low hurdles at State College. Don Gwinn made his hammer mark in Chicago. Jim MacMurdo put the 16-pound shot farthest while in Berkeley, Cal. Vic Pickard pole vaulted to the indoor record in New York, and to the outdoor record in Columbus, O. It was in Columbus also that Everett Utterback turned in the best broad jump. The fastest high-hurdle race credited to a Pitt athlete was run by Ed Knobloch in Cambridge, Mass. Add the three new marks set by Keller, Wagenhouser and Gongloff in Morgantown and the list is complete. Panther trackers evidently are at their best away from home.

ALL-STAR GAME ON M'GRAW'S ANNIVERSARY

By BILL CORUM
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 17.—The records disagree. Some say that it was on July 10, 1902, that John McGraw, who had jumped the American League, first appeared at the Polo Grounds in the uniform of the New York Giants. In other record books the date is set as July 16 of that year. For the purposes of this story we are going to insist that the first date is the correct one. It makes a better story that way.

For it will be on July 10 of this year that the all-star game between the American and National Leagues will be played here, and in all probability at the Polo Grounds. And if that proves to be the case, the Giants on that day will unveil their memorial to the man who did more for baseball in New York City than all others combined.

These plans are not yet definite, and if they do not carry, I beg of you to charge it off against my enthusiasm for the idea.

When the all-star game idea was suggested and put across in Chicago last year, this bureau insisted it was the biggest and best thing that had happened to baseball since Babe Ruth came along.

HAPPY COINCIDENCE

However, it was a novelty then, so that this year's game did not promise to create the same excitement. But by a happy coincidence—nobody thought of it at the time, but just set the date—July 10 was chosen, and now it develops that the day will be the thirty-second anniversary of McGraw's joining the Giants.

Thus, if owner Charles A. Stoneham, of the Giants, is ready to unveil the McGraw memorial by that date, this should be an even bigger and more memorable occasion than last year's game in Chicago.

What McGraw did for baseball in this town and, for that matter, baseball everywhere is too well known to require elaboration at this time. In 30 years his teams failed to finish in the first division only twice. He won 10 pennants. He finished second 10 times. He was third four times and fourth twice.

Last year the National League went to the expense of buying special uniforms for its team. It seems to me it adds a touch to have each player perform in the flannels of his own outfit.

But any way staged, it's a swell show, and I do hope the baseball people will bestir themselves and give us something worthy of the game and worthy of the memory of McGraw.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: PANCHO VILLA—The real name of this Mexican adventurer was Doroteo Arango. He was born at Las Nieves, in the Mexican State of Durango, in 1878. A butcher by trade, he later became a cowboy (vaquero) in Chihuahua. After killing a magistrate who eloped with his sister, he escaped into the United States, where he enlisted as a western cowboy with Theodore Roosevelt's "Rough Riders" in 1898. His subsequent exploits as a bandit leader and guerilla fighter, as well as his invasion of Columbus, N. M., are recent history. He was killed in 1923. THE SINGING TOWER—High up in the tower of Riverside Church, New York City, one single artist, Kamiel Lefevre, manipulates the largest and heaviest musical instrument ever created. It is the famous carillon, which in its entirety weighs 140 tons—280,000 pounds. The 72 bells in the carillon peal deep tones that can be heard for miles around, giving the tower the name of the "Highest Singing Tower," and from this carillon comes the greatest number of announced carillon recitals presented anywhere in the world. The tremendous size of the instrument can be imagined from the fact that the largest bell weighs 40,296 pounds.

PARKS TENNIS, GOLF NEW FEATURES

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Two more major sports promotions have been added to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's list for the summer season to go along with the big Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament and the William Randolph Hearst Gold Cup regatta, to be held jointly with the Oakmont Boat Club, in the Allegheny River at Oakmont, Saturday and Sunday, July 14-15.

The latest features concern golf and tennis and will consist of a hookup with the National Public Parks golf tournament, to be held in South County Park, July 30-August 4, and the resumption of sponsorship of the Pittsburgh Public Parks tennis tournament.

TO DONATE PRIZES

The Sun-Telegraph, through special arrangement with the committee in charge, will donate all of the prizes for the golf tournament aside from the awards given the winner and runnerup by the United States Golf Association. These will consist of valuable merchandise prizes, to be selected later, rather than the usual silver plate and trophies.

With regard to the tennis tournament, sanctioned by the Pittsburgh Tennis Association for July 17-28, the Sun-Telegraph will undertake the entire handling of the tournament in all of the city and county parks which have courts and will donate prizes and defray the expenses of the men's and women's singles champions to the National tournament in Minneapolis in August.

The tennis tournament was sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph twice previously, in 1930 and 1931 in both of which years the winners were Frank Broida and Mrs. Jean Artzberger. In 1930, they were sent to the National tournament at Washington, D. C., and in 1931 to Detroit.

SANCTION IS GIVEN

Permission for the use of the courts has been given by James Moore, superintendent of city parks, and W. S. Haddock, director of recreation of the county parks. The champions of the various parks will be decided first and then will meet in the interparks finals. No player having a club affiliation is eligible. The tournament is confined exclusively to public parks players.

A meeting of the committee arranging the motorboat regatta will be held at 9 o'clock tonight at the Oakmont Boat Club. All members are urged to attend.

Entries are coming in rapidly for the softball tournament and the assigning of teams in brackets for the preliminary round of play will be done as soon as they close on June 1. An entry blank is being published daily for the convenience of managers desiring to enter their teams. Girls' as well as boys' teams will compete.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

When the National League sweepstakes got under way one month ago today the Pittsburgh entry was not regarded as a favorite, but as the eight contenders jockey for position near the first bend of the long track, the Pirates are in such a good spot their supporters are indulging in pennant dreams.

Interest in the Buccos and their flag chances is working up to a lather. Bill Benswanger, president of the club, is a good barometer inasmuch as he is out giving talks almost each night in the week, and Bill says he cannot remember any time when the man on the street was so wrought up over a ball club.

Naturally everybody asks about the Buccos' chances for winning the flag. Down under Benswanger thinks they are very good, but he speaks in a guarded veing whenever he talks about the pennant. The fact that the Pirates found their way to the top at the end of 30 days of play, and this in the face of very bad pitching, has had the effect of boosting the prestige of the club, not only in Western Pennsylvania and the neighboring districts, but all over the National League circuit.

SEE BUCS AS FAVORITES

A common conjecture among the fans at this point of the race crystalizes into an analysis about like this: If Larry French, Red Lucas, Heinie Meine and Bill Swift swing back into their stride, and if Pie Traynor's arm permits him to go back to his third base post, the Piratse will be the top favorite in the race before it is half run.

The improvement in the attendance at Forbes Field is another development that pleases the Pittsburgh owners. This trend seems to be general; while the Detroit Tigers were in Pittsburgh Manager Mickey Cochrane informed this writer that the total attendance for eight games staged in Detroit was approximately 50,000 greater than the figure of last season for eight games.

WIN OVER TIGERS

The Tigers, under the leadership of Cochrane, were in Pittsburgh yesterday and fared the same as most of the National League clubs as they crossed bats with the Pirates. Gibby's team bunched hits in the first inning and scored three runs or enough to decide the ball game. The score was 4 to 1.

Larry French and Bill Harris tricked the Jungaleers from the slab. French worked four rounds and Harris finished in good order. The Tigers made their lone tally in the second on a single, an error and a double.

Chillysauce

The romance of baseball is written deeply into such circuits as that which Father Pitt starts nursing today. The Pennsylvania State League is in the very lap of the community, yet the shadows will fall on the unknowns, while a budding Pie Traynor or Arky Vaughan may be getting ready to burst forth as a major league star.

Who knows but that several of the rookies "wasting their sweetness on the desert air" today will rise to power and glory! Look back through the years at Traynor and you see many of the lads who in second-hand shoes and frazzled uniforms are ready to do their stuff for McKeesport, Jeannette, Charleroi or Greensburg.

TECH NETTERS TEST PITT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The destiny of the city college net championship will be determined definitely today as Pitt moves across Schenley Farms to invade the Skibo bailiwick of Carnegie Tech. The Panthers, unbeaten locally, hold a distinct edge to date, the Tartans having dropped two tussles out of three in contests thus far played in the tri-cornered local competition.

Carnegie, however, carried the Blue and Gold to a 5-4 decision in the Golden Cats' own lair early last week. The afternoon prior to this affair, the Plaid had avenged a previous defeat at the hands of Duquesne by taking the Dukes over to the tune of 7-2 on the Bluffites' own rectangles.

Wash-Jeff's clever court combine stops off in Washington today for its second tussle of a four-day Eastern trek. This afternoon the Prexies engage Georgetown and tomorrow, likewise in the capital, they battle George Washington University. The Dukes jaunt to New Wilmington for a contest with Westminster on the morrow.

Capt. W. A. Palmer, secretary of the Interscholastic Tennis Conference, is striving vigorously to round out his record of completed matches in order that inter-sectional playoffs may be begun next week according to schedule.

A careful examination of the files, however, demonstrates that in the City Schools Section, Taylor Allderdice High leads Group One and Carrick bosses Group Two. In the Suburban Section, Shadyside Academy tops the list of Group One, with Mount Lebanon, the defending premier, heading Group Two, and Wilkinsburg out front in Group Three.

The Duquesne varsity netters were defeated by Grove City yesterday on the Grovers' courts, 7 to 2. The summary:

Singles—Hoburg, Grove City, defeated Purcell, Duquesne, 6-1, 6-1; Johnson, Grove City, defeated Getty, Duquesne, 6-1, 6-1; Rice, Grove City, defeated Rowan, Duquesne, 6-0, 6-1; Petrosky, Duquesne, defeated Gross, Grove City, 6-3, 6-1; McKittrick, Grove City, defeated Fagan, Duquesne 6-3, 6-1; Higgins, Duquesne, defeated McMillan, Grove City, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Doubles — McMillan-McKittrick, Grove City, defeated McGinnis-Heffern, Duquesne, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2; Johnson-Gross, Grove City, defeated Getty-Petroski, Duquesne, 6-0, 6-2; Hoburg-Rice, Grove City, defeated Purcell-Rowan Duquesne, 6-4, 6-1.

MAJOR LEAGUE RACES UPHOLD FLAG DOPE

By BABE RUTH

East and West have clashed for the first of their six annual series in the two major leagues. In the National League the eastern teams have made their first complete swing through the West, and in the American League the western teams have done the traveling through the other section.

These games have proved what we all suspected. The strength of the National League is more pronounced in the western group, and in the American League the eastern teams carry more power as a group than the teams of the other section. However, we'll have a better line on the relative strength of all clubs after the conditions are reversed. The western teams of the National League must now take their swing through the eastern cities, while the easterners in the America League go West.

Will the Chicago Cubs again be the poor road club that Cub teams have been so frequently in recent seasons? You know these Cubs are bearcats on their home field and just an ordinary ball team away from home. Or at least that has been the history of the Cubs in most of the recent campaigns.

YANKS FACE TEST

Will the Yankees be able to overpower the opposition while swinging through the West, as they have been during the visits of the western teams at the Yankee Stadium? You know these Yanks were none too successful either in their games away from home last year.

Will the pitching of the Mackmen hold up to the surprising degree that it has in so many games against the Western teams at Shibe Park? It was a big surprise to me that so many low score games were pitched by the Mackmen. Shibe Park is a bad spot for any team when the pitching is below par, and that is the way we figured the Philadelphia pitching.

Will the Cardinals, who put on a grand rally after a poor start, be able to show to such advantage in the East? The real test for any team comes while it is away from home.

What strikes me as the real pennant struggle in each league has been forecast by the results of the first four weeks of the season, though as I mentioned above, we will have a better line on the relative strength of the clubs after the coming East vs. West games are completed two weeks from now. But in each league we find the strong clubs moving toward the top and the weaker clubs gradually settling down to places in the second division. This is not always true during the first month of a season. It often has happened that some particular club got away to a much better start than its strength warranted.

TRUE TO FORM

But in the National League the Giants have been battling for the most part with the Cubs, Pirates and Cardinals of the Western group, with the other teams making up the second division. This arrangement has changed now and then, as changes are frequent during the early part of the season. But the top four, as listed above, were generally picked to occupy the first division berths. And they have started early to do just that.

In the American League the Yankees and Senators have been the top two, and that is the way most people figure them to finish, some preferring the Yanks and some preferring the 1933 champions of the American League. The next four positions have been a scramble, and the various pennant pickings before the season had the Indians, Tigers, Red Sox and Athletics more or less in a scramble. The Browns and White Sox have fallen back from the front runners, as was expected.

DISTRICT CLASS D BASEBALL LEAGUE STARTS PLAY

PAIR OF FRAYS INAUGURATE TITLE RACE

The Pittsburgh district gets a taste of minor league baseball this evening when, with two games scheduled, the Pennsylvania State Association, a Class D league, swings into action, Greensburg traveling to Jeannette and Monessen appearing at Charleroi.

McKeesport and Washington also are members of the circuit and will start their operations later. With every club backed by a major league team, and under the presidency of Elmer Dailey, it is believed that the new circuit will be successful.

In the past sandlot players from Western Pennsylvania traveled many miles to be farmed out with clubs in the same class. It should be a great boon for sandlot baseball.

BUCS BACK TUBERS

The McKeesport club is under the wing of the Pittsburgh Pirates, with Johnny Harris as president. McKeesport opens at Cycler Park on Sunday with Washington furnishing the opposition. Greensburg travels to Washington on Saturday.

Two games are carded in the City League this evening. Homewood travels to McKinley Park to meet Beltzhoover and the Vaughans go to Olympia Park to tackle the Books.

Fans following the City circuit saw two great games last night. Parmelee, with Lefty Schutzmann on the mound, defeated the Vaughans in their home opener at Frick Park before a large crowd. Abe Martin was on the mound for the North Siders, who lost a 6-2 decision.

DORMONT WINS

Dormont nosed out Homewood, 5 to 3, after the East Enders had led the South Hills club for five innings. Stauffer and Roscoe pitched for Dormont and Lefty Bruce worked for Homewood. Steve Roscoe received credit for the victory.

Salmon was in fine form for the Homestead Grays last evening, and the Grays defeated Charleroi, 10 to 1. An eight-run attack in the second inning put the game on ice. Salmon limited Charleroi to four safe hits.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

Today the western teams go to the East in the National League and maybe when this trip is over we'll know a little more about who is who and why. Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati will get their first taste of Atlantic salt water taffy and maybe some of it will be hard to pull. Oh, well, that's what makes baseball. None of the boys would think much of the game if every time they went on the field they won. The biggest kick we get is winning a close one.

Honus Wagner

Another reason we all like to go away now and then is because it's so much fun coming home. Our first tid-bit is Brooklyn and I bet Casey Stengel doesn't feel so funny since he has got the responsibility of running a big league club.

Regards,
HONUS WAGNER.

DREYFUSS KIN DIES ON COAST

LOS ANGELES, May 17.—(AP.)—Samuel I. Bernheim, aged 33, a son of the late Bernard Bernheim, of Louisville, and a stockholder in the Pittsburgh Pirates, of the National League, died early today at his Beverly Hills home from a heart attack.

He had lived in California about 10 years and was interested in numerous business enterprises here. His family controlled extensive distillery properties in Kentucky, particularly in Louisville. His widow and two children survive.

Samuel I. Bernheim, who died in Los Angeles today, was a nephew of the late Barney Dreyfuss, President William E. Benswanger, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, stated today when informed of the latter's death. His stock in the local club was bequeathed to him by his father.

Mrs. Holm Wins British Golf Title

PORTHCAWL, Wales, May 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. A. M. Holm, 27-year-old former Scottish champion, today won the British women's golf title, defeating 17-year-old Pam Barton, playing in her first championship, 6 and 5, in the 36-hole final.

Pam, an engaging little youngster with a tremendous arc to her swing, led, 2 up, at the end of the morning round, but the excitement began to tell on her. Mrs. Holm won three of the first four holes of the afternoon round to take a lead she never lost. Mrs. Holm was 5 up at the end of 27 holes, and finished the match on the thirty-first green.

Springfield Fires Warneke, Ruffing

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 17.—(AP.)—Warneke and Ruffing are just a couple of names in the new Central League. Although Lon Warneke does well for the Chicago Cubs and Charley Ruffing does some nice hurling for the New York Yankees, the younger brothers of these two pitchers failed to make the grade with the Central League's Springfield entry.

Al Warneke and Heinie Ruffing, both pitchers, were released last night by Manager Joe Mathes.

Seven Marks Fall In Eastern Olympics

MANILA, P. I., May 17.—(AP.)—The Far Eastern Olympic games were rained out today, causing postponement of the day's events until tomorrow and extension of the games through Sunday.

Seven oriental records were broken in spite of a wet track as the Philippines divided honors with Japan in the opening of the games yesterday.

Goodman Favored In British Amateur

PRESTWICK, Eng., May 17.—(AP.)—After a fine holiday in London the victorious American Walker Cup team began gathering here today for the British amateur golf championship, in which Johnny Goodman and Jack McLean, the Scot, are quoted at 8-to-1 favorites.

One of the biggest Scottish bookmakers offered those odds in a newspaper advertisement and placed before George T. Dunlap, Jr., the American amateur titleholder; Jack Westland and Sam McKinlay, another British Walker Cup player, all at 12-to-1.

Max Marston and Harry Bentley are 12 to 1, Johnny Fischer and Gus Moreland 14 to 1, Tony Torrance, only Briton to win one of the cup singles, and H. Chandler Egan 16 to 1, Lawson Little Francis Ouimet, Eric Fiddian, Eric McRuvie and Lionell Munn at 18 to 1.

NOT RISKING TITLE, SAYS M'LARNIN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 17.—(INS.)—Jimmy McLarnin expects to defeat Barney Ross when they clash in New York, May 28, but, in the event he doesn't, he's got an alibi all picked already.

Here it is:

McLarnin and his manager, Pop Foster, argue that since Jimmy is not being permitted to enter the ring at the official class limit of 47 pounds, but is being compelled to make 145 the afternoon of the fight, the match is in reality a handicap affair and not actually a title bout, a stand which will find scant support from boxing authorities.

Jockey Thrown By Mount Dies

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP.)—Dominick (Duke) Bellizzi, contract rider for Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade stable, died today in Mary Immaculate Hospital, Jamaica, of injuries suffered Saturday when he fell from his mount during a race at the Jamaica race track.

Bellizzi was leading the Youthful stakes field on the 2-year-old Psychic Bid when he attempted to keep his horse from running wide around a turn and lost his seat. Several following horses fell over him, one kicking him in the back and rupturing an intestine.

An operation was performed and a blood transfusion given and for a time it appeared he might recover. His condition became critical again Tuesday and his death had been expected hourly.

FAIRMONT SCORES

FAIRMONT, W. Va., May 17.—Fairmont State Teachers' College defeated the California State Teachers in a baseball game here yesterday, 9 to 2.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The death from pneumonia in New York recently of William Ellis Corey, former president of the United States Steel Corporation, recalls the days when he brought to Homestead a group of star football players to play for the H. L. A. C. (Homestead Library Athletic Club) . . . Included in that squad were such famous players as Dave Fultz, Arthur Poe, Bemis, Pierce, George Young and George H. Brooke . . . It beat the crack D. C. & A. C. (Duquesne Country and Athletic Club), 10 to 0 . . . Homestead Library also boasted a star baseball team under his auspices.

B. K. Schwedel, of New York, who brought Billy Kramer, the lightweight boxer, to Pittsburgh for bouts in the days of the old Keystone Club in the South Side Market House and also accompanied Al McCoy, the middleweight champion, here to box Harry Greb in the Exposition Hall, is a visitor in Pittsburgh these days arranging to buy up a chain of breweries.

Julius Solters, hefty Hazelwood star of the Boston Red Sox, has two brothers who promise to make good in professional baseball . . . And Catcher Rip Collins, of the Newark Club, of the International League, is another Hazelwood satellite . . . He had a trial with the Boston Braves and may come back up.

Brother professionals are thinking of presenting Vincent Eldred a fishing tackle set . . . Ask him why . . . Homer Gobert, the well-known automobile mechanic and family man, of Charleroi, who was famous as Young Saylor in the ring and could do more things with a left hand than any other fighter in captivity, has turned to coaching young boxers and has two good-looking prospects in Andy Todd, the 165-pounder, and Buzzy Noll, a lightweight, who may turn professional later and go places . . . Better keep an eye on 'em if they absorb Homer's teachings.—HARRY KECK.

SILVER NEWS GIVES STOCKS PUSH UP

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP.)—The stock market enjoyed a mild inflationary thrill today following word from Washington that the administration had reached an agreement with the Congressional silver bloc on a bill to expand the monetary uses of the metal.

While enthusiasm in most categories was restrained, such issues as United States Smelting, American Smelting, Howe Sound, Cerro de Pasco and others of this group got up 2 to 5 points. Trading was almost as dull as that of the previous session, however, and opinions as to nearby trends were mixed.

Wheat, hesitant during the early hours, rallied a cent or more a bushel after noon and the other cereals steadied. Cotton improved with silver sentiment. Silver futures spurted about a cent an ounce before paring their gains under profit-taking. Bar silver was advanced ⅞ of a cent an ounce to 44⅞ cents. Rubber did little. Bonds were in moderate demand. The dollar eased in foreign exchange markets.

The financial district understood the new silver bill would involve permissive nationalization of domestic stocks of the metal and would also contain a mandatory declaration of policy that silver be bought until it makes up 25 per cent of the monetary basis. Silver certificates would be issued against the metal purchased to achieve the 25 per cent ratio—about 1,800,000,000 ounces.

One fly in the speculative ointment, however, was the fear that, in the condemnation of domestic silver stores at a price not to exceed 50 cents an ounce, some sort of tax might be levied on the profits of those surrendering the metal to the government at this price. In addition, it was pointed out that the "permissive" character of the proposed bill would leave the silver situation largely where it is now. In other words, it was thought in some circles that the President's action in the matter would depend considerably on international co-operation.

The business and industrial picture was still a bit confused. Reports of bank clearings from leading cities disclosed a slightly smaller total than that of last week, but the aggregate of $4,-994,501,501,000 was 15.2 per cent above the 1933 period. The increase in clearings outside of New York was again larger than in the metropolitan district.

WHEAT ACCORD HOPES RISE

LONDON, May 17.—(AP.)—A definite arrangement was said in wheat circles today to be expected momentarily whereby the 1933 wheat agreement will be saved from collapse and Argentina will be permitted to export about 30,000,000 more bushels of wheat this year than under the agreement.

At the same time Argentina is expected to announce it will entirely or virtually cease its heavy outlay of seed loans to wheat farmers and take measures to encourage the production of linseed and corn instead.

The proposed permission for Argentina to exceed her quota would be arranged through a "loan" of quotas granted the United States, Canada and Australia would each yield two parts of the Argentine increase and Canada would yield one part.

The entire United States quota is only 47,000,000 bushels, while Canada's is 200,000,000 and Australia's 105,000,000.

JUNE GASOLINE QUOTA CUT

NEW YORK, May 17.—June production of gasoline by straight run-cracked and blended natural gasoline methods has been set at 34,600,000 barrels by the planning and co-ordination committee for the oil industryunder the code. This represents a decrease of 828,-000 barrels from productionby by these methods in June, 1933.

The committee divided the country into eight refinery districts and established quotas for each district. It now remains for regional allocators and committees to apportion the quotas to regneries in each district.

Publicity Urged for Utilities

By B. C. FORBES

AN EXECUTIVE who recently rose to the top position in an important utility company, disturbed by public and political hostility, makes this observation to me:

Mr. Forbes

"If utility leaders had taken half as much pains to study the public, to study psychology, as they have taken to study cost reductions, technical improvements and the like, utility investors would today be less menaced.

"The utility industry has really made phenomenal progress in invention, in chemistry, in solving many problems connected with long-distance distribution, etc.

"A generation or more ago there was, unquestionably, more or less bribery in getting franchises from local politicians. Politicians evidently demanded graft.

"The morals of the industry have improved tremendously since then. Today our industry is as clean as any other in the whole country. True, recent revelations show that a few individuals and companies have indulged in very questionable practices. But are there not at least some black sheep in every large group?

"The time has come when, in fairness to the millions who have invested their savings in utility securities, managements should come out into the open and make the public aware of the facts so that a fair deal may be accorded. Politicians don't seem to realize that when they hit at utility corporations, they are hitting at millions of individuals and families who have saved money and invested it in what they regarded as trustworthy bonds and stocks of publicly-regulated enterprises."

It is becoming manifest that a lot of utility investors are now worried.

His conviction is that the utility industry must, to protect its investors, come out into the open with an explanatory, educational campaign in newspapers and periodicals so that all the facts may become known and recognized by every fair-minded voter.

THE NEW YORK Stock Exchange would not be in its present plight if its governors had also had the foresight to enlighten public opinion concerning the essentiality of the service it renders the country.

How much longer will men of affairs remain blind to the power of public opinion, blind to the importance of disseminating A. B. C. information, enlightenment, education, so that the majority of men and women may acquire a better grasp of what is what?

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER years ago made this penetrating remark to me:

"Next to doing the right thing, the most important thing is to let the people know that you are doing the right thing."

This philosophy is commended not only to the utility industry and to the New York Stock Exchange, but to other leaders in industry, railroading, aviation, banking, etc.

If the nation is to function successfully, it is vital that those who fill our ballot boxes at election should have an adequate understanding of the part played by all these and other groups in developing and maintaining employment and prosperity.

A LOT OF New York brokers are preparing to open branches outside the state, especially in New Jersey and Canada, with a view to sliding from under threatened onerous taxation and regulation.

ONE INVESTMENT banker, C. Willard Young, yesterday told the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks:

"I have spent considerable time in Washington working with various members of the administration and their advisors. Instead of reds in Washington, we have a lot of pinks — parlor pinks. These, to my mind, are more dangerous, more contemptible and more insidious than the reds.

"And I shall not forget a conference with one of the academic know-it-alls or cure-it-alls who made the statement with great ferocity, 'I don't give a damn about anybody's securities.'"

When the tide turns—as turn it will some day—my guess is that there will be a decisive swingback to the oldfashioned virtues of thrift, saving, investment, and that our 20,000,000 owners of securities will demand more thought than they are given today by most politicians and bureaucrats.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LXXII

The days passed. The weeks went into months. There never came a word. Pippin swam far out in the icy water. She climbed the mountains, wandering long hours alone.

She stodd on a granite crag and looked back over the lakes. They were blue; they were peacefully shining. She recalled hikes taken with Gregg. He had been so gay, singing along through a leafy path. She plunged on, lonelier, sadder.

She went often over the trail to Desolation Valley. The bleak lost outpost suited her mood. They call it a valley. Not a flower blooms; not a patch of grass shows. A gray, outstretching waste broken with harsh crags; here and there are rock-piles; shafts of granite rise like tombs and all around, the wild cliffs go vertically to puncture gauntly on the summer sky. A place for Dante's fields of the damned.

It seemed to Pippin wails flung back and forth. The wind swept by. It made a long howling cry like a soul going down forever.

She walked back and forth until suddenly spent with her violence, she had to lean against the crags. She hated these moments of weakness because then she couldn't fight off the memory of a night when Kevin held her in his arms and they listened to a song that told of love undying. His eyes possessed her. She felt yet his lips closing with sweet wild tenderness on hers. Her heart beat fast. She grew afraid. Afraid of herself and the tumult that drove her on these long, punishing tramps.

Contemplates Future

Kevin would be working there, too. They would pass each other and bow, colder than strangers.

She thought of Gregg whom she had sent away; of Bill who had loved her so. She put her hands to her face and was weeping.

Sometimes Dadee, almost eighteen and about to enter college, would follow on these hikes. He adored Pippin and now suffered because she seemed no longer pretty. He didn't like the enormous blaze of her eyes, the vivid brightness of her hair and the utter pallor of her face against the red, painted lips.

She talked brightly but there was a brittle vivacity that worried Helena and often caused old Jonathan to peer at her sharply as he sat on the porch under the great tamarak tree reading newspapers two days old.

Helena came in and sat on her bed.

"Pippin, you are grieving as though you loved Bill much more than you ever admitted."

Death Mortal Shock

"I loved him dearly, mother, but as a precious friend. You forget I had never seen anyone die before. To you and David death is an old indignity; to me it was a mortal shock. I can't yet believe that he is utterly gone."

In this way she hid from Helena the cause of her hurt.

She said, laughing, but the tears in her eyes: "I am ashamed to be so weak."

Chickie kissed her and prayed as she had these 21 years that some bright angel would watch Pippin and guard between her steps and harm.

Kathleen came up and stayed for a fortnight. They went aquaplaning and spilled each other and the brothers in the chilly lake. They climbed steep, precipitous trails and camped overnight by little silver lakes where at dawn they fished for the delicate mountain trout.

Kathleen gave her news of Kevin.

"He's working hard. He writes to mother. Hildegarde is still in New York. Bob Nolan tells me they are having quite a fling together. But Kevin never mentions her any more in his letters. That's rather ominous, isn't it? Bob says I better be prepared for the big welcome. I should worry! You can't stop people from throwing away their lives!"

A strain to keep laughing merrily; to feign indifference when Kathleen talked of Kevin. She was relieved when her friend went home.

She went down to the lake and sat there in the moonlight. She saw boats skim across the darkly shining waters; heard young sweet voices sing.

Thinks of Bill

She thought of Bill and the night they were lost in the wilderness. She had found it sweet to settle against his shoulder; found it beautiful when he said, seeking: "I wish you would kiss me because you want to. Do that—just once—please."

Her thoughts summoned him from the dark into which he had gone. How glad she would be to have Bill with her tonight. He would laugh in that gallant way. They would murmur happily, filling with young bright longing, each other's heart.

Suddenly she thought: "I might have cared!"

And was staggered to have said this . . . Might have cared for Bill. But Kevin and the love of all her life kept her from it.

She leaned against the cold mountain bluff that walled their pier. She gazed with hard, brilliant eyes into the velvet dark. The moon dropped silver columns in the lake; a thousand stars flew wild across the sheer, dramatic mountain tops. She would be alone always!

It was mid-July and springtime in the mountains. Gay flowers were in bloom. On her lonely hikes Pippin would stop short before a patch of startling blue that flung in beauty like a song against the heart. Wild larkspur, incredibly delicate; incredibly blue—a fairy flower. Red lion's tail and waxy snowblossoms.

She found once a great gorgeous stalk, three feet tall and hung with a thousand perfect, gleaming white bells—a mountain lily she had never seen before. The bush was filled with these stalks. She broke one off.

Meets Kate Stone

As she tramped home she met Kate Stone—a gay, hardy, red-haired mountaineer. Kate was a teacher—short, square, rugged and ageless.

They dropped into Kate's cabin and looked through books on wild-flowers. They could not find a name for the specimen Pippin had found.

"Let me try," said the man, taking the book from Pippin's hand. Their eyes met. Hers dropped.

He was dark, with black hair coming down in side-burns. His eyes were black, the blackest eyes she had ever seen. His mouth was red. His name was Dale Owens and he had a cabin at the far end of the Upper Lake.

He accompanied Pippin along the trail until they stood above his site.

"Oh, that lovely lagoon is yours? I've often wondered who lived there. The water is warm, isn't it?"

"Yes—would you like to come and swim here? It's at least seven degrees warmer than your pool."

Two or three days later Pippin started out late. She walked further than she thought. She went on and on. Suddenly she noticed the light was fading, and a sharp wind blew.

Almost immediately the trees began to bow, pebbles scurried across her path. The sky was dark and a shattering rain fell.

Pippin Lost

The wind blew hard against her; it swept her on. Thunder rumbled. It came nearer. It split on her ears. Lightning went in a jagged blue fork. It struck a thin cluster of trees. Three of them fell.

Pippin was used to the mountains and loved them. She went hurrying on over the rough crags. She knew she was somewhere near the head of the upper lake.

But she couldn't see. She thought, with stabbing panic: "I'm not on the trail. I wonder if I'm going in the right direction?"

She kept on for an hour. She was worried about her mother. Helena would be so frightened.

She got deeper into the forest. Suddenly she came again to the three fallen trees. She had been going in circles.

The rain and wind ceased now. But it was dark and bitterly cold.

She gathered brush and after a long time, managed to start a fire. The blaze went in a vivid cone upward. She sank down, soaking wet and full of alarm.

A twig snapped, a footstep and a flash of light. A man emerged from the darkness. She recognized at once the coal-black eyes and deeply stirring voice.

"Are you lost?"

"I think I am—quite utterly lost."

"Oh—Miss Ramm?" said Dale Owens. "If you'll let me sit down and rest a moment, I can find your way back."

(To be continued.)

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND'S SECOND ADMINISTRATION—FINANCIAL PANIC—COXEY'S MARCH ON WASHINGTON

President Grover Cleveland, elected for a second term (1893-1897), inherited from Republican President Harrison's administration a depleted treasury, ebbing foreign trade, spreading unemployment and financial panic, causing many bank failures.

Memorable events of Cleveland's second administration: "Gen." Coxey's march of unemployed on Washington (Coxey arrested for "walking on the grass," the marchers dispersed); Pullman strike (rioting of railroad employes); Wilson-Gorman Tariff Reduction Bill passed but crippled by Senate; repeal of the Sherman Silver Act; the Morgan Bond Transaction (U. S. purchasing gold through Morgan bank to increase gold fund); Venezuelan-British boundary dispute settled by U. S. upholding Monroe Doctrine; restoration of the Native Queen in Hawaii. (U. S. History)

CZAR ALEXANDER II RESTORING OSMAN PASHA'S SWORD

A conflict between Russia and Turkey grew out of the condition of the Balkan states rising against the Ottoman misrule. Russia announcing herself the protector of the Balkan Christians, and desirous also to expand to the Mediterranean, declared war against the Ottoman empire, 1877. By January, 1878, the Turks were at the mercy of Russia and agreed to the treaty of San Stefano, ending the Russo-Turkish War. Above: Czar Alexander II restoring the sword to the captive Osman Nuri Pasha, commander of the Turks.

The European powers, however, would not tolerate the aggrandizement of Russia by the treaty of San Stefano, wrung from Turkey. They coaxed the Czar into the Congress of Berlin of the same year (1878), which stripped Russia of the fruits of her victory. (World History)

AIR CONDITIONING PLANT

An air conditioning plant furnishes filtered, heated air with proper moisture content. Above: A plant for gas firing. Since the average person inhales about 3,000 gallons (34 pounds) of air in 24 hours against about 6 pounds of food consumed, the importance of air purity is obvious. Filtering air eliminates dust, bacteria; adding moisture brings humidity to proper degree (40 to 55% of that contained in air, saturated with vapor). Lower humidity causes too much evaporation from skin, with uncomfortable feeling of cold; higher humidity gives unhealthy dampness. Air-conditioning takes care of all factors; connected to cooling plant it gives relief in summer. (Gen. Science) 80-III-A

VARIOUS IRON ALLOYS

ELSIE VENNER

The heroine of Oliver Wendell Holmes' "Romance of Destiny" is Elsie, a great beauty with strangely burning eyes. Her unreliable, serpent-like character is attributed to the venom of a rattlesnake that bit her mother shortly before Elsie's birth. Elsie's teacher, Bernard C. Langdom, a medical student, forced to take up teaching, breaks the spell of her eyes by the influence of his steady, calm personality. She is attracted to him, inciting the jealousy of Dick, an admirer, who attempts vainly to take Bernard's life. The demonic character of Elsie giving way to womanly mildness, seems to take her vitality. She is ebbing away, nursed by Helen Darley, another of her teachers, in whom Elsie's father wins an understanding second wife. Bernard becomes a noted physician and finds his mate in Letty Forester, a New England "Brahmin." (Amer. Literature)

GENETICS, EUGENICS, EUTHENICS—THE FAMILY TREE

Genetics deals with methods—common to all living things—of transmission of characteristics from generation to generation. If it is true that human race has not improved since the time of ancient Greeks, the responsibility rests with man himself, who did not use proper judgment in selection. Above partial tree of the Kallikak family illustrates the influence of inheritance. Of the 480 descendants of the branch at left, 143 (30%) were feeble minded, only 46 (9%) normal, of rest 189 (39%) still undetermined. Among them 24 were alcoholics, 3 criminals, 3 epileptics, 82 died in infancy, 41 were degenerates. Of the 496 descendants of the branch at right (except 2 alcoholics) all were normal and good citizens, some prominent in professions as physicians, judges, lawyers, etc.

Eugenics, the science of being well born, seeks improvement of the human race through nature, euthenics through nurture (education, environment). Each is a partial view, between which proper balance should be kept. We cannot hope to be born with equal abilities, but we should ask for equal opportunities of development.

Grandma Law, You Have Big Teeth

All we read now is about teeth in the laws. They kept one bill in caucus so long it grew its second set.

It is news when an amendment bites the people. It is not news when the people bite their finger nails.

The object of bicuspids and molars in the law is to make the government of the public rather private. On a recent visit to Washington we were button-fingered by a famous legislator.

He had aimed for the button hole but missed. He was no sharpshooter.

He said, "Bugs, you got it all wrong. It ain't the Senate at all. It's the House. Every Representative in that noble building is a problem child."

Over in the House they seemed to blame our legislative delays on the Senate. A House man said. "They streamlined politics but they forgot to weatherproof it. We work hard here so the Senate can take the day off to see a baseball game, Mr. Rainey has hammered that gavel of his continuously. He must think he is the kid with the drum.

"No citizen knows what a law is about until he violates it. I spoke three hours yesterday and was getting away with it until the subject got away from me. I approve of teeth in laws, but it is too late in life for me to study dentistry."

So it seems that the best seat in Congress is in the visitors' gallery. You don't have to depend on re-election.

All our laws are in the Congressional Library. But in there you must tip-toe and whisper. There don't seem to be any laws for dancing and laughing.

Do the people know the laws? Do they read them or speak them? No. With the accent on the condensed syllable. We depend on the sign language. No parking. Full stop. Keep off.

Law and its observance is like checking your hat. Out of sight is off your mind. What we need is more legal chatter on the air. But we couldn't even hear the Declaration of Independence read over a national hook-up unless it got a commercial sponsor.

The whole routine of bill-making is mysterious instead of being as visible as mushrooms under glass. The trouble is that a law is an experiment on 120,000,000 guinea pigs without the guinea pigs being present.

It is our own fault for not being there. The clinic is open to everybody.

ODD FACTS

Singing for a wife is the custom of the natives of Eastern Nepal. The young Limbu tribesman, having led his prospective bride before the chief, bursts into song, and is only successful in his wooing if his repertoire pleases the chief. Otherwise a rival steps in and makes a match of it.

Stone crushing with water is made possible by a system of high-pressure pumps designed by a Russian engineer, who intends adapting his invention for ice breakers to carve a path through the ice by bombarding it with jets of water shot out at enormous speed and force.

A new record depth for the Atlantic Ocean—44,000 feet, or nearly nine miles—has been found 75 miles north of Porto Rico. The previous record was 27,972 feet, in the same area.

London's dog population totals up to some 50,000 animals.

Senator Reed's Victory

It Does Not Mean That Pennsylvania Has Repudiated Roosevelt.

Senator David A. Reed, a conservative, has opposed President Roosevelt's major policies.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot, a liberal, has upheld them.

There is a temptation, therefore, to jump to the conclusion that Reed's defeat of Pinchot in the primary election means that Pennsylvania has repudiated the New Deal.

Such conclusion is not warranted.

Nearly half a million Pennsylvanians who formerly voted in the Republican primary cast their ballots this year for Democratic candidates. The total Democratic vote apparently will run about 600,000, as against 124,000 in the primary election of May, 1930.

Joseph F. Guffey, who has won the Democratic nomination, is an ardent Roosevelt supporter and attributes his success to that fact. If Pinchot's votes and Guffey's votes represent indorsements of the New Deal, and Reed's votes express disapproval, the New Deal has been handsomely upheld, since at this writing it appears that the combined Pinchot and Guffey votes outnumber the Reed total by a substantial margin.

However, other factors entered into the result besides the candidates' attitude towards the policies of the Roosevelt administration.

Senator Reed's honesty and courage have brought him support from citizens who do not agree with him in his stand on all matters. He is one of the leading statesmen of the nation and is highly regarded wherever statesmanship is appreciated. No doubt not a few Pennsylvanians desire to keep him in Washington for that reason alone.

On the other hand, Gov. Pinchot, by his playing of selfish politics, as exemplified in some of his dismissals and appointments, has alienated many citizens who formerly admired him.

The enormous increase in the Democratic vote is the outstanding feature of the election, and the factor that throws doubt on what the outcome will be in November.

Complete the Cathedral

The Beautiful Building, If Finished, Will Be a Joy Forever.

The University of Pittsburgh's Cathedral of Learning is like a beautiful woman with a crooked nose. Because of that one fatal defect you give little thought to her graceful figure, her lovely eyes, her superb complexion.

The Cathedral of Learning is stately and majestic, a masterpiece of architecture; but the irritating effect produced for some years by the fact that it is incomplete has come dangerously near to making it an eyesore. It is the deficiency that catches the observers' attention and makes people exclaim impatiently, "Why isn't something done about it?"

Well, something will be done about it if Pittsburghers have enough civic pride.

A campaign will be launched at a meeting in the Cathedral's Great Hall tonight to raise $1,650,000, the amount required, in addition to the United States government's grants of $734,000, to finish the building.

Complete the Cathedral! is the rallying cry. It is to be hoped the response will be cordial and generous.

This matchless edifice, with its inspiring atmosphere, will be a joy forever, if finished. It will return to Pittsburgh and Pittsburghers many times the value of their gifts in the renown that it will bring the city, in the pride that it will bring to the citizens.

Defiance of the Public

Refusal of the commitee on rules to bring to the floor of the House the McLeod bill to pay off depositors in closed banks is a defiance of public sentiment and a grave reflection upon the Democratic leadership of the House.

Congressman McLeod speaks not only for the supporters of this progressive measure but also for the supporters of majority rule the country over when he says:

"This manner of burying legislation is not fair. This is a bill that is wanted by a majority of the House, but just because it is not wanted by the leaders of the majority, it is stuck in the pigeonhole."

The House would have been given an opportunity to vote on this measure weeks ago but for the fear of the Democratic leadership that a vote upon it would mean the passage of the bill.

This is why the Democratic leadership has stooped to all sorts of devices to prevent the McLeod bill from coming before the House on its merits and thereby giving every member of Congress an opportunity to go on record for or against this legislative proposal.

Under these circumstances, the Democratic members of the House are under no compulsion to obey the dictates of their party bosses. Theirs is the opportunity and the obligation to discharge the committee from further consideration of this measure and thereby force it upon the untrammeled membership of the House.

This can and should be done by the signing of a petition now in circulation for this purpose.

Only 29 names are needed to complete the number of signers required under the rules of the House to make such a petition effective.

If these additional names are obtained without undue delay, the efforts of the Democratic leadership to "bury this legislation in committee" can be defeated and a free and fair vote upon the measure obtained before the end of the current month.

When the House, under Democratic leadership, adopted the rule permitting the discharge of a committee from further consideration of a measure when a petition signed by 145 members was filed with the Speaker, it sought to safeguard the House from the tyrannical rule of party bosses.

It is a violation of the spirit of this rule for the Democratic leaders to attempt to prevent the Democratic members of the House from signing such a petition for a vote on the McLeod bill.

Every member of the House who believes in majority rule ought to resent any attempt on the part of the leaders of the House to coerce members into refusing to sign this petition.

Now is the time for those representatives in Congress who resent the challenge to government by the majority to show their resentment and take up that challenge by promptly affixing their names to this petition.

If all those representatives in Congress who believe that depositors in closed banks deserve the relief which the McLeod bill provides will sign this petition, they will force a vote on the McLeod bill.

And a vote on that measure, whether it comes soon or late, will mean its passage by the House.

In France, in Germany, in Belgium—countries where canals and waterways have been long in use—the governments are improving these arteries of trade to the highest degree.

And in this country, canals and navigable rivers belong in the very forefront of public works projects.

The proposed Florida Canal, the New York State Barge Canal, the Gulf Coast inland route, the Pittsburgh projects, are some of the outstanding developments that ought to be expedited and completed.

LOS ANGELES DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

LOS ANGELES, May 17.—We awakened this morning to the half-mocking chirrup of a robin sextette out the window, a flood of California sunshine and the usual burst of local hospitality. The telephone welcomers included Rupert Hughes, Gene Markey, Doris Kenyon, George McManus, Basil Woon and several others before breakfast.

Breakfasting, we set off for Santa Monica to fulfill a lifelong desire of our 82-year-old guest—a view of the Pacific. A sparkle of dancing waves it had caught the mood of an especially chivalrous day. The sombre cliffs suggested mastiffs watching a frolic of kittens.

After mile upon mile along the ribbon roads skirting the sea, we plunged into the cool glower of the cowling canyons. Here Nature crinkles the landscape with sudden frowns. One thinks of barons of the roads, lances in the moonlight and creatures that prowl.

Los Angeles after a four-year absence, shows fewer depression scars than New York or large cities along the way. At least empty buildings are not so apparent. It has a leg-up on the others because it has no sordid exhaustive winters through which to battle.

* * *

Incidentally, the only red-headed lady reporter I ever saw, at Albuquerque yesterday, just that day given a salary rise, declared her city knew nothing whatever of depresion. No one felt even the slighest economic change. The Indians, who might have suffered, were more prosperous than ever under peculiar ruling of the code.

* * *

* * *

The California climate has a stimulating zip for the dog. In a vast open space near Sawtelle today, unleashed, he hunched himself in rabbit squats and with ears back began to scamper in crazy circles, keeping it up until his pink tongue reached to here. And then, as though suddenly realizing he had made a fool of himself, trotted slowly back to be trussed again in city harness. A dog's idea of being "on the loose."

* * *

A high light of coast trips for me is to re-une with my first boyhood chum, Jay F. Price. We were hellions together in a Missouri whistle stop. He accepts me with curious hesitancy he tries bravely to hide. His amazement seems perpetual that I am out of gaol. He is ever insistent to know the source of my income, entirely too incredulous to believe it could possibly come from writing a column. Rather he looks upon that as a smoke screen which hides nefarious activities. Meeting him today, he immediately launched upon the defensive methods California had taken against bank holdups and kidnaping. His attitude was entirely more warning than explanatory. Frequently with a narrowing finger and half lidded eye he would interpolate with. "No sir, a crook hasn't a Chinaman's chance out in this country."

* * *

The greatest improvement in the Los Angeles collective temperament I think is it now knows how to josh itself. Ten years ago the city carried a shoulder chip. It would suffer no gags about its Rotarian spirit of boosting, its temblors, its frequent climatic burlesques and native sonships. The smartest thing Henry Ford ever did was to sponsor an album of flivver jokes. Los Angeles long ago realized it could not be laughed off. It grows and flourishes in spite of everything. And the crack japeries incubate right among its own citizenry these days.

* * *

* * *

No matter how torrid the days, night brings never failing nepenthe. The woolen blanket is always welcome. The first two weeks here one wants only to sleep. Nowhere have I found sleeping so refreshing although, man and boy, I've done some fancy sleeping from garret to gutter. It takes Los Angeles a full hour after awakening to get sleep from its eyes and shake stars from its head. One has to come here to realize a night's snooze in Manhattan is only a series of cat-naps. Out here it is a night-long poem!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Why's This Column

Why's this column?

(Every day dozens of letters asking that—YOUR letter amongst them.)

A goofy column. Not like any of the rest. Never talks about the same thing twice. Why, instead of writing all over the lot, don't I decide to stick to just one thing? Do something really worth while. Educate people, like Mr. Brisbane does, or Mr. Broun—chat with them, like Mr. McIntyre—make 'em laugh, like Bugs Baer?

Why don't I do "something really worth while" like Messers. Brisbane, McIntyre, Broun and Baer? That's easy—I can't. Those gentlemen are Big Kleig Lights in a world where I'm just a kerosene lamp. And you can't make me cry by telling me I'm not as good as they are. I know it already. So, is your face red?

Next! What's this column all about? It's about the most important and mysterious subject on earth—IT'S ABOUT YOU.

IT'S ABOUT YOU—YOUR LIFE, AND YOUR WORLD.

Your secret dreams and open rebellions—or surrenders. Your weakness and strength—and how come either. The proud things you've done, the silly things, and the shameful—and why you did them.

It's about the ache you've carried in your heart since you were a youngster, and the nutty notions you've cherished for an equal length of time. It's about Being-Your-Age—and Getting-Wise-to-Yourself—and Strutting-Your-Stuff (if and when you have any to strut) — and Snapping-Out-Of-It.

It's about a kiss you'll always remember — and a grave you'll never forget—and a prayer you'd say, if you only knew the words.

AND IT'S ABOUT THE WORLD WHICH YOU AND ALL THE REST OF THE HUMAN RACE HAVE CREATED—OUT OF YOUR COMBINED CUSSEDNESS AND KINDNESS, COWARDICE AND COURAGE.

For this Modern World, which so gets your goat, partner, didn't "just happen." It's A CONSEQUENCE. It's a consequence of what you and I and the other fellows dream and desire; do—or fail to do. This Modern World is what YOU make it—and this column merely hands that fact to you straight, without any kidding.

But who am I to tell you this? And where'd I get the dope?

I got it by living, stranger. I got it by living as you do—by dreaming the dreams you've dreamed——by pulling the boner you've pulled—until at last I discovered one great truth.

Which was what? Just this—

THAT YOU AND I AND THE OTHER FELLOW ARE ALL-OF-A-PIECE.

That there's no bit of beauty in one of us which isn't in all of us—or anything dark and dirty which we don't all share!

Never an eye that hasn't felt the sting of the same salt tears. Never a mouth that hasn't trembled with love or tightened with hate. Never a heart that hasn't held a song or a moan. And never a Homo Sap who hasn't made a doggoned fool of himself, or herself, in one way or another.

Fifty years of living—and that's all I've learned. And the telling of it is the only talent I have.

Other people write powerful things. The best I can do is wobble. But this much I CAN do—

I CAN WRITE ABOUT YOU. And just because I am what I am—and am not what I'm not—I'm perhaps better equipped for that particular job than a regiment of poets, priests or philosophers.

What's this column? Its YOUR STORY. What's the purpose? To make you see yourself, your life, and the world you've made—AS THEY REALLY ARE. To quicken you, and comfort you! To buck you up, and shame you! And to make you feel that, no matter what happens—no matter what hell you have to go through—

MY HAND IS ON YOURS, AND WE'LL TAKE IT ON THE CHIN TOGETHER, OLD DEAR!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Lovers—And Ex-Lovers

After the love-affair has gone dead, a girl can forgive a man for cutting her cold—but never for treating her with perfectly cheerful amiability.

Don't conclude that the honeymoon is over simply because your darling never notices your presence around the house; wait until he gets so that he doesn't even notice your absence.

* * *

You can't always judge by appearances; a married couple's devotion, like a debutante's beauty or a chorus girl's pearls, may some time actually be the real thing.

* * *

A lot of devoted boy friends may bear witness to a girl's charms and attractions; but the only absolute circumstantial evidence of her prowess in the love-game is a HUSBAND.

* * *

Don't take a man's love for granted—because it almost never IS granted. Like his watch, it has to be filched from him, when he is more or less unconscious.

* * *

Every year, women's fashions appear to be more and more foolish. But don't be downhearted! It took men almost a hundred years to discover that a boiled shirt didn't have to be put on over the head, like a mother-hubbard wrapper.

* * *

A man's love is not dead until he takes the girl's photograph from the place of honor on his desk and tacks it up on the wall to cover a smudgy spot.

* * *

It never takes a girl any time to discover that a man wants to marry her. The delay in the wedding is caused by the extraordinary amount of time it takes her to make HIM discover it.

A man may not be so vain as a woman; but when one of them catches a girl staring at him, he always takes it as a compliment—and never stops to wonder if his nose is shiny.

* * *

Once in a while, a man can tell a woman the simple truth so convincingly that it will be almost as effective as a good lie

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

For Me

Enough, enough for me
An island in the sea
Where no ships come;
But only morn and night
And screaming gulls in flight
And wave and foam.

No great joys blossom there,
No misery or care,
In calm or storm
Still marching wave on wave
Hastes ever up to lave
Gold sands, and warm.

No autumn and no spring,
No mating birds to sing;
But, sweet and strange,
Enough, enough for me
An island in the sea
Time does not change.

Oxcart Government Evils To Be Discussed

By James T. Williams, Jr.

HOW the evils of county government can be eradicated and the standard of state administration improved will be one of the main subjects of study and discussion at the institute of public affairs which the University of Virginia will hold next July.

Leading the discussion on county government and state administration will be a recognized authority in this field—George W. Speicer, of the political science faculty of the university of which Thomas Jefferson was the father. Prof. Speicher performed a similar service recently for the University of Chattanooga at its institute of justice, which was attended by representative citizens of Tennessee and nearby states.

These institutes, held in many parts of the Union under the auspices of universities and colleges, are doing much to stimulate the interest and inform the intelligence of the people regarding the problems of government. They are providing a leadership in public education, in regard to public affairs, which is a witness to the faith of Jefferson in the honesty of the people, to his respect for their common sense, to his confidence that "by education their ignorance can be eliminated."

* * *

Professors Ranked As Authorities

DR. JOHN A. FAIRLIE, professor of political science at the University of Illinois, and Dr. Charles M. Kneier, associate professor of political science at the University of Nebraska, are the authors of one of the most comprehensive studies yet published on county government in the several states. Another pioneer in the exploration of "the dark continent of American politics," as county government has been well described, is Dr. Thomas H. Reed, professor of political science at the University of Michigan.

"The first and most important step which the legislatures can take toward modernizing the areas of local government," declares Prof. Reed, "is to propose amendments removing constitutional barriers to the consolidation of counties and school districts and the abolition of counties.

"These amendments might take the form of authorizing optional legislative acts dealing freely with the whole structure of local government, or they might provide for home-rule charters for counties, combinations of counties, or metropolitan areas.

"They should contain provisions protecting the reasonable rights of minorities so that the people of a county could be empowered to abolish their townships, consolidate their school districts, modernize the machinery of county government, and combine with cities or other counties in larger and better organized units.

"That such measures can be passed without resistance is not to be expected. Local officeholders will fight to the death to block them, but he who fights for them will have behind him a solid phalanx of weary, angry and hopeful taxpayers."

There is every reason for the people to welcome the leadership of institutions of higher learning in organizing to lift from their necks the yoke of oxcart government, of which the county unit is the most flagrant example.

* * *

Taxes Needed For Other Purposes

TAXES wrung from the people to support more than 3,000 county governments and the other thousands of smaller government units are urgently needed for other and better purposes. Public education is suffering for lack of funds. Public protection is hamstrung by insufficient appropriations. Public health and other vital governmental services are being starved to pay for the upkeep of thousands upon thousands of county and local officers no longer required for the orderly transaction of public business.

To simplify these government units will require a constitutional change in a majority of the states, but legislative enactments in nearly all the states can provide some relief.

Idaho, Michigan and Nevada, North Carolina, South Dakota and Utah are required by their constitutions to maintain townships. A constitutional amendment is the first step toward modernizing the present structure of local governments in all the states except California, Montana, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Carolina, Rhode Island and Virginia.

If every state university would follow the example this summer of the University of Virginia and make the modernizing of county government a foremost subject of study and discussion at an institute of public affairs, the people would soon vindicate the faith of Thomas Jefferson in their honesty and common sense by electing legislatures pledged to raise the standard of state administration by bringing our obsolete system of county and local government up to date.

A German Syndicate Proposes to Salvage the Treasure of The Hampshire, in Which Lord Kitchener Died

By Edwin C. Hill

DEEP down on the floor of the North Sea lies a great treasure, ten millions in gold, once the property of The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street, now in the hands of Davy Jones, into whose cold hands has fallen so much of this world's wealth over the rolling centuries. And now we hear that a German syndicate is trying to snatch from Davy Jones and dead men's bones all this gold which has lain there in the green-dark for 18 years.

The weather was foul and the sea running high off the West Orkney Islands to the north of Scotland, and the gale blew up so high that the slim destroyers dared not face it, and turned about and ran for Scapa Flow. And the cruiser drove on through the storm, carrying Field Marshal Lord Kitchener — Kitchener of Khartoum—England's most celebrated soldier since the Duke of Wellington—carrying him to Russia to buy the Czar's support to the cause of the Allies.

Loss of Hampshire Changes History

AND then the keel of the cruiser struck an object just below the surface of the sea. There was a terrific explosion, and within five minutes the Hampshire and every soul aboard her were in another world and the course of history was changed.

What might have happened if the cruiser had escaped that mine trap set by the Germans, if Kitchener had reached Russia and had been able to win the Czar and Czarina and that weird animal, Rasputin, who controlled them, one may only surmise.

But Russia might not have broken away from the Allies. The war might have ended more than a year before it did. And there might have been no violent revolution.

At all events, there lies the hulk of the Hampshire and around her the whitened, picked skeletons of her 900 men, and among them the tall skeleton of which once was the great Kitchener.

And down in that dread, grim place move weird figures with electric torches and electric drills, like fantastic creatures from one of H. G. Well's planetary romances. Picking and prying and passing up gold bars and gold sovereigns by the basketful, up through the green sea to the tossing deck of the diving boat.

Canadian View Of United States

THE point of view of the Canadian as regards this country and the American people is always interesting. I have never seen it more strikingly set forth than was done recently in the editorial columns of the Vancouver Sun. The editorial was entitled "United States and England," and here it is:

"Between the extremism of Uncle Sam and the compromise of John Bull, where shall Canada properly fix her economic and social philosophy? The phrase 100 per cent American is more than current slang. It is thoroughly descriptive of the American attitude in every field. For the modern American is the most intense and the most extreme individual on the face of the earth.

"And this extremism has given to the Untied States a very definite function in the evolution of political, economic and social doctrine. Because the United States goes to the extreme in all her experiments, she has brought out in sharp outline the weaknesses of the various theories with which she has associated herself. Thus, she demonstrated the weaknesses of prohibition, the weaknesses of democracy, the weaknesses of capitalism and now we will soon see, presumably, the weaknesses of Socialism, just as Russia has brought out the weaknesses of Communism.

"It is an entirely different political philosophy that colors the actions of old John Bull. He is the symbol of practical compromise. These compromises enable him to sail along and give him a sense of fictitious strength that really lies in the concealment of his weaknesses. Form and letter do not mean very much to the Englishman. He gets right through to the spirit and the essence of things.

"That is why his codes and his ideas are fluid and elastic and durable. It is why he is so sure of himself. He does not care what the other fellow does. He is not concerned about defining himself or his actions. He will not subscribe to hypocrisy or to Puritanism. He likes a good meal and a good time and he admits it. Somewhere between the stolid and liberal and middle course compromising of John Bull and the intense 100 per centism of the United States lies the economic, political and socail philosophy that Canada shall ultimately adopt as her own."

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

They regret that they were not "better born."

They feel handicapped; forgetting that many of the prominent and great men and women of this country were of the so-called "lowly born."

Just because you did not have the same advantage of position and education which others enjoyed is no reason why you should not endeavor to lift yourself beyond the station of your parents.

Fortunately the caste system does not exist in our country as it does in countries where the station to which one was born must designate the position he will hold thereafter.

If you are blaming your station of birth for your lack of advancement, it is likely that you are looking for an excuse for your own laziness.

You want to acquire what you want too easily.

ISN'T IT SO?

If there were no fools there would be no war.

Padlocks and chains are not classed as good securities for loans.

If the good were not inclined to go to the bad we would have no missionaries.

While there are but few female orators, all women are extemporaneous speakers.

Prohibition may be able to limit the output of whisky, but it does seem to be able to limit the output.
